GANDHI TWISTS LION'S TAIL WITH 'FREE INDIA' CRY

Asks Partnership in British Empire.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—With all the [illegible] subtlety of the orient, old [illegible] wise in experience, Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, sat calmly in St. James's palace today and laid down his demands to the British empire.

His speech seemed to rock the rafters of the historic old palace. For this simple man in his loin cloth rose to heights he had never achieved before. The white haired old Indian's friends said undoubtedly it was the greatest speech of his long political life. In his genius Gandhi had risen to the occasion in this, the greatest crisis of his career, as countless times before he had risen to the occasion when many thought he was slipping away before an insoluble crisis.

Today Gandhi was not the "holy man," but the masterful politician, calculating, as it were, a life of political struggle.

Fascinates Legal Minds.

England's great legal minds, Lord Reading, Lord Sankey—lord chief justices past and present—sat fascinated and intrigued as the frail little Indian leader crouched on his seat and built up his case for independence for India. He had no prepared address. Gandhi had no notes. He just sat at his place and gazed into the air as his words glided out in all the subtlety of a symphony—words which may conceivably end in bringing down of the British empire.

He was humble! O, so humble! His manner, his voice, his many apologetic words! He was like a pariah whose dress he wears.

And yet in his speech, so simply spoken, one hardly recognized it at first, Gandhi laid down his challenge to the British raj as he pleaded for an independent India.

Nothing Less than Freedom.

Nothing less would he take. If he couldn't get it he would not bother them any longer with his presence.

But before the British decided he would let them hear him. And hear him they did.

All the arts of flattery so dear to British diplomacy Gandhi paraded with consummate skill. And when he had completed flattering them, and then shocking them by his demands, he shrewdly pulled out the last trick in his bag. Beaming upon the astounded but spellbound British delegates, he humbly suggested that one way, and perhaps the only way the British could emerge from their domestic financial chaos, was to make peace with India, which, if independent, might once again buy British goods.

"India Held by Sword."

"You cannot have it both ways, he said in substance, but you could have it one way at least on my terms.

"India has been held by the sword," Gandhi said as bejeweled maharajas, tribal Indians and dignified Englishmen leaned forward to catch every word. "I do not for one moment question the ability of Great Britain to hold India in subjection under the sword.

"But which would be better—an enslaved but rebellious India or an India as an esteemed partner with Great Britain to share her sorrows and take part side by side with her in her misfortunes? An India that, it need be, of her own free will can fight side by side with Britain, not for the exploitation of a single race or a single human being, but it might be for the good of the whole world!

"So I said to myself while nearing the shores of this beautiful island of England. Perchance it may be possible for you to convince the British statesmen that India can be a valuable partner, not held by force but by the cord of love. Then again I thought that India might be of real assistance in balancing your budget."

British Delegates Wince.

The British delegates winced. Was India playing cricket to take advantage of them now while they were "in" with bankruptcy and he "out"? Was that it?

Gandhi smiled and pictured a glorious future for the two nations, with Great Britain and India working together in equal partnership. His imagery here was superb.

"What could we not do together—joined a nation with bravery perhaps unequaled by any nation and noted for having fought slavery and protected the weak [friends said Gandhi always reads Lord Cecil's annual ad-

SAILORS REBEL AT WAGE SLASH; FLEET CALLED IN Admiralty Cancels Big Maneuvers.

BY JOHN STEELE.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Serious trouble among the lower ranks of the British navy has broken out as a result of the drastic wage cuts imposed by the government last week in an effort to meet the $850,000,000 budget deficit. The wage reductions, similar to those ordered under the new budget for the army, police, school teachers and all civil servants, were announced to the fleet by the admiralty on Saturday, to be effective on Oct. 1.

Exact details of what is taking place in the navy are lacking, the authorities being reticent as to the precise nature of the occurrences, but that something approaching mutiny has occurred is clear from an official admiralty statement issued tonight. The statement announced that the maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet had been suspended and the ships recalled to harbor because of "unrest" among the men as a result of the wage cuts.

The Admiralty's Statement.

The admiralty's announcement said:

"The senior officer of the Atlantic fleet has reported that promulgation of reduced rates of naval pay has led to unrest among a section of the lower rating.

"In consequence of this, he has deemed it desirable to suspend the program of exercises of the fleet and to recall the ships to harbor while investigations are being made into representations of hardship occasioned by certain of the cuts in pay, in order that these may be reported for the consideration of the board of admirals."

This was followed later by a second statement announcing the approval of the admiralty to the course adopted. The senior officer referred to is Rear Admiral Wilfred Tomkinson, who is in command as a consequence of the illness of Admiral Sir Michael Hodges, commander in chief of the fleet.

16,000 Men Involved.

The units of the Atlantic fleet left their home ports for Scotland last Tuesday and Wednesday to carry out the usual autumn program of training maneuvers in the North sea.

The fleet comprises forty units, including the superbattleships Nelson and Rodney; the battleships Malaya, Valiant and Warspite; the battle cruisers Hood and Repulse, and the cruisers Dorsetshire, Norfolk, York and Exeter.

In addition there are the aircraft carrier Courageous and the cruiser Centaur the fifth and sixth destroyer flotillas and the second submarine flotilla and the depot ship Lucia. The total complement of officers and men in the fleet is 16,000.

Men Make Noisy Protests.

The intended maneuvers included gunnery exercises, daylight battle evolutions and destroyer attacks. The main exercises were scheduled to be held towards the end of the month and the first couple of weeks in October. The heavy ships and cruisers are now lying off Invergordon, at the head of Cromarty Firth, Scotland.

As soon as the pay reductions were announced by the admiralty Saturday, it was learned tonight, feeling began to run high throughout the entire fleet. On Sunday noisy protests broke out on shore in the naval canteens at Invergordon, where 700 men were ashore on leave.

When the trouble became known to the officers on the ships extra pickets were landed. This quieted the men temporarily, but later, when they were returning to their ships, the demonstrations were renewed.

Sing and Cheer on Ships.

The unrest continued throughout Monday, and it was necessary to land pickets to disperse meetings in the canteens. But large groups of men gathered later and 600 or 700 adjourned to Black park, in Invergordon, where ways and means were discussed how to resist the pay cuts.

Today all permits for shore leave were withdrawn, but sounds of singing and cheering reached shore from the ships, indicating lively occurrences aboard.

Considerable dissatisfaction was also expressed in naval circles in Plymouth, Chatham, Rosyth and other ports. At Plymouth officers of the ships addressed the men, explaining to them the need for economies. At Rosyth, on the Firth of Forth, near Edinburgh, a deputation of 375 married men protested the pay cuts to Capt. E. C. Boyle of the battleship Iron

WHITE HOUSE DENIES A NEW 3% BEER RUMOR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A new "legalized beer" rumor emerged today from last night's White House conference. It was to the effect that bankers who were the President's guests urged him to make a move to permit the manufacture and sale of 3 per cent beer.

This rumor, which brought a positive White House denial, is the outgrowth of a persistent story which has been in circulation for months, that the President intended to make a momentous announcement in the interest of modification of the 18th amendment and the Volstead law.

The answer to this story, obtained from authoritative sources, is that President Hoover has no intention of seeking to have our prohibition policy modified. From an administration viewpoint, any such proposal on his part would be futile. Officials familiar with the situation declare that it would obtain support from less than a fourth of the membership of the senate and perhaps little more than a fifth of the membership of the house in the next congress.

In the circumstances there appears to be no prospect that the President will pave the way for any change in prohibition.

Reports that the advisory council of the federal reserve board had suggested to the President that he consider extending the war debt and reparations moratorium for another four years were dismissed as "complete fabrications" by White House officials today.

U. S. PROSECUTOR HURT IN INDIANA AIRPLANE CRASH

William J. Froelich, 3204 East 70th place, special assistant attorney general of the United States who aided in the preparation of the case which resulted in the indictment of Al Capone for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, was injured last evening in an airplane crash at La Porte, Ind.

He and five other passengers, one of whom was Assistant District Attorney Dwight H. Green, were on their way from Washington to Chicago in a Continental Airways plane. Pilot L. H. Stewart, passing La Porte, found visibility bad and returned to the airport two miles south of La Porte.

The motor of the plane died while Stewart was cruising at low altitude and seeking a good place to land. The craft struck a hedge fence, ripping off the undercarriage and damaging the propeller. The passenger compartment remained rigid and Mr. Froelich's injuries were caused by his being thrown against a window.

He was taken to a hospital, where it was found he had suffered a bump on the head and cuts on the face. He and the other passengers, none of whom was injured, left La Porte on a midnight train for Chicago.

Legion Won't Push Bonus if It Hurts U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, today declared that "if Legionnaires are convinced that further liberalization of their adjusted compensation certificates will place a heavier burden upon the country they will drop the fight for immediate cash payment of the amount still due them."

RALPH T. O'NEIL.

The American Legion official made his statement shortly after a White House conference during which he and other Legion officials discussed their legislative program and the unemployment situation with President Hoover. Whether the President advised his callers that passage of new bonus legislation would seriously handicap the government's financial program for the new year was not made known.

Legion to Act on Dry Law.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The thirteenth annual convention of the American Legion next week is expected to vote on national prohibition, and it is said some form of proposal recommending either repeal or modification of the dry laws is likely to pass. Moreover, if such action is taken by the Legion, there is expected to be a vote on the issue within sixty days after the next congress convenes.

These forecasts were made today by a high Legion official who arrived at convention headquarters. There will be a battle on the prohibition question, but it probably will be acted upon in some form, he said. Delegations from the southern states are lined up strongly against any change, but in the main sentiment will be for it, he said.

The spokesman said that Senator Fess, dry leader in the senate, had admitted to him that if the Legion indorses national prohibition reform federal legislative action would follow within sixty days after congress meets.

It is said that modification and not repeal will be favored. One proposal is legalization of 3½ per cent beer and wine, and that is the form in which the measure is expected to reach the convention floor.

Fess Denies Whole Story.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Senator Simeon D. Fess tonight was asked about the Detroit dispatch saying a high Legion official had quoted him as admitting congress must take action if the Legion voted for a change in the prohibition law. He denied the story flatly.

Girl Demands Aimee's Mate Pay $200,000

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton is considerable of a forecaster, if not a prophet. While David L. Hutton was courting her, she told him their marriage might lead to some difficulties.

Today was the third day of their honeymoon. Mr. Hutton, 30 year old 230 pound baritone bridegroom, was in the upper reaches of Angelus temple having a manicure. Aimee waited close by.

A large person with a cigar and hard hat that seemed affinities said he wished to see Mr. Hutton. He had a mean looking legal paper in his hand.

They Meet Process Server.

The bridal couple came down stairs arm in arm to meet the process server.

"Take it, dear," the evangelist advised, when Hutton appeared hesitant, "one can't dodge those things."

The summons was notice that Miss Myrtle Joan St. Pierre had filed suit against Mr. Hutton seeking $200,000 damages for breach of promise.

"Just headlines, Dave," sighed Mrs. McPherson Hutton, as she read the charges. "Just headlines. I told you I'd get you into some sort of mess, if you married me."

"It's worth it, dear," Hutton said, dimpling.

Mrs. McPherson-Hutton insisted she would not permit her honeymoon plans to be interrupted.

"I have the utmost confidence in Dave," she said. "Any one who married me would be let in for something like this. It was to be expected. Certainly, I'll stand by Dave.

Quite the Rage to File Suits.

"There isn't any person so helpless as a man when he is accused of something as Dave is. It's been quite the rage to file such suits. For instance, I am confident it will be proved how absurd these charges are, but in the meantime I hold the utmost faith in Dave, and we're going right along with our plans for our trip to Ventura and Portland."

Hutton described the charges as "ridiculous" and at first denied having known Miss St. Pierre, but later he admitted he had known a Joan St. Pierre and that she might be the same person. Friends said she had used both names.

"Yes, I knew Joan," he said, "but I haven't seen her for six or eight months. Engaged to her? Never in the wide world. I met her through mutual friends in Long Beach. She borrowed a book from me, 'The Strange Death of President Harding,' but that was all—every bit."

Tall, Willowy Brunette.

Miss St. Pierre, a tall, willowy brunette of 29 years, with wavy brown hair and brown eyes, formerly acted as gymnasium instructress and health nurse at fashionable Hotel del Arroyo in Pasadena.

"I met David Hutton through mutual friends last January," she said. "He immediately began showering me with attentions. On Jan. 29, protesting his love for me, he asked me to marry him, and I consented. He took me to his parents' home and introduced me as his future wife. I introduced him to my friends as my future husband.

"After asking me to marry him and promising that he would be married shortly he asked me to pledge our love. I loved him dearly and I thought he loved me, too. That was on Jan. 28. In April he came to me and said he was leaving on a six months' concert tour and that our wedding would take place when he returned.

David Promised to Write.

"David promised to write me. But I never received one word from him from that day on.

"I went to his parents and tele-

DYNAMITE GANG HELD AS MOVIE BOMB SUSPECTS

Threefold Inquiry Is Begun on Blasts.

Aroused by the persistent bombings of motion picture theaters which are operating with nonunion operators, the state's attorney's office and police officials yesterday announced the inauguration of stern measures to end this form of terrorism.

CHARLES BELLOWS

Charles A. Bellows, assistant state's attorney, said that he would take the matter before the grand jury today. So far six of the theaters, all members of the Allied Independent Theaters association, have been bombed. Three of the blasts occurred within twenty-four hours, the last one at the Regent theater, 6824 South Halsted street, early yesterday.

Four Suspects in Custody.

Other developments yesterday were the following:

1. The arrest of four youths, riding in a stolen automobile in which was secreted 500 pounds of dynamite. They are to be questioned today on their possible connection with the theater bombings.

2. Suspension by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock of two policemen who were assigned as guards at the Regent theater.

3. A conference participated in by assistant state's attorneys, lawyers representing the theater owners and Commissioner Alcock, for the purpose of coördinating the efforts of prosecutors, police and detectives employed by the theater owners.

4. The start of an inquiry to determine whether all the licenses issued by the city department of gas and electricity to 150 members of the motion picture operators' union were obtained without fraud.

Suspect to Be Questioned.

Stanley Machnikowski, 22 years old, 2731 West 35th street; Alex Stanlaus, 21 years old, 5206 South Trumbull avenue; Simon Kuisinas, 24 years old, 4503 South Honore street, and Thomas Piantkowski, 25 years old, 4417 South Lincoln street, are the youths believed to be bombers.

All were seized in the rear of the Machnikowski home, where the police came upon the automobile containing the dynamite. They have refused to tell the police what use they intended to make of the dynamite. Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lonsbury will take up the questioning of the four today.

The dynamite itself is not in the possession of the police, a fifth youth having escaped in the car with the explosive while policemen were capturing the other four.

Two Policemen Suspended.

The policemen suspended are Aloysius McCarthy and William Steffens of the Woodlawn district. Commissioner Alcock held that they should have prevented the bombing of the Regent theater or captured the bombers unless the explosive had been tossed from the roof of a neighboring building. The most plausible theory advanced was that the bombing was accomplished in that manner.

"The suspension of these two men," said Commissioner Alcock, "will hold until the investigation is completed. If laxity on their part is shown, they will be sent before the police trial board."

Following the conference of prosecutors, attorneys for the theaters, and Alcock, it was asserted by Attorney Theodore Levin, who with Attorney Howard Ellis represents the theaters, that the owners had hired additional guards to aid the police in protecting the showhouses.

Cermak Takes a Hand.

Mayor Cermak took a part in pushing the campaign against the bombers. He ordered that all the police needed be assigned to stop the bombings and expressed the opinion that the cause of the union operators was not being helped by the terroristic tactics. Also he told Commissioner Alcock that Capt. William Shoemaker and his "Scotland Yard" detail should be put to work in this campaign.

The 150 questioned licenses of operators were issued during the régime of Joseph Maloy, brother of Thomas Maloy, who is head of the operators' union. Joseph Maloy has been suspended as examiner of operators for the department of gas and electricity.

and indicted on charges of conspiracy. He is to appear today before the civil service board to answer charges that the licenses were obtained by fraud.

Regent Damage Put at $4,000.

The bombing of the Regent theater caused damage estimated at $4,000. A large hole was torn in the roof, building beams were weakened and windows were broken for a radius of a block.

A neighbor, Mrs. Ernest Davis, 6831 South Halsted street, who was showered with glass from shattered windows in her apartment, told the police she had noticed four men on the roof of the theater three days ago. The men peered over the parapet at the policemen on guard below, held a whispered conference and disappeared, she said.

Other theaters which have suffered from bombings are the Hamlin, 3626 West Madison street; the Austin, 5619 West Madison street, the Ridge, 1550 Huron avenue; the Ray, 2638 East 79th street and the Olympia, 4619 South Ashland avenue.

75 Bombs So Far in 1931.

While law enforcing agencies were engaged in an investigation of the theater bombings, records at the Employers' association of Chicago disclosed that with three and a half months yet to run, 1931 already is only one behind the record for the entire year of 1930. Including the bombing yesterday there have been 75 bombs thrown thus far this year with a total estimated property damage of $70,965.

According to G. L. Hostetter, executive director of the association, there has been a steady increase in the number of bombs thrown and the damage done. The first part of 1931 showed a much greater property damage per bomb than in previous years. The bombs of recent months have been of the terrorizing variety, calculated to injure business, and have brought the property damage average down, Hostetter said.

Bombs of 12 Years Listed.

Year.	Bombs.	Year.	Bombs.
1921	60	1927	106
1922	69	1928	116
1923	85	1929	116
1924	98	1930	74
1925	115	1931	75

The property damage in the last three years is estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

"Bombing is the most elusive form of crime," Mr. Hostetter said. "It can be stopped, but not without first class detective work. The mere knowledge that a staff of first class detectives were working on bombs would do much to stop the outrage. In only a few cases have the actual bombers been caught, and then only by advance information. To protect property and lives bombing must stop. The answer is good detective work.

"Bombing has become so commonplace that people take it as a matter of course. Perhaps it will continue until some bomb causes the death or injury of hundreds of women and children. Then there will be such a public outcry that the police department will be forced to run the bombers out by one method or another."

RAID GAMBLING HALL OF CAPONE ALLY; 21 SEIZED

Capt. William Shoemaker, head of the police "Scotland Yard" detail, made a raid yesterday on information that bombers who have been active in the motion picture theater war had headquarters at 234 North Dearborn street. Instead of a bomb arsenal, he found a gambling house, of which Mike Potson, Capone hoodlum, is the reputed owner.

Potson was standing on the sidewalk when Capt. Shoemaker and his men entered the building and started up to the gambling resort on the second floor. When the captain found, by questioning inmates, that Potson was the owner, he sent men back downstairs to arrest him, only to discover that the gangster had fled.

John Saunders, 38 years old, of the Weston hotel, 335 West Madison street, was arrested as the keeper, and twenty men found betting on horse races were taken to the detective bureau and booked as inmates. A lawyer appeared there later and said that Potson, who formerly managed Colosimo's cafe and is indicted with Capone and other members of his gang in the prohibition conspiracy case pending in the federal court, would be surrendered if police wanted him.

RECEIVERS MAKE REPORTS ON 7 CLOSED BANKS

Slow Collections Shown by Statements.

Statements disclosing the present condition of seven closed banks in Cook county were issued yesterday by the bank receivers concerned, and were made public by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. Similar statements concerning other closed banks will be issued as compiled, the auditor announced.

In effect each statement constitutes an accounting of stewardship by each bank receiver. Among the significant items listed are "receipts collected" and "disbursements," the first item indicating the receiver's success as a debt collector and the second showing his thrift in performing his task.

In general the statements indicate that collections have been slow and difficult. They indicate further that the receivers have been extraordinarily frugal in paying out attorney's fees, an item on which the state auditor has been criticized on the ground of supposed extravagance.

MILLION INHERITANCE LOST BY LAWYER AS WOMAN IS DROWNED

Salem, Mass., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—An inheritance of $1,000,000 was lost to Richard Bennett, a New York attorney, when Mrs. Adelaide Pierce Davis was drowned in Lake Suntaug at Lynnfield two months ago.

Mrs. Davis' death ended a midnight boating party on the lake with Mr. Bennett, whom she had summoned to draw up her new will in which she named him as heir to $1,000,000, according to information given to Judge Harry R. Dow in Probate court here today.

The new will never was drawn. Today's court hearing was preliminary to a contest of the old will by relatives. It leaves the bulk of a large estate to Editha Scanlon, a Boston girl who was brought up by Mrs. Davis as her daughter, although she was not legally adopted.

Wilmette Hitch Hikers to Get Official Cards

To save their local hitch hikers from being thrown into stuffy jails while on a hitch hike in the states, eight of which have laws making this form of cheap travel a misdemeanor, members of the village board of Wilmette last night passed a resolution authorizing the clerk and chief of police to issue identification cards to those who care to roam. The resolutions were passed when the danger of arrest to local hitch hikers had been called to the attention of the board. The cards will bear the name of the hiker and identify him or her as a resident of Wilmette. A small photograph of the bearer will be pasted on the identification card.

FLYERS VANISH AFTER NEARING AMERICAN COAST

Hunt Vainly for Overseas Plane.

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Commercial and military flyers united today in a search that covered thousands of square miles of New England's rough countryside and extended into the maritime provinces, for the German monoplane Esa, due in New York from Portugal early this morning.

The plane and its three occupants were sighted twice on the westward journey, once over Fayal early Sunday afternoon and the second time as they neared their goal when they circled the S. S. Pennland 395 miles out of Halifax and only 80 miles from Cape Race, N. F. At that time the plane had been on its way a little more than 33 hours.

Fuel for 48 Hours.

The three flyers, William Rody, 23 year old owner-pilot and head of the expedition; Christian Johanssen, veteran of the German war air forces, and Fernando Costa Viega, Portuguese sportsman pilot, said before starting that they had fuel enough for 48 hours. That limit came at 5:30 this morning eastern daylight time, 15 hours after they had been sighted by the Pennland, when everything seemed to be going well and when the flight was so near a triumphant finish.

They had reason then to be cheerful and they showed it in circling the liner before speeding off under the low hanging clouds toward the fog laden shores of Nova Scotia. At any time during the next three hours flying they could have turned north to reach land in 20 or 30 minutes.

Although they did not reach their objective, and although they must have landed somewhere in the darkness over the 1,100 mile course that stretches across the water to Nova Scotia and then down across rugged, sparsely settled country to southern New England and New York, pilots here believe that they may be safe.

Search Is Organized.

Soon after daylight searches were hurriedly organized. A fleet of ten coast guard vessels scattered along the New England coast were asked to keep a sharp lookout either for wreckage or the plane itself. With gasoline tanks nearly empty and air in place of fuel, the plane could have kept afloat for twenty-four hours.

In addition, naval reservists put out from Boston to fly north along the coast of Maine, and Lieut. Richard Whitehead took up a formation of naval reserve planes from Floyd Bennett field to search Long Island and the Connecticut shoreline. Regular flying missions from Mitchel field were quickly changed into search assignments.

When the planes returned at night they reported having seen nothing.

Friends of the flyers have not given up hope that they may turn up safely during the next ten days.

5 Day Week Is Voted Down by Typographical Union

Boston, Mass., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The International Typographical union today voted to uphold the opposition of its resolution committee to a five day week proposal. A resolution submitted by Delegate Needlands of Vancouver asked for an amendment to the present laws which would allow subordinate unions to put into effect a five day working week when voted by two-thirds of the members. The committee opposed on the ground that it would be impossible for local unions to have a five day clause included in the contracts.

BOARD OF TRADE QUESTIONS WEISS ON WOLF DEALS

David D. Weiss, merchant tailor and member of the Board of Trade, appeared before a special committee of the board yesterday to be questioned on his transactions with Walter E. Wolf, former coupon collection manager of the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, who stole $3,867,000 of the bank's securities for stock and grain speculations.

Weiss, who has maintained no executed no grain transactions for Wolf, was before the committee more than three hours. Neither he nor the committee members, John C. Wood, Edwin T. Maynard and Kenneth Templeton, would comment when the session adjourned.

It was indicated that Weiss might be recalled for further examination. Although lacking any direct authority over Weiss, the committee, upon report of its findings to the directors of the Board of Trade, may recommend a fine, suspension or revocation of Weiss' membership.

Guest Beaten to Death; Host and Hostess Held

John Jenesski, 46 years old, and his housekeeper, Miss Sophia Schurtz, 30 years old, 2321 West 50th place, were being held by New City police last night following the death of Louis Piejar, 45 years old, 1351 West 16th street, from the affects of a beating.

From Jenesski and Miss Schurtz, police gathered that Jenesski returned home Monday night to find Piejar an unwelcome guest in his home. There was a fight in which Piejar was badly beaten, but police knew nothing of this until last night when an anonymous telephone call informed them that there was a sick man at Jenesski's home. Piejar died on the way to the hospital.

LEARN IDENTITY OF THE BRIDE IN STEVENS AFFAIR

Records at Crown Point Reveal Marriage.

Marriage records in Crown Point last night revealed the name of the wife of George M. Stevens Jr., young insurance man who was removed from the Highland Park hospital yesterday after recovering from a suicide attempt. Despondency over a divorce from his first wife, to whom he was still devoted, was given as his reason for the act.

He was married in Crown Point on Aug. 19 to Wilma Howard, the records reveal. Her age was given as 25, his as 29 years. The records also disclosed that she had been divorced on July 1. According to Alexander K. Carqueville of Highland Park, father of Katherine Carqueville Stevens, the sick man's first wife who has also been remarried, Stevens' second bride came from Kansas City.

Visits Hospital Several Times.

There last night, it was not possible to see court records, but newspaper files disclosed that a divorce suit was filed in Independence, Mo., a suburb of Kansas City, on July 8 in behalf of Wilma H. Swanland against Carl F. Swanland and that it was granted by default the same day. It could not be ascertained if the woman in that case was Stevens' second wife.

The second wife has visited the hospital several times but had not seen her husband at the time he was released in secret from the institution yesterday. He did not wish to see her, according to Mrs. Carqueville.

The first wife, now the bride of Robert R. Le Chereq of Cheshire, Conn., is expected to return there today or tomorrow with her husband. Stevens's father, George M. Stevens Sr., wealthy lumberman of Mount Vernon, N. Y., is believed to have his son in seclusion in a Chicago hotel and is contemplating taking him upon a trip.

Becomes More Cheerful.

It was reported yesterday that the second Mrs. Stevens had been living under the same roof with her predecessor, Mrs. Le Chereq, while Stevens was in the hospital. This was denied by the Carquevilles.

Stevens' despondency has been reduced considerably, according to his physician, Dr. G. Q. Grady. The patient recently has taken a brighter view of life, the Carquevilles said. Jeffery Carqueville, brother of the first wife, was reported to have told Stevens yesterday that his friends are standing by him, a message which cheered him considerably.

Denies Reunion Prospect.

Mrs. Le Chereq scoffed at any prospect of being reunited to Stevens. "Stevens and his present wife met three years ago," Mrs. Le Chereq said. "He was worried last summer that I might not go through with divorce proceedings to free him. At the hospital he told me that he left his wife in a downtown hotel a week ago; then he attempted suicide and to cover up he told this fantastic story about being in love with me when I have evidence that he has been in love with his present wife years before they were married."

BROKER PAYS HIS CLIENTS' LOSSES AND DIES HAPPY

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Leopold Zimmermann, veteran Wall street banker who devoted his final years to strenuous labors to repay clients who had lost in his firm, died at his home in his 79th year today, and presumably died happy, for he could see the way clear to pay up the last dollar.

Although well past the three score and ten mark when his firm, Zimmermann & Forshay, was carried into receivership by the collapse of the old German currency, he was not content that his former clients should get merely a receiver's settlement. He was allowed to resume business, and voluntarily paid out substantial sums from his earnings from the new firm of the same name to redeem his pledges to old clients.

Most of the losses had been paid off at his death, and final adjudication of a $500,000 claim now before the mixed claims commission is expected to result in a complete settlement. When the firm suspended losses exceeded $6,000,000.

Mr. Zimmermann was born in Ober-Seemen, Germany, in 1853, came to the United States at the age of 16, and founded Zimmermann & Forshay in 1872. In 1902 he was made an honorary citizen of Ober-Seemen because of his benefactions to the town.

British Train Breaks Its Own Day Old Speed Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Cheltenham Flyer, the Great Western railway train which yesterday broke the world's record for a fastest start to stop run, today broke its own mark by covering the 77¼ mile run from Swindon to London in 58½ minutes, at an average speed of 79.28 miles per hour. Yesterday's run was made in 59½ minutes, an average of 77.91 miles per hour."

Set for Oct. 5

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The trial of the suit for $500,000 damages for alleged alienation of affections and $100,000 alleged libel brought by Riza von Sternberg, divorced wife of Josef, the movie director, against Marlene Dietrich, German film actress, was set for Oct. 5 in a notice of trial filed today in Supreme court. The fact that the suit had been filed was made public in Los Angeles after Miss Dietrich's husband, Rudolf Sieber, had arrived there from Berlin to visit her and their child. He said the suit did not disturb him because he was not jealous.

PHYSICIAN ENDS LIFE IN OFFICE; ILLNESS BLAMED

Dr. William C. Perrow, 45 years old, for six years a practicing physician in Chicago, was found dead last evening in his living quarters behind the office he occupied at 2140 South Wabash avenue. Apparently he had killed himself by slashing his throat and wrists with a razor, which was found near his right hand.

Dr. Perrow was a nephew of Mrs. Carter Glass, wife of the United States senator from Virginia, and a graduate of the Chattanooga Medical college. Friends said that he had been suffering from ulcers of the stomach, and recently returned from Arizona, where he went in the hope of improving his health. He had told other physicians of his despondency over the illness.

The body was found by Dr. Percy Lyle, a foot specialist with offices in the same building.

WOMAN'S LEAP FROM LINER HAS A GODIVA FINISH

Loses Pajamas Instead of Her Life.

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A lady who had been crossed in love and who had tried, energetically but vainly, to end it all on the bottom of the Atlantic, was taken off the Italian liner Augustus today when that ship came into port.

Her name is Mrs. Beatrice Bradford. She is 33, dark and strikingly handsome. According to ship's officers who questioned her, she lives in Auburn, N. Y., and was recently divorced. She is now in a hospital under treatment for bruises and internal injuries suffered when she leaped from the deck of the Augustus.

The incident occurred at 5:15 p. m. yesterday. Most of the passengers of the Italian liner were in the movie theater and there were few people about when Mrs. Bradford suddenly appeared on deck in gay pajamas.

She Dives Over Side.

With a wave of her hand she climbed to the railing, poised like a bird, and plunged over the side, dropping almost fifty feet to the surface of the ocean with a resounding splash.

Several elderly ladies who saw the woman jump dropped novels and fancy work, got to their feet, and screamed in chorus. The deck steward came running up and gave an alarm, and in another moment the harsh throated siren of the Augustus was tearing to pieces the quiet of a summer evening. Passengers came pouring out of the movie theater, wild with excitement, and demanding instant information.

The Augustus veered off her course—she was then some 300 miles east of Ambrose lightship—and began to circle the spot where Mrs. Bradford was bobbing like a highly colored cork. Second Officer Capezza drove a boat's crew into a fever of activity and a lifeboat was over the side in no time.

The Pajamas Vanish.

It appeared at that moment that the lady had abandoned any notion of drowning, for she began to swim vigorously.

She deftly rid herself of the gay pajamas, a proceeding which Second Officer Capezza and his motor boat crew, now rapidly nearing the swimmer, viewed with perturbation and alarm. They were up with her in a moment and it was all too evident that Lady Godiva had lost her horse. She was pulled unresistingly aboard the lifeboat, tactfully wrapped in a blanket, and in the course of time returned to her stateroom.

NEGRO ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Pinkney Briscs, 25 years old, 9016 Green Bay avenue, colored, was accidentally shot and wounded in the leg yesterday by John Manarsh, 16 years old, 9014 Green Bay avenue, who was firing at targets.

GLADYS HEMPEL WED TO SYDNEY GARDINER AGAIN AFTER DIVORCE

Dispatches from Reno, Nev., last night revealed that the one time Gladys Hempel, Chicago society woman, who on Monday divorced Clarence S. Bishop, Chicago lumberman and her third husband, yesterday was remarried in Reno to Sydney Gardiner, her second husband. Gardiner is a Chicago broker. The marriage was Mrs. Gardiner's fourth since 1918.

In that year she was married to Edward Tilden. Tilden had previously been divorced by his first wife, Frances Garnett Tilden. In 1922 Mrs. Gladys Hempel Tilden won a divorce on charges of cruelty. Her first marriage to Sydney Gardiner took place in Los Angeles in July of 1923, the couple having journeyed that far, the bride declared, to avoid publicity.

They returned to Chicago and took up a residence on North State street. About two years ago, however, the news of Mrs. Gardiner's marriage to Bishop was learned even before it became known that she had divorced Gardiner.

Until Monday few of the Bishops' friends had known that their marriage was ended. Mr. Bishop is a member of the Chicago club and was said to have occupied a room there, but could not be found last night. He is secretary and treasurer of the Bishop Lumber company.

FIND MOTHER OF BABY LEFT WITH INDIAN WOMAN

The mother of Betty Louise Fuller, 3 years old, who was found in the custody of Mrs. Martha Thompson, an Indian woman, in Rockford last July, was found last night in a rooming house at 867 North La Salle street.

Upon her release from jail in Rockford after she had convinced police that the mother, Mrs. Florence Fuller, had abandoned the child after placing it in her care, Mrs. Thompson returned to her home at 58 East Grand avenue. She started a search for the mother. Yesterday she informed Chicago avenue police that the child's mother was living at the La Salle street address.

Last night the two women argued as to which should be given custody of the child, both saying they wanted her. They finally agreed to go together today to the Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5059 Vincennes avenue, and settle the dispute there.

Neely, acting collector of internal revenue for the northern district of Illinois. The decrease as compared to the third quarter of last year was almost 50 per cent.

GANDHI TWISTS LION'S TAIL WITH "FREE INDIA" CRY

Demands Partnership in British Empire.

Seeks Honorable Partnership.

"Take these two nations together and I ask you whether India free, completely independent, as Great Britain is now independent—whether an honorable partnership would not be beneficial even in terms of your domestic affairs?"

Gandhi's playing of notes on England's financial crisis was like that of a master musician. You could almost see him playing with those claw-like hands deftly moving along the strings of a harp.

For a man who by the flick of his hand can throw 300,000,000 persons into revolt the mahatma was humble in the extreme. Some said he was purposely so. Yet he did not shave off a fraction from his demand for complete independence.

"I have come here in a spirit of co-operation," he said. "I have no wish to embarrass the government's authority. I am but a poor humble agent, acting on the behalf of the all-India national congress."

Recites History of His Party.

And, as if to counteract by himself the powerful propaganda of the London press which has carried many articles recently trying to discount Gandhi's position, he explained in detail the history of his party, how it was founded by an Englishman, Allen Octavius Hume, and how Hindus, Mohammedans, Parsees, Christians and even women had been at its helm as presidents and finally how it had won its present powerful hold on the country.

"I hope I won't jar you by my party's mandate which I have come to plead," he said, smiling at the English delegates.

He then read the mandate which was drawn up at Karachi by the Indian congress in April and at which Gandhi was instructed to take nothing less than independence, meaning control over the army, foreign affairs, and finance, and also to insist on a scrutiny of India's debt to the British.

Attacks First Conference.

"If you can convince me that these claims are inimical to the interests of the dumb and half-starved millions I represent, then I will revise them," he said. "I am open to conviction, but even so I shall have to ask my principals to consent to that revision."

Gandhi threw overboard the Labor rule's first round table conference with a few biting words.

"I have carefully studied its conclusions, also Prime Minister MacDonald's statement giving the considered policy of his majesty's government," the "holy man" exclaimed. "It falls far short of our claims.

"In the Delhi pact with Lord Irwin, we accepted the principle of a federation, responsibility at the center with safeguards in the interests of India."

Rejects Political Constitution.

Gandhi then screwed up his eyes and said slowly:

"But I will never be satisfied with a mere political constitution which when read would seem to give India all she desires, but in reality gives her nothing."

The mahatma pressed his claim to secede from the British empire at will by declaring:

"If we are intent on complete independence, it is not from any sense of arrogance and not because we want to parade before the universe on how we broke away from the British. We contemplate only a partnership.

"There was a time when I prided myself upon being a British subject. I have ceased for many years to call myself a British subject. But I aspire to be a citizen not of the empire, but of the commonwealth—an indissoluble partnership, but not one superimposed upon one nation by another. Hence, my congress will insist that either party will have the right to sever connections."

Then while the British statesmen showed their surprise at the astounding idea of an independent India being able to withdraw from the mighty empire, Gandhi skillfully harped back at the picture of Great Britain on the brink of financially ruin. It was his big playing card today and he played it well.

"I understand that British statesmen today are wholly engrossed in their domestic affairs and are trying to make two ends meet," he continued. "We could not expect them to do anything less. I thought by coming here at such a time we might be looked upon as interlopers—and yet possibly not. It is possible that British ministers might consider the round table conference of primary importance even in the terms of their domestic affairs."

And thence he sped to another unpleasant subject—debts. Gandhi is asking Great Britain to return $3,000,000,000.

He fairly mauled the timid Parsee who yesterday assured the British that India did not want to bring up the debt question again.

Urges Debt Adjustment.

"If there is a stock taking made between the incoming and outgoing parties, that transaction should be subject to an audit and an adjustment," he said. "India's congress will not be guilty of a crime in asking that the nation should understand what it was taking over."

And then he so slyly added:

"I know that the British people do not want to saddle India with a single burden it should not legitimately bear, and I say that congress never dreamed of repudiating a single claim or burden it should justly discharge. If we are to live as an honorable nation, worthy of commanding credit from the world, we will pay every farthing of our legitimate debt."

Passes the Buck.

In one concluding sentence Gandhi attempted to demolish Great Britain's whole approach to the round table conference—that is, discussing minute details before agreeing to fundamentals.

"This is my position then, and you cannot expect me to fill in all the details and tell you what I mean by control over the army, finance, fiscal, and economic policies," Gandhi stated, and thereby, he deliberately passed the buck.

Like Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Gandhi's speech struck his listeners with such awe that there was hardly any applause as he finished. Maharajas, Indian knights, even Englishmen seemed to be gripped as if under a spell.

Britain's Dig at Gandhi.

But British diplomacy was almost equal to the occasion.

Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, jumped to his feet after the veteran Pandit Malaviya seconded Gandhi's remarks and said he was glad to "hear the very frank expressions from the new members. Obviously they contained very controversial issues. But this was no time to enter into general controversies. We must get down to work out details."

So in the afternoon the federal structures committee began to work out the details. Gandhi attended, but did not open his mouth.

BRITAIN REQUESTS PRINCE OF INDIA TO GET OUT OF LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The heir of Maharajah Sir Chandra Jung, hereditary prime minister of Nepal, has been asked by the India office to leave London during the Indian round table conference. The young prince is studying economics here.

Nepal is an independent kingdom, lying between India and China. The king is considered so sacred that no one is permitted to see his face. He leaves affairs to a line of hereditary prime ministers with whom his family intermarries.

The young prince is said to be not sympathetic with the sanctity of the agreement with Great Britain under which Nepal supplies 50,000 mercenary troops to the Indian army. The king of Nepal, like the nizam of Hyderabad, premier prince of India, has special treaties with Britain.

LONDON HEARS OF TWO PLOTS FOR TERROR IN INDIA

Bengalese and Reds Hold Sessions in Berlin.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A round table conference in two colors—red and black—was held in Berlin yesterday, and somehow, despite the greatest secrecy, the purport of the deliberations of these terrorists and communists leaked out in London this morning.

The black conference, composed of 67 masked Bengal terrorists, met last night to plan a campaign of blood, terror and scientific murder. Black Hands are the order of the day. Terrorists from Moscow, Paris, Brussels, Turin, Zurich, and Cleveland, O., attended. Besides English men, women and children are to be ruthlessly destroyed when they expose themselves. All Indians employed by Britishers are marked for murder.

16 Murderers from India.

Thus the black 67 decreed and 16 of the most scientific Bengalese murderers in captivity will leave for India shortly to commence work. Each of these regards the hangman's rope as the Order of the Garter, and when they are caught 16 other young hopefuls will be ready to take their places.

Food supplies for Europeans in India are to be blown up and an incessant campaign against railroads, making night travel a glorious adventure, has been planned.

The Red conference was convened earlier today. It was not so spectacular as only one murder has been planned for the moment. This is to be most sensational and will take place within the next few days just as a sort of indication to Mahatma Gandhi that he is not going to get all the publicity.

Time Out for Sandwiches.

The committee sat from 10:30 o'clock in the morning until midnight with time out only for cheese sandwiches. An important decision was made regarding the importation of arms into India, especially powerful automatics and rare chemicals for high explosives.

One of the delegates, it is understood, bemoaned the fact that often when there is not an Englishman in sight there are plenty of firearms available, but when hundreds of British assemble at race courses, making excellent targets, nobody has a gun.

Such are the problems of the Reds, but at any rate, according to the news reaching London this morning, it will not be long now.

GANDHI MEETS FRUIT POTENTATE AND GETS CALIFORNIA ORANGES

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Gandhi met a king today, not his own sovereign, King George, but the "Pearly King of Hoxton."

He is England's most famous fruit dealer and dresses in a coat of resplendent pearls. Gandhi addressed him as "your majesty" and was in turn addressed as "sainted seer."

The fruit potentate then presented the Indian leader with two crates of California oranges.

WEST AUSTRALIA MOVES TO SET UP OWN DOMINION

Demands Referendum on Secession Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 15.—Lose of the state of Western Australia, one of the largest in area in the commonwealth, faces the Australian government following the demand of the state for a referendum which would create Western Australia a separate dominion in the British empire.

Wholehearted support of the plan for secession has been given by Sir James Mitchell, premier of the state, and fresh stimulus to the movement was gained from a recent speech in which he pointed the way to the citizens of his state.

Denies Tax Evasion.

The title of the organization laboring for the referendum is significantly that of the "Dominion league." At its head is Harold K. Watson.

Indignantly repudiating the assertion that Western Australia seeks separate status in order to escape paying her share of interest on Australia's heavy public debt, Watson declares that the state seeks, rather, to shoulder her fair proportion of the burden.

That a referendum would succeed is the league's conviction. In four nights a voluntary canvass was made over a selected area and revealed that of 139 persons visited 502 were willing to sign the petition for a vote to be taken.

Would Bar Eastern States.

"Eastern states will have no part in the referendum," Watson declared. "The secession move is not directed against the people of the eastern states, but against the federal parliament, and it appears that most of the other states are beginning to realize the futility of the federation.

"Secession means release from the clutches of Canberra, that $60,000,000 monument of legislative incompetence. It means one parliament, fewer parliamentarians and less cost to the people of Western Australia. We believe that secession will attract English and American capital to develop our vast natural resources and promote our industries."

STAR WED

Mrs. Lewis Ayres (Lola Lane).

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Lew Ayres, 22, who vaulted in two years from college days at the University of Arizona to motion picture fame, and Lola Lane, 22, Hollywood screen actress, eloped here today and were married. Ayres starred in "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Judge William Orr performed the ceremony. Leroy Mason, Hollywood actor, who owns a ranch here, and Louise Graham were witnesses.

Immediately following the wedding Ayres and his bride ran for their automobile, shouting their next address would be Wyoming, where they plan to spend their honeymoon as campers in the Jackson Hole country.

SIR JOHN SIMON URGES TARIFF AS A 'LIFE SAVER'

Free Trader Drops Old Mantle in Commons.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The imposition of tariffs for revenue loom nearer in Great Britain as a result of important political declarations in the house of commons tonight during the debate on the emergency budget resolutions. Sir John Simon, prominent Liberal and free trade champion, stumped emphatically in favor of an immediate tariff as a solution for the country's present adverse trade balance.

"I believe that we are forced to abandon in this emergency a system of free imports," he definitely declared. "Swift action is essential. Britain cannot wait for long range remedies. All other measures for remedying the adverse balance take time; therefore an immediate emergency tariff is the only practical solution. This seems to me to be as necessary and as essential a step in the present emergency as the economies and taxation step the national government took the other day."

Paints a Dreary Picture.

Sir John painted a dreary picture of the gradual fall in Britain's "visible" and "invisible" exports to a point where they ceased to balance the imports.

In 1913, he pointed out, England filled the gap between imports and exports entirely out of her earnings, and all other "unearned" interests on foreign investments, except one-sixth was available for reinvestment. That, he said, represented a favorable trade balance of about $750,000,000. In 1928, the adverse balance in visible trade was $1,790,000,000 and to meet this Britain was forced to rely on one-half, instead of one-sixth interest, on foreign investments.

In 1930, the adverse trade balance was even higher and the entire income on foreign investments, except $195,000,000, had to be used, commons was told. This year the whole income on these investments will not be sufficient, and when the full allowance has been made for invisible exports, an actual, and not merely an apparent balance of between $250,000,000 and $500,000,000 will be against Britain.

Churchill Speaks on Gold.

"This situation," said Sir John, unless checked, will inevitable mean bankruptcy and a renewed flight from the pound sterling. An immediate check is therefore needed to avert disaster."

Winston Churchill's contribution to the debate dealt chiefly with the gold problem. He complained bitterly that neither the United States nor France, which hold between them two-thirds o the world's gold, were using this bullion. If this accumulation continued, he said, the nations of the world might be forced seriously to consider another medium of exchange. In the meantime, he urged an international conference on gold. Churchill also spoke for tariffs.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden opposed an emergency tariff as a "life-saver" for British trade.

"If the purpose of a tariff is stop imports in order to do something to redress the trade balance, it would have to be of a prohibitory character," he said. "No tariff of 25, 30 or 40 per cent could keep out all the imports. There can be no such thing as an emergency tariff. Past experience shows that a tariff once introduced lasts for years."

WADSWORTH'S SON, WET, WINS IN N. Y. PRIMARY

New York, Sept. 15.— [Special.] — Chief interest in state-wide primaries centered today in three contests for assemblymen upstate, involving the wet and dry issue.

In one race, in Livingstone county, the wet candidate won at the rate of 3 to 2. The victor was James J. Wadsworth, son of James W. Wadsworth, the former United States senator and a national leader of the fight against prohibition. Young Wadsworth, in starting his political career in the New York state legislature, is following in the footsteps of his father.

GIRL WIFE FED ON SCRAPS, SHE CHARGES IN SUIT

Mrs. Cecelia Downey, 18 years old, in a superior court divorce bill filed yesterday, charged that she and her four months old baby were kept in one room and fed on scraps from the table of her husband's parents because they opposed their son's marriage. She also charged that she was locked out of the house on Sept. 1 and forced to sleep with the baby in an automobile.

In the bill, drawn by Attorney Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Downey said that she and her husband, Thomas J. Downey, eloped to Crown Point and were married Nov. 2, 1927. He was then a freshman at Mount Carmel High school and she was a Hyde Park High school student. They kept the marriage a secret until early this year when Downey told his parents. They hid him by moving to 8131 Anthony avenue. Mrs. Downey charges, and not until after the birth of the baby, Joan, was she able to find him.

Mrs. Downey will appear before Judge Harry B. Miller today.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Crumley, 68, of near Mellott, Ind., was fatally injured and her companion, Mrs. Edward Holen, 46, of Mellott, was seriously hurt when the auto in which they were riding collided with a truck tonight two miles west of Veedersburg.

RIVAL POLICE OF BROOKFIELD WAR WITH WARRANTS

The game of arresting policemen in Brookfield took on added vigor early today when Village President J. F. Mansfield obtained warrants charging one of the contending chiefs, E. J. O'Connor, and four of his men with impersonating officers.

One of the warrants was served on Fred W. Cox, a sergeant working under O'Connor, and the county highway police were looking for the others named. Bond was posted for the release of Cox and he went on with his work of policing—or impersonating policing—the village.

President Mansfield's appointee as chief, Nicholas Ferdinand, and four of the latter's satellites were arrested on warrants taken out on Monday by Village Trustee John T. O'Brien, who claims that O'Connor is the legal chief and that Mansfield can't fire him without the consent of the village board. The board, according to O'Brien, will vote 4 to 2 to keep the old police force. The O'Brien-O'Connor forces still have possession of the police station.

BRITAIN FACES NAVAL MUTINY OVER PAY CUTS

Calls Off Maneuvers of Atlantic Fleet.

Duke. Feeling was running high in the naval canteens there tonight.

Under the new wage scale proposed for the navy, a chief petty officer would be cut from about $2.12 to $1.87 per day. The pay of a petty officer after three years' service rises to $2.25 per day. This is cut to $2. A leading seaman is cut from $1.31 to $1.09 a day, an able seaman from $1 to 75 cents, and an ordinary seaman from 81 cents to 50 cents. A lieutenant commander is cut only from $6.91 to $6.66 per day. The pay of a vice admiral is reduced from $27.50 per day to $24.75.

"There is no equality about the thing at all," protested one of the sailors. "A vice admiral is docked only ten per cent of his pay, while they are taking away one-quarter of ours. All grades of officers suffer less than we do, and we didn't have a living wage to start with. They call the British navy a silent service, but we have got to talk a little now."

During the war the pay of the British navy remained virtually at the pre-war level, despite the increased cost of living. After the war the whole question was reviewed by the admiralty and substantial increases in the prevailing rates for officers and men were ordered by the government. Since then the navy has been free from discontent over the pay question.

Try to Hush Up Trouble.

Unofficial intimations have been conveyed to British newspapers that the government hopes they will content themselves tomorrow morning with the bare statement of the case by the admiralty and not run the risk of making serious trouble by elaborating the matter before a careful investigation.

It is evident there is fear among the officials of trouble with police, soldiers, and even school teachers because of pay cuts ordered as part of the plan for balancing the budget. Ever since the government program was announced the country has been flooded with propaganda denouncing the economies as needless and as something dictated by American and French bankers as the only condition under which they would assist England restore security to the pound sterling.

As a result of this propaganda and many speeches along the same line from Labor members of parliament, it has been feared there would be disturbances on the part of the unemployed, whose state insurance has been cut 10 per cent. Nothing in that quarter, however, has happened yet, but this revolt among the seamen is a blow coming out of a clear sky.

RECALL MUTINY OF 1797.

Mutiny has been rare in the ten centuries of Great Britain's naval history. Jack Tar has always stood for all that is loyal.

There was one outstanding exception—the mutiny in the grand fleet on April 15, 1797, after Sir John Jervis had beaten the Spanish at Cape St. Vincent. This is always referred to as "the great mutiny."

It was a mutiny in every sense of the word. The men asked for better food and sixteen ounces to the pound—they had been getting the "sailor's pound" of fourteen ounces—more humane treatment of wounded men, no deductions for time in sick bay, and an occasional day ashore.

Mutiny in British Navy

Arrows point to four British ports, Invergordon, Plymouth, Chatham and Rosyth, where unrest has broken out in navy over wage reductions.

Government Agrees to Demands.

The government consented to all demands, granted free pardon to the fleet generally, including the ringleaders, and there was peace on the fighting ships, but not for long. The men, chafing at the delay in passing the laws necessary to meet their demands for more pay, hoisted the red flag again, in May, at Portsmouth.

On the London, a ship of the line, the men from below decks disarmed the officers when a lieutenant shot at a mutinous seaman. The government dispatched Lord Howe, affectionately known by the sailors as "Black Dick," to settle matters. The men liked him and listened to him when he promised that parliament would give them all they had asked.

Meantime the seamen stationed in The Nore broke into mutiny under Richard Parker, a fiery leader, who caused the men to set fire to the Inflexible, where a court martial was sitting. Several officers were flogged by their crews. Eleven ships ordered to Holland turned back to join the rebels.

Burn Effigy of Premier.

Parker hanged an effigy of the prime minister from the yardarm of the Sandwich, but by June 10 the mutiny began to fade. Two ships hauled down their red flag and the Sandwich fired on them. Then the Sandwich crew turned Parker over to the officers and he was hanged on the same yardarm from which he had hanged the effigy.

The mutiny, meanwhile, had spread to the fleet in Portugal. It ended when the leaders were strung up on the yardarm of the St. George. At Cape of Good Hope station, too, the men mutinied, but Admiral Pringle's severe treatment of the conspirators brought the mutiny to a swift end.

HOW PAY OF ENLISTED MEN IN BRITISH AND U. S. NAVY COMPARES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Pay of enlisted men in the United States navy is on a monthly basis and ranges from $126 a month base pay for chief petty officers down to $21 for apprentice seamen. This is equivalent to $4.14 a day for chief petty officers and 70 cents a day for apprentice seamen.

The American naval pay and the proposed British naval pay, on a monthly basis, compare as follows:

	United States.	British.
Chief petty officer	$126.00	$60.00
First class petty officer	84.00	56.10
Seaman, first class	54.00	32.40
Seaman, second class	36.00	22.50
Apprentice seaman	21.00	15.00

There is a 10 per cent addition in the American navy for four years' service and for every four years thereafter an additional 5 per cent increase.

BOXER KILLED BY PUNCH IN FRIENDLY BOUT

Jack Easley, 22 years old, 1510 West Congress street, died yesterday at the Jefferson Park hospital as a result of injuries he suffered last Thursday in a friendly boxing bout at the West Side Y. M. C. A., 1550 West Monroe street.

His opponent was Roland Smith, 25 years old, 1660 West Congress street. Both men were trained by Fritz Puff, 510 South Ashland avenue. During the bout Easley fell to the floor, complaining that he had been hurt. It was found at the hospital that a blow had injured his liver.

The police were satisfied that the injury was accidental, but Puff and Smith were ordered to attend the inquest, which will be held today.

BRIAND RESCUES U. S. OF EUROPE PLAN FROM FOES

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Aristide Briand's commission for the study of an European union got a new lease of life from the league of nations' assembly today but its functions during the second year probably will be broadened to include problems of universal, rather than mere European concern.

The life of the commission was saved by the veteran French foreign minister himself after it had been severely criticised by Japanese and Persian delegates as duplicating the work of permanent league organizations and "attempting to solve world questions on a European basis."

23 Merchants Are Fined $375 for Short Weights

REVEAL FUGITIVE ARIANI AS BANKER FOR GANGSTERS

Secret Banking in Italian Money Disclosed.

Saverio Ariani, fugitive president of the First Italian State bank, 1201 Taylor street, conducted that institution as "a bank within a bank," according to evidence disclosed by investigators yesterday. Ariani is under indictment on charges of absconding with $138,000 of the bank's money.

In his public or "show case" bank, Ariani transacted business in United States currency, employed an approved system of audit and control and exercised enough discretion in his loans to justify the report of bank examiners that the bank was sound prior to his looting of the cash fund, the investigators declared.

In his secret bank, the investigators said, Ariani dealt only in lire, the Italian currency, keeping his records in his own vest pocket, the while accepting deposits and issuing receipts without being detected even by a countryman, whom he had hired as an expert auditor and controller.

Reveals Gangsters as Patrons.

In his public bank, according to the auditor, Louis Sormani, the fugitive banker carried the accounts of ten or fifteen minor gangsters, none of whose names he remembered, but three of whom, he recalled, had been "put on the spot" with fatal results, leaving estates to be settled by the public administrator.

The bank, Sormani said, had once handled a mortgage transaction for Joe Montana, notorious west side dive keeper; handled a commercial checking account for a theater operated by Montana's son, and formerly carried a savings account for the late Diamond Joe Esposito.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, to whom Sormani made these revelations, had previously learned of the existence of the secret bank through the complaints of several Italian housewives. They had come to his office with Ariani's private receipt books in hand, one, in particular, complaining of the loss of 17,000 lire.

The bank records showed that the woman's name had never been entered as a depositor. Investigations on other depositors of Italian currency brought the same result. Sormani declared he had no knowledge of the secret bank. The bank directors admitted knowing of it in a vague way, but said the responsibility was Ariani's alone.

Sees Explanation of Flight.

Mr. Ayers believed it likely the explanation of Ariani's flight might lie in the records of the secret bank. It is probable, he holds, that Ariani extended the facilities of the secret bank to hoodlums to enable them to evade a scrutiny of their wealth by income tax investigators. The secret bank, Mr. Ayers surmises, became insolvent and Ariani was compelled to flee for his own safety.

Part of the $138,000 has already been traced, the prosecutor announced. He predicted that indictments would soon be returned against several of Ariani's associates. His wife, Mariana, and his sons, Carlo and Romolo, are in custody.

Robbed While Admiring Building at University

Stanley T. Rolfe, 5552 Drexel avenue, stopped last night to admire the architecture of the new University of Chicago fieldhouse, under construction at 56th street and Greenwood avenue. While he was looking two men with pistols came along, took $55 from him, struck him on the head with a pistol butt and went away.

CAPITAL GRAND JURY GETS 50 MORE CASES OF POLICE BRUTALITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The federal investigation of police brutality in the national capital, which has already resulted in the indictment of five policemen on assault charges, is scheduled to enter its second phase tomorrow when United States Attorney Leo A. Rover presents evidence in about fifty more third degree cases to the grand jury.

Department of justice agents are reported to have unearthed evidence involving some twenty-five members of the local police force.

It is probable that the jury will indict a number of the accused policemen, according to those close to the investigation, who pointed out that all those accused in the previous cases were indicted.

REJECTS ALL OF BANKS' BIDS ON STATE DEPOSITS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett today announced rejection of all bids on state deposits. He said that acceptance of one-half of 1 per cent the rates offered on active accounts, would result in a loss of $500,000 to the general revenue fund. He requests a rate "consistent with sound business judgment and civil patriotism."

EDWARD BARRETT.

In asking bankers to submit a higher rate of interest to protect the revenue funds from further shrinkage Mr. Barrett urged them to consider the problem from the standpoint of citizens interested in the welfare of Illinois. An increased rate, he said, would serve as a step toward the prevention of any additional tax burden.

New Bids Oct. 16.

Approximately 1,000 bids were considered. It was announced new bids will be received Oct. 16.

"Inasmuch as it will cause a loss to the general revenue fund of the state of approximately $500,000 to accept the bids as now made, I have decided to reject them at this time," Mr. Barrett's statement said.

Urges Welfare of State.

"While I fully realize the unusual conditions of the money market, and that the depression and economic stress had doubtless created a situation wherein the banks cannot pay as much for funds because of current call money rates, still I believe better offers should be forthcoming.

"Obviously this is a time when the interests of our state and its welfare and the problems of citizenship must be paramount."

Hold Woman and 2 Men After Man Is Found Dead

Three persons were held yesterday by the Deering street police for an inquest today into the death of Joseph Remington, 31 years old, 7251 Langley avenue, who was found dead early yesterday in the apartment of Arthur Lande, 30 years old, 2938 Lyman avenue. His skull had been fractured. Those held are Lande, a truck driver, his wife, Lillian, 28 years old, and her brother, Walter Siedlecki, 2709 Hillock street.

A NEW THEORY: ANCHOR USED TO DROWN COLLINGS

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—At the close of the fifth day of their investigation of the strange story of piracy told by Mrs. Benjamin F. Collings, whose husband disappeared from his cabin cruiser Penguin, Nassau county authorities announced their positive belief today that murder was done on the yacht off Lloyd's Neck, L. I.

The belief that Collings was murdered sprang chiefly from the new testimony of four members of a yachting party which found the helpless Penguin and towed her ashore.

They insisted today that they heard a man struggling in the water not far from the abandoned yacht.

Another disclosure was that the 45-pound forward anchor of the Penguin had been severed from its hawser and possibly had been tied to Collings when he was tossed overboard. This would explain why his body has not been found. So authorities planned to grapple for the body tomorrow.

GAS COMPANY OPENS ITS CASE FOR NEW RATES

Texas Pipe Line Cost Put at $75,000,000.

More than $75,000,000 has been spent so far in building the pipe lines through which natural gas is to be brought to Chicago from Texas, according to figures presented yesterday to the Illinois commerce commission by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

R. W. GALLAGHER.

The gas company is asking permission to mix the natural gas with the manufactured product and to establish new rates. The proposed new rates for domestic use of the blended gas, the company says, are 3½ per cent less than the present rates. The $75,000,000 construction figure was cited in the beginning of the company's endeavor to show that the cost to the public will be reasonable in proportion to the investment and the cost of operation.

Ralph W. Gallagher, a director of the Continental Construction corporation, which built the pipe line from Texas to Joliet, and William G. Rudd, operating vice president of the gas company, gave testimony as witnesses before Assistant Commerce Commissioner Robert H. Farrell. Attorney Francis L. Daily represented the gas company and Assistant Corporation Counsels Joseph Grossman, William Furlong, and Frank J. Breen represented the city.

Mr. Gallagher, who is president of the Eastern Ohio Gas company of Cleveland and an official of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, said the investment is based on an expected 15 years of operation, although possibly the supply of natural gas will last much longer. The contracts for the construction work were let through competitive bidding and the costs were reasonable, he testified.

The Continental company will operate in conjunction with the Texoma Natural Gas company, which has 365,000 acres of gas land under lease and an additional 244,000 acres under contract, Gallagher said. It will sell its product to the company formed by the Insull interests—the Chicago District Pipeline company—at Joliet, he explained.

COMPANY LISTS CAR LINES FOR ONE MAN SERVICE

Plea Heard by State Commerce Board.

Street car lines on which the Surface Lines are seeking permission to operate one-man cars were listed last night. Yesterday morning an application to the Illinois Commerce commission for the right to operate one man cars on any street failed to win consideration when the commission indicated an unwillingness to grant that general authority and directed the attorneys to return today with specific information on which routes it is proposed to make the change.

FRANCIS X. BUSCH.

The car company then named the lines on which it wishes to have the motorman collect fares, as follows:

Pershing road, 26th street, Root street, 75th street, 59th-61st street, 67th-69th street, 31st street, 51st-55th sreet, 18th street, Montrose avenue, Windsor Park, South Deering, Hammond, Whiting, and Morgan-Racine.

For One-Man Cars at Night.

On those lines the company asks the right to substitute the one-man cars during the entire day. For one-man service at night only the company listed the following lines:

Indiana avenue, 79th street, Ashland avenue, Wallace-Racine, 47th street, 35th street, North Damen avenue, Chicago avenue, Elston avenue, Lawrence avenue, and Van Buren street. The company named Elston avenue and Van Buren street as lines on which one-man service on Sunday is proposed.

The Surface Lines officials say the proposed service will affect the operation of fewer than 200 cars. This economy is necessary because of the loss of ten million dollars in gross revenue since 1929, due to the depression and unemployment, the officials assert.

Promise to Use More Cars.

The company's statement added that it might reduce the cost of operation by taking off a number of cars but did not want to do that because it would be detrimental to the service. Instead the company promised in the statement to use approximately 13⅓ per cent more one man cars on the lines listed than are now in service as two men cars. It announced its agreement to continue the existing wage rate for another year and declared this management does not want to discharge or lay off car men because of slack business.

Attorney Francis X. Busch appeared for the company and argued before the commissioners that the only alternative to a reduction of service is an increase in fares. Corporation Counsel Sexton asked that no decision be made by the commission until he has had time to ascertain the position of the city council on the proposal.

Attorney William Levine, representing the carmen's union, opposed the proposal to permit the company to have one man do the work of two.

EMPLOY JOBLESS TO HELP POLICE, MAYOR PROPOSES

Plan to Be Presented to Governor's Board.

Mayor Cermak yesterday suggested a plan whereby unemployment relief this winter might be combined with reinforcement of Chicago's undermanned police department.

His plan is that the governor's commission on unemployment, now at work on a campaign to raise $8,800,000 for relief work in Chicago and Cook county, use part of that fund to employ jobless ex-service men with families to perform duties now done by policemen, but which do not fall within the strict classification of police work.

Suggests Work for Jobless.

Among such assignments the mayor mentioned the details of patrolmen to schools about the city to guard children against traffic hazards. The patrolmen on such details spend three hours in the vicinity of schools, in the morning, at noon, and in the afternoon. Unemployed men might also fill hospital details and do clerical work in the department, releasing regular members of the force for street duty, Mayor Cermak suggested.

It was estimated that the plan suggested by Mayor Cermak might release as many as 600 policemen, 10 per cent of the department personnel, for regular crime fighting activities. The mayor will present the plan, in more detailed form, to relief authorities at a later date.

17,000 Seeking Police Jobs.

"There are now 17,000 men on the list of applicants for civil service appointments to the police department," Mayor Cermak said. "All of those men have been given physical examinations. I think that from that group alone we might select a sufficient number who are in need of relief to fill the jobs I have suggested."

Swarms of Locusts Invade 800 Mile Area in Argentina

SANTA FE, Argentina, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Swarms of locusts have invaded 800 square miles in the Argentine provinces of Santa Fe, Cordoba and Santiago del Estero, threatening crops almost ready for harvest, including wheat, maize and sugar cane.

MURRAY'S WIFE GIVES BAIL FOR TED NEWBERRY

Mrs. Jennie Murray, 1144 West Harrison street, wife of James Murray, formerly a minor politician, who served five and a half years in the Atlanta penitentiary for complicity in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery, yesterday posted realty valued at $25,000 as a part of the surety on the $15,000 federal bond for Ted Newberry, reputed chief of Al Capone's north side beer territory. The property is at Central Park boulevard and Fifth avenue.

The bond was set by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on Sept. 1 to guarantee Newberry's appearance in Peoria to face an indictment, returned last April, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The remainder of the surety on Newberry's bond was posted by John J. Panton, 109 South Parkside avenue, on a building at that address said to be worth $45,000.

Frank Uva, 3500 Princeton avenue, one of the 68 men indicted with Al Capone on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $3,500 yesterday by Commissioner Walker on a charge of transporting beer. Uva was captured two weeks ago when the truck of beer on which he was riding crashed into a post after a chase through the Gold Coast.

LAWYER ACCUSES RIDING MASTER OF TAKING HIS WIFE

Jacob W. Horwitz, attorney, 520 Stratford place, yesterday obtained from Magistrate Harms of Niles Center a warrant charging J. W. McCabe, owner of a riding academy at McCormick boulevard and Main street, with adultery.

McCabe, who lives at 4032 North Francisco avenue, and Horwitz's wife, Lucy, disappeared together on Sunday, according to the attorney. He said that his wife had taken riding lessons from McCabe. The Horwitzes are parents of three children. McCabe has two.

The period of the acquaintance of the riding master and Mrs. Horwitz was only three weeks.

HEAVY RAINFALL OVER MIDWEST; MORE DUE TODAY

While a drizzling rain and mist enveloped Chicago yesterday, many localities in the middle west reported their heaviest downpour of the year. Only .25 of an inch of rain fell in Chicago up to 8 o'clock last night.

All records were broken in Paris, Ill., where 6.75 inches of rain fell in ten hours, raising the level of the twin lakes 12 feet. At Tuscola, Ill., 5.31 inches of rain fell from 5 p. m. Monday to 6 a. m. yesterday, flooding basements and streets. A precipitation of 3.5 inches was recorded in Canton. The University of Illinois weather bureau reported the heaviest 12 hour rainfall ever recorded there—5.53 inches. Meanwhile at Centralia the temperature rose to 102 degrees and the schools were closed because of the heat.

W. P. Day, government forecaster, predicted that the skies would be overcast in Chicago today and said more rains could be expected.

phoned them several times, but could not reach him. They always told me he was out of town. I was heartbroken.

Shocked By News Over Radio.

"Then last Sunday evening as I was sitting lonesome and blue and wondering what had become of Dave, I suddenly heard this terrible announcement over the radio, that David Hutton—my Dave—the man I loved, had eloped and been married to Mrs. McPherson that very morning."

Miss St. Pierre's legal papers, filed in Superior court end with these words:

"Now, by reason of defendant's breach of his promise to marry plaintiff, and her betrayal by defendant, plaintiff has become greatly distressed in mind and body, has suffered humiliation and disgrace the remainder of her life, and has suffered and will continue to suffer great mental anguish for a long time to come, and has become broken in health physically and nervously."

Joan Twice a Divorcee.

Soon after Miss St. Pierre's action was filed two men admitted themselves to be discarded husbands of the borrowing brunette.

B. F. Herington Jr., member of a Pasadena lumber firm, and George Street Jr. are the men Herington declared he married Miss St. Pierre in Pasadena Jan. 26, 1924. The bride won an uncontested divorce twenty months later.

Street says he married her in San Francisco in July, 1927, and "walked out on her" five weeks later. This also led to an uncontested divorce in favor of the health instructress.

Mrs. McPherson—she retains that name for church purposes—told her Angelus temple flock last night the loneliness of being a shepherdess of the wayward when no head shepherd was about.

"You have no idea how lonesome I have been," she said. "I have been alone all of my life but four years, my previous married life having constituted that length of time. But I'm through being lonesome now. I have seen young couples whom I have married at the temple as they kissed each other, and I've stood and wistfully watched.

"I used to watch Rolf [her son] and his bride and Roberta [her daughter] and her sweetheart as they came in from evening strolls, excitedly talking about the moon, and they would grab me and say 'isn't the moon wonderful, mother?'

Moon Dissatisfied Aimee.

'But I couldn't find anything wonderful in the old moon.

"I have been seeing myself home every night with a trip hammer beating in my throat. I've stood while loving young couples in my congregation would start for home saying, 'good night, sister,' and I would force myself to smile a cheery good night. Then I would go home and kiss my own hand and tell myself, 'good night sister.'

"But lonesomeness is gone and I'm singing that song, "It's All Different Now."

"Love came in on silver wings one day and I don't think I'll ever complain about anything any more."

MA KENNEDY'S MAN SUES.

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—While the marital bark of her famous daughter encountered turbulent tides almost at the outset, that of "Ma" Kennedy, temporarily stranded high and dry on the sandbar of the annulment proceedings, gave promise tonight of sailing ultimately into calmer seas.

Guy Edward [What a Man] Hudson, from whom she was freed on discovery that he had neglected to divorce one or two former mates, today filed suit here for his legal freedom from Mrs. Margaret Newton Hudson. "Ma" accompanied him to the office of his attorney for filing of the suit, which charges cruelty. Mrs. Newton Hudson has a divorce suit pending in Los Angeles.

RADIO CITY GETS FIRST MORTGAGE FOR $65,000,000

Record Real Estate Deal in Rockefeller Plan.

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A first mortgage for $65,000,000, the largest single mortgage loan on real estate ever negotiated, has been placed on the Rockefeller-Radio City property, it was announced today by the Todd, Robertson, Todd Engineering corporation and Todd & Brown, inc., who are building the group of Midtown skyscrapers and theaters.

The senior financing has been arranged through the sale to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of an issue of $65,000,000 in bonds, which are to be in serial form and will be sold as the improvement progresses. The instrument recorded in the register's office today disclosed the interest rate to be 5 per cent.

The bonds are secured by a mortgage on the holdings of the Metropolitan Square corporation and the Underel Holding corporation, under whose ownership the leaseholds were acquired on the three blocks between 5th and 6th avenues from 48th to 51st street.

This blanket mortgage supersedes and embodies all other liens.

The new bonds will be amortized over a period of years and all will mature by 1950.

The total ground area of the radio city property is now 513,424 square feet, or approximately twelve acres, in the heart of midtown Manhattan, over an acre having been added recently.

Further Increase Reported in Jobs Filled in Chicago

A further increase in jobs filled by the Illinois free employment bureau in Chicago for the week ended Sept. 12 was reported yesterday by John Keane, general superintendent. The jobs totaled 830. This compared with 740 for the previous week and 829 for the same week in 1930. Registrations of employment seekers for the week totaled 2,444, while the previous week the figure was 2,314 and for the same week in September, 1930, it was 2,761. There were 273 men and 557 women placed in jobs.

HOOVER OFFERS HOME BUILDING HELPING HAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The President's conference on home building and home ownership, for which preparations have been under way during the last year, will be held in Washington Dec. 2 to 5. In making announcement to this effect today President Hoover expressed the hope that the "one thousand representative citizens" who will attend the meeting will be able to work out a plan which will aid current unemployment by stimulating the industries on which building depends.

The President said preliminary studies had disclosed that the credit system in home building is not as satisfactorily organized as other branches of credit. He added that rates for second mortgages, including commissions, discounts and other charges, rose in many cities to the equivalent of 20 or 30 per cent per annum just prior to the depression. This resulted, he continued, "in stifling home ownership and led to the loss of many homes through foreclosure."

The conference on home ownership was organized under the direction of Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont of Chicago. John M. Gries is the executive secretary. Twenty-five committees have been engaged for months in gathering and analyzing available information and in making studies and inquiries. The conference will deal with the whole question of home construction and ownership, and of the home environment.

"It will embrace finances, design, equipment, city planning, household and management," President Hoover said. "It obviously is not our purpose to set up the government in the building of homes. But the conference will, I believe, afford a basis for the development of a sound policy and inspire voluntary organization to cope with the problem."

BIDS OPENED FOR THREE MILLIONS OF STATE ROADS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Bids were opened here today on $3,276,000 worth of road work, which will furnish three months' employment to 2,200 men for a total pay roll of $1,325,000. The projects, all outside the metropolitan area, consist of 67 miles of paving, 52.8 miles of grading, and eighteen bridges.

This makes a total of $10,448,000 worth of highway construction to be started by the state in September after two months of delay due to difficulties encountered in administering the prevailing wage act passed by the general assembly early this summer. Of this total, the metropolitan area, which pays more than half the state's road bills, is receiving $3,353,000 worth of work to employ 1,150 men on a pay roll of $1,600,000 as compared with $7,093,000 worth of construction downstate to employ 5,400 men on a $2,675,000 pay roll.

While today's bids were being opened, Orie T. Dunlap of Edwardsville, former president of the Southern Contractors' association, announced that his organization is preparing to go into court to attack the minimum wage for state road work in Madison and St. Clair counties as fixed two weeks ago by the governor's arbitration board.

Stop this theft of Coffee Flavor!

Oxygen, the Racketeer, steals 45% from old-fashioned cans

THIS is a warning to every lover of fine coffee.

Beware of Oxygen, that light-fingered thief of flavor, now known to attack coffee the instant roasting is complete.

Just read these amazing facts established in the laboratories of a leading Eastern University:

(1) Loose or bag coffee loses 65% of its flavor in nine days after roasting.

(2) Coffee in old-fashioned cans loses 45% of its flavor in nine days after roasting.

All due to the attack of Oxygen!

Think of it! Forty-five to sixty-five per cent of the flavor gone from nine-day-old coffee. Even vacuum packing, a definite improvement over old-fashioned methods, removes only part of the air from the can, leaving sealed in enough Oxygen to cause flavor loss and deterioration.

The new Vita-Fresh Process removes the air so completely that the most rigid chemical analysis reveals no trace of Oxygen in the Vita-Fresh can after packing.

Remember — Oxygen is the destroyer of coffee freshness and flavor. The Vita-Fresh Process alone gives full protection to coffee goodness. Maxwell House and Maxwell House only gives you this guarantee of full flavor, full value in every pound.

Try a cup of fresh coffee — it will amaze and delight you

After trying Vita-Fresh Maxwell House Coffee, if you and your family do not agree that it is the finest coffee you have ever tasted—simply return the can with unused portion to the grocer from whom you bought it and he will gladly return the full purchase price.

SAY VOLUNTEER ENFORCER RULED GAS TAX FRAUD

Posed as "Big Shot" to Fool State, Claim.

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Beamon, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Louis Weiss, a former volunteer state employé, is charged with the scheme by which gasoline bootlegging developed in Chicago in statements made to the state's attorney's office yesterday by Robert O'Meara and his two brothers, Smyth and Maurice O'Meara. The O'Mearas are under indictment on charges of having defrauded the state of thousands of dollars by bootlegging gasoline and in an effort to win consideration for themselves have made statements exposing the alleged origin of the plot.

Weiss, who is also under indictment as a gasoline bootlegger, does not appear on the state pay rolls. The information obtained by Assistant State's Attorneys John Holman and John Hampton show that he made contact with the state department of finance by a ruse. At about the time the gasoline tax law became effective he called a meeting of the independent gasoline distributors in Chicago and acted as secretary.

Establishes Self as "Big Shot."

Weiss then proceeded to communicate with the American Petroleum association and received replies addressed to the "secretary of the Chicago Independent Jobbers' association." After having established himself through this method as a "big man in the gasoline industry" Weiss went to Springfield and volunteered to aid in the enforcement of the tax without salary—at least as far as the state was concerned. Misled by the recommendations and by the apparent position of Weiss in the local gasoline field, he was permitted to act as the Chicago representative of the department or at least pose as such without any official denial of his position.

Business Not Licensed, Charge.

Weiss at the same time operated three oil companies of his own. It is charged in the indictments, which have been in the Criminal court files since last October, that he operated his companies without a license and defrauded the state out of approximately $125,000.

The story of the O'Mearas is that they were operating a legitimate oil business under the name of the Smyth Oil company until the gas tax went into effect. They did a business of 800,000 gallons of gasoline a month, they said. Soon after the gas tax went into effect Weiss approached the O'Mearas on the proposition to evade the tax through his political connections.

The O'Mearas said they demurred to the suggestion, but that Weiss then approached their customers and offered them gasoline for one cent per gallon less. They were forced into the scheme, they say, because they could not compete with his lower price.

MACKAY ANGERED AS CUSTOMS MEN SEARCH BAGGAGE FOR HOURS

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Clarence Mackay returned to New York with his bride, the former Anna Case, opera singer, on the liner Olympic today to encounter what he considered an unfriendly welcome.

He was so angered by the events that he said tonight he would protest to Washington "an unnecessary delay" in the handling of his baggage.

For two hours and a half the Mackays remained on the pier while seven customs and treasury department inspectors and officials made a minute examination of their baggage.

The officials said they had been informed anonymously that the Mackays were bringing in undeclared merchandise. Their information was all wrong, they said.

For even the wedding gifts the Mackays brought back from Scotland and England were itemized on their two individual declarations. The Mackays paid $2,500 in duty.

PRISON BREAK IN KANSAS BALKED BY LIFE CONVICT

Many Marked for Death by Plotters.

Lansing, Kas., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A life term convict was credited today with frustrating an escape plot at the Kansas penitentiary here which Warden Kirk Prather said would have cost at least 25 lives had it been carried out.

As a reward for disclosing the hiding place of firearms, which nine convicts had planned to use early today in a desperate bid for freedom, the life termer was granted a temporary parole by Gov. Harry Woodring on recommendation of the warden.

The name of the informer was withheld in the fear an attempt might be made upon his life.

Last night on the eve of the projected break prison authorities confiscated three shotguns, a revolver, a rifle, and a quantity of ammunition which the plotters had cached in a wall of the prison twine factory warehouse.

All Desperate Characters.

The prisoners involved all classed as desperate characters and serving sentences of life or the equivalent, were placed in solitary confinement. Prather said they would remain there as long as he is warden and he hoped they would do "solitary" the rest of their lives.

Wilbur Underhill, recent slayer of Merle Colver, Wichita, Kas., policeman, and credited with several other killings, a prison escape in Oklahoma, and crime record in Missouri, was named as the ringleader, although the plot had been brewing since early in the year, before Prather became warden.

Officials said the three shotguns and the revolver and ammunition for them had been manufactured in the machine shop of the twine plant in the last six months and the rifle had been smuggled in last May.

Planned to Kill Guards.

The plan was to kill O. M. Spencer and Bentley Clark, cellhouse guards, and John Lashley, guard in the tower at the prison gate. Other victims were to be W. E. Bennett, trusty driver of Warden Prather's car, and two other trusties, Watt Bryant and W. D. Pendleton, stationed at the gate. The plotters planned to drive away in the warden's car.

After killing the guard in the gate tower, it was planned to scale the wall with ropes and hooks and turn the machine gun and other firearms there on any guards who sought to prevent the break. With the gate opened, prisoners coming out from breakfast as well as the plotters would have an opportunity to rush to freedom.

TOWING RACKET CHARGED; 3 LOSE SHERIFF'S STARS

William Pocklington, a member of the Lake county board of supervisors, and two other special deputy sheriffs were stripped of their stars by Sheriff Lester Tiffany yesterday. It was charged that the three, all owners of garages, had used their authority as the basis of an automobile towing racket. John T. Johnson, a justice of the peace at Winthrop Harbor, and Hollis Austin of Waukegan were the others to lose their stars.

In taking the stars Sheriff Tiffany issued a warning to other holders of special deputy stars that racketeering under the guise of authority would not be tolerated.

Pocklington, Johnson and Austin, according to Sheriff Tiffany, solicited towing jobs along the highways of northern Lake county, particularly at the scene of an accident.

GIRL GRABS ARM OF BANDIT AS HE SHOOTS DRUGGIST

Morris Silverberg, 45 years old, suffered flesh wounds in one arm and the abdomen last night when he resisted the attempt of a gunman to rob him in his drug store at 2925 Sheffield avenue. Mrs. Madeline Johnson, 955 Oakdale avenue, who was entering the store as the shot was fired, grabbed the bandit's arm, but he wrenched himself loose and escaped. Silverberg was taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital.

Silverberg told the Sheffield avenue police that he was shot as he grappled with the bandit. The bullet pierced the druggist's arm.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A POLITICAL COURT.

The league court's unofficial communique summarizing the opinion of the majority and minority is a revealing document. The majority opinion points out that "Austria is a sensitive point in the European system and her existence is an essential feature in the political settlement of Europe following the war." The régime proposed, and objected to by France and her allies in the court, does not, as the majority admits, "constitute an act alienating Austria's independence; strictly speaking, Austria's independence is not even endangered within the meaning of Article 88 of the treaty of St. Germain," but it does afford Germany advantages denied third powers, and, considered as a whole, "it would be difficult to maintain that it is not calculated to threaten economic independence."

In other words, Austria's political sovereignty and independence, supposed to be recognized and jealously guarded under the league, remains unimpaired, but it must not be exercised in such manner as to threaten Austria's economic independence. This conclusion is specifically founded on the majority's interpretation of the Geneva protocol, which the minority rejects, but its reasoning cannot be confined to this case if opinions of the court are to be taken not merely as arbitral decisions but as the material of a general international jurisprudence. If it is valid, a sovereign state cannot enter into any economic agreements without impairing its independence, since any economic agreement restricts its action by the terms of the agreement. The minority asserts that a state's independence is not affected if it agrees to restrictions upon its freedom of action, provided it does not deprive itself of its organic powers.

Here is a distinction that had better be settled one way or another if the court is fixing doctrines and principles by which civilized nations are to be bound. The fact is that the majority of the court in this instance, by mixing political and economic considerations, is laying a pseudo-legal foundation for a system in which considerations of political and economic policies and interests will be inextricably confused. The minority, indeed, repels this effort, and reminds the court that the council asked for an opinion upon a legal question, and that the court is not concerned with political considerations and consequences. But the majority opinion, of course, prevails, until reversed, as it may be, when an issue raised produces a different combination of judges.

Beneath all the argumentation upon the obligations imposed upon Austria by the Geneva protocol not to grant any state a special advantage calculated to impair her independence lies the fact that considerations of political policy were openly weighed by and controlled the decision of the court. Precisely the same process would have taken place and the same political alignment revealed if the issues had been dealt with by the league council. The league court merely registered in judicial form what the league council would have decided. The American people, when invited to accept the court as a judicial body free from political entanglements, would better remember that.

Another myth exploded by this advisory opinion is that of American influence. We are constantly urged to enter into the league court, as by the same people into the league, on the theory that our disinterestedness will have a decisive influence in European affairs. Mr. Kellogg delivered the minority opinion of the court in this crucial case, but he had won over no representative of any government which was not politically favorable to the Austro-German side of the controversy. The theory that the United States is a sort of Galahad in world politics is cherished only in America and only by sentimentalists here. What we shall represent in the league court is exactly one vote, and nothing more.

MATCHING THE GUN TO THE WAR.

The army is still trying to decide what caliber of semi-automatic rifle it intends to adopt as standard. A commission has been appointed to decide the question. The present rifles and machine guns have a caliber of .30. If the new guns were scaled down to .275 there would be a considerable saving of weight both in guns and ammunition, but there would be some loss in the effectiveness of the hits scored and it would be necessary to provide two kinds of ammunition or junk all the existing rifles.

It is curious that in all the debate which has ranged about the new ammunition little attention has been paid to the war in which it is to be used. If it is to be another Russo-Japanese war or another Balkan war, the .275 would be indicated because the smaller gun would permit a larger number of shots to be fired. If the object is to spray as many bullets as possible in the general direction of the enemy, the smaller caliber is better. If the war is to be fought along the lines of our Indian campaigns, the present ammunition is to be preferred because of its greater carrying and hitting power and its presumed greater accuracy.

What the experts may be overlooking is the fact that tanks will play an even more important role in the next war than they did in the last. The ammunition which the infantryman will want will be able not only to hit a tank but to penetrate its armor. The .30 bullet is too light for this work, and of course the .275 is still less effective. If tanks are to be stopped, the army experts ought to be thinking in terms of .50 caliber machine guns. The heavier ammunition with its greater penetration would destroy the effectiveness of present tanks and would necessitate heavier armor, which in turn would make for bigger and slower machines. A slow moving tank is a fair target for the artillery and much less of a menace to opposing infantry than the fast whippets which are now being turned out.

When the army decides what it wants its infantry arms to do it can more easily decide what arms it wants.

PAROLE AND POLITICS.

The committee which investigated foreign prisons and penal methods finds that "in theory at least the system of probation in our state (particularly in so far as the probation officers are public officials responsible to the judges) is superior to the European systems," and that "the Illinois system of indeterminate sentences if (sic) properly administered is a great improvement upon any prevailing system that has come to our notice."

These findings are opinion merely. They are not supported by evidence in the report and, of course, the committee had not the time for accumulating and comparing it. They may be correct findings and they may not. Neither the public nor the committee knows. We do know that the qualification "if properly administered" is the test of the Illinois system, as of any other, and we suggest that before we adopt the suggestion of the committee for more probation and parole we improve the safeguards against their abuse. Probation and suspended sentences, says the committee, are more generally granted in Europe than they are in Illinois.

If this has been beneficial it is because political influence has not played such a part in the administration of the laws abroad as it has in this state. For example, in Europe, at least in that part of it where our committee traveled, the passage of an act of legislation could not be held up for the purpose of forcing the release of a criminal to parole, as occurred in Illinois. The Illinois system has been grossly abused by unscrupulous politics at times, and the fact that a change in the administration may bring better standards is not justification for extending the system. Until we can manage to erect reliable permanent safeguards from political manipulation we cannot afford to adopt the European practice. For years the proportion of crime committed by men at large on probation or parole has been conspicuous and can be accounted for only by the operation of improper influences or the exercise of poor judgment in the process of release.

In developing our system the first consideration must be the defense of law abiding citizens—that is, of the community—from criminal acts. The reform of the criminal is not a responsibility of the government except as it is conducive to the protection of the community. The reforming urge often overlooks this distinction and it is more concerned to mitigate punishment than to protect the public. It is of great importance that we try persistently to improve our methods of adjusting penalties to the character of criminals and develop processes of reconstruction so as to increase human salvage. But we must keep this process from running ahead of scientific knowledge and of experience, and we must especially see that it is not used as a cover for practical politics. The ability to manipulate justice is a tremendous power, and until we have established a system much more free from political interference than we have yet we cannot afford to indulge in too liberal relaxations.

Editorial of the Day

ALL FOR THE FARMER.

[Decatur Herald.]

Horse racing, with pari-mutuel betting and all the trimmings, was legalized in Illinois a few years ago, upon the representation that it would advance the science of agriculture. It is not clear to laymen exactly how agriculture is helped, in this day when the only farm horses employed are draft animals. The experts, however, found reasons, and so it happens that the sovereign state of Illinois itself takes a kitty out of the gambling funds that change hands on the tracks.

Horse racing is a spectacular and a thrilling sport, giving pleasure to large numbers of people. Unfortunately it is so expensive as to be hardly a game for the proletariat. No track is able to operate more than a few weeks in a year. It was a tremendous discovery, accordingly, that dogs might be trained to race even as horses do, and that the public is just as willing to wager upon the outcome of their contests. Dog racing establishments cost so little to operate, comparatively, that they may be kept in full play seven nights a week, every week of the season in which people can tolerate the weather.

And so dog racing tracks sprang up in Illinois, clustering about the Chicago and St. Louis areas where the horse tracks thrive. To the thousands who attend horse races were added thousands who became addicts of the dog races. About this time merchants in neighboring towns began to observe that the volume of money flowing in the channels of legitimate business fell off markedly when the races were in progress. The dollars poured into the betting booths at the dog tracks seemed to be sunk without a trace, in as far as the anxious business men could observe.

It was the influence of these honest merchants, and not the activity of reformers, that brought about the demand for closing of the dog tracks in Madison county. The various steps that have been taken; the injunctions and counter injunctions, the orders of sheriffs and the activities of state police, are too intricate to follow from this distance. The one certainly observable thing is that at last notice the dogs were still racing and the money was still being pushed through the wickets of the betting booths.

What is needed in this emergency is clearly some expert testimony tending to show the vital relation between the racing of greyhounds and the interests of the honest Illinois farmer. Undoubtedly by the time the issue actually comes to a head in Springfield there will be learned and eloquent advocates prepared to point but that improving the speed capacity of the Illinois farm dog will free the state of vermin, prevent the loss of so many pets under the wheels of automobiles, discourage chicken thieves, and cultivate a more musical bark.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By A.A.

WE'RE ALL OF US getting too lazy for words. We bought a loaf of bread from the baker's yesterday and when the thing got home and was untied dinged if it hadn't been sliced. In days gone by ma cooked her own bread. Then the family began buying baker's bread. Now when you get a loaf it's already cut into slices, and it probably won't be long before you can have it buttered for you at the store. And after that they'll sell it with any kind of jam smeared on it that you like. The noble art of reading has been lost in the rage for the radio and the movies; all you have to do is to sit down and without mental effort at all you soak up the latest news, music, plays, lectures, sermons, novels and what not. We can't cross the street any more without getting into the car and riding over. We're getting lazier and lazier. It used to be that small girls and boys learned to play the piano, and away back in the golden days as we walked down the street on a summer morning we could hear the slow and painful strains of the Maiden's Prayer being thrummed on the piano by patient children whose mothers wanted them to be able to play. Then came the musical pianos, but you had to sit down at them and work the pedals. This generation won't even work the pedals. Now all we do is turn the button. And now we don't even have to slice our bread. It's too much work to pick up a knife and cut it. It must come already cut. And after awhile it will be buttered and then there'll be a new machine that will sit on the table in front of us and pick up the bread and feed us. The machine will also feed us soup, the roast chicken and the pineapple salad. And another machine fixed so they won't roll off will feed us peas. We can keep our hands clasped idly in our lap and not make 'em work at all. But as Cleopatra said to Marc Antony, "Land sakes! What air we a comin' to?"

THIS IS FUNNY in the same way that a crutch or the seven year itch is funny. Wall Street reports in yesterday's papers said that a broker, who was asked by his small boy to buy him a toy railroad, told him to wait until Christmas and if stocks kept going down the way they have been he would buy him a real railroad instead.

BONE DRYS in Congress are getting ready for the next session and declare they will make the buyers of bootleg whisky as guilty as the sellers. And as we gaze on rum runners and bootleggers and such leaning back on the soft cushions of their expensive automobiles and telling their uniformed chauffeurs to "step on 'er boy, step on 'er," we do not think that the buyers will be scared into hysterics even if they are to be held as guilty as the sellers.

A FARMER out in Iowa bobs up and insists he is the long lost father of Powers, the West Virginia gentleman who had a perfect passion for burying ladies in his garage. 'Sfunny! It would seem as though anybody pointed out as the father of Mr. Powers would get the old shotgun, load it with shingle nails to the muzzle, and chase his accuser thirty-nine miles.

"GANDHI, before Indian round-table conference, demands home rule for India's 'dumb millions.'"—A. P. Considering how the tail of that noble beast, the British lion, has been twisted until it's darned near worn out by the natives of that far-off clime, we would say off hand that they're not so dumb as one might imagine.

EVERYTHING falls short in one way or another. The radio may be the marvel of the age or all the ages put together, as they claim, but while Gandhi's voice in London could be heard out in the Painted Desert in Arizona, or wherever the Painted Desert is, the listener in could not see him squatting down in his loin cloth or see his look of satisfaction as he quaffed his cup of goat's milk. However, the radio people say they're going to fix that, too. It won't be long now.

MINOR POET.

His little songs were hushed in the acclaim
Of minor singers, yet he hums his tune.
He has small surety of honor or of fame,
His melodies but died away too soon.

Yet he was happy singing on his way
And a light heart was lent him for a space.
Let us rejoice to see him feeling gay,
A transient light to play across his face.

Better than the dour aspect or frown.
If the small, tinkling tune has made him glad
He has more wealth than any in the town;
Better he sing a little than be sad.

AND THE NEWSPAPERS are breathless over the astounding feat of a railroad train that has just run eighty miles an hour. That might have been surprising a dozen years ago but not now. There isn't the owner of any hunk of tin that is able to take gasoline into its system and go snorting down the road that won't tell you how he came up from Indianapolis or down from Detroit at something better than ninety miles an hour steady, yessir, and I'd a gone faster but I was afraid I'd get pinched.

TO PREVENT ATHLETE'S FOOT.

DR. E. D. OSBORNE and Miss Hitchcock report a method of preventing athlete's foot which they found particularly practicable and efficient in a year's trial in the Buffalo public schools. The chemical used is a 1 per cent solution of sodium of hypochlorite.

This chemical, used to sterilize public water supplies, is inexpensive, easily used, not irritating to the skin, not poisonous, and kills all molds and fungi. It was its well known ability to kill vegetable microbes belonging to these families that caused Dr. Osborne to undertake the experiment. During the first year the experimenters used a soft rubber mat pan set on the gymnasium floor. The pan part of this mat was two feet square and about three inches deep. It was placed flat on the floor and filled with fluid to a depth of two inches. Two were used in each gymnasium.

One was so placed that every person going from the locker room to the shower had to step in this pan. A second was so located that every person passing from the swimming tank to the dressing room had to step in the pan of fluid. Enough fresh fluid was added to each pan daily to maintain a depth of at least two inches.

After the experiment had been in operation several months they built a shallow pan in the floor of a passageway leading from the dressing room to the showers and, in case it was necessary, a second one in a passageway leading from the tank to the dressing room. Every swimmer is required to stand one-quarter of a minute in the pan of hypochlorite solution.

Dr. Osborne reports that the use of this solution method is ridding the Buffalo school population of ringworm of the feet. In the space of more than one year not a single case of athlete's foot has been found in a person who has used the solution as a foot wash. As a preventive the method appears to give entire satisfaction. There is no reason why this method cannot be used in the household bathroom, in golf club showers—in fact, anywhere.

A 5 per cent solution of sodium thiosulphite, also called hyposulphite of soda, has been used for the same purpose, and with satisfactory results. However, thiosulphite is more expensive, and has some other drawbacks.

ABSCESSED TEETH.

D. M. writes: Does any one know what causes abscessed teeth? Up until the time I was 25 years old I had a good set of teeth and now I find I must have four removed because of abscesses.

REPLY.

Abscessed teeth is a loose term and may refer to either one of two conditions. If you are subject to gumboils or to abscess of the gums the cause is infected root canal, and the only permanent cure is removal of the bad tooth. Keeping the mouth as clean as possible with germicidal mouth washes may help. So may eating fruit in abundance. But the overshadowing cause is a bad tooth.

If you have apical granuloma, usually called apical abscess, the condition, the cause, and the effects are different. In this disease there are no gumboils. When teeth are removed for apical abscess, the symptoms for which relief is sought are neuritis or rheumatism. If the teeth are removed, it is in the hope of relieving these symptoms and not because of local trouble.

EYES CHANGE COLOR.

Miss B. M. writes: When I was a child I had light brown hair and light blue eyes. When I reached the age of 15 years my hair and eyes turned darker. Is that due to a physical condition or a mental reaction?

REPLY.

Physical is my guess. In our journey from the cradle to the grave our eyes are likely to change color at least once. Our hair may change color, or shade, several times.

ELIMINATING RAGWEED.

M. A. C. writes: Is there not something you can do, in the way of publicity or otherwise, for the elimination of ragweed from which so many suffer dreadfully? No other such menace to health and happiness is allowed to exist, and why this? You will earn the gratitude of many if you will get this movement started.

REPLY.

There is considerable evidence of an awakened interest. In some places the government is undertaking to keep down ragweed and other causes of hay fever. Some of these places are advertising the fact to attract hay fever sufferers.

In some places the law provides for the authorities to cut weeds on private property, and collect the cost from the owners. In many the law compels the eradication of weeds that threaten property. That is a sign that, eventually, the same type of protection will be afforded people.

The newspapers are giving space to weed cutting stories. All of which indicates that you have reason to hope.

OUR CONSTITUTION.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any provision in the constitution of the United States of America for the retracting or effacing of an amendment to that constitution? 2. Does article 5 of the constitution provide that legislatures of two-thirds of the states could call a constitutional convention to propose amendments to the constitution? 3. Is there any possible means of changing or annulling an amendment of the constitution of the United States? 4. Legislatures of how many states ratified the eighteenth amendment before it was declared in force? 5. Please name the states, legislatures of which did not ratify the eighteenth amendment prior to Jan. 26, 1919? K. W.

1. There does not need to be express provisions for such action. An amendment becomes a part of the constitution, and as such is subject to subsequent amendments. The subsequent amendment could be so worded as to cancel the previous amendment.

2. Amendment by conventions is authorized.

3. Yes.

4. The number specified in the constitution is three-fourths of the state legislatures.

5. You can secure such a list at the public library.

INHERITANCE IN WISCONSIN.

Riverside, Ill., Sept. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would appreciate your informing me if, according to the statutes of Wisconsin, the property of a widow could be rightfully distributed entirely among the relatives on her side of the family after her death. Both she and her husband died without leaving a will, and there were no children; also, the couple were first cousins before marriage, which brings some of the relatives on the husband's side of the family into a blood relationship with the widow. A. E. Y.

Under Wisconsin statute the marriage of first cousins is prohibited. If, as seems probable, the marriage in question is to be regarded as invalid, she would have taken no share in her supposed husband's estate. Her own property would go to her relatives.

Report is made that notice has been served on the owner of grocery store, who is the most serious offender, to cease throwing bottles and other glassware, etc., in alley. Householders were also notified to stop dumping and to place rubbish and garbage in regulation containers. Location will be kept under observation.

COLLECTING LOAN.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Four years ago I loaned a party some money. I have not received any interest. I hold a judgment note and have asked for the money time and again but have been unsuccessful in collecting. This party deals in real estate. Please advise what steps to take. F. B.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 16, 1915.

EL PASO, Tex.—Not only Gen. Urbina but also 14 officers of his staff were executed as a result of Gen Villa's visit to Urbina's ranch at Los Nievas last week, according to an American who arrived here and said he accompanied Villa on his journey. Urbina and his followers were given a drumhead court martial for treason after they had resisted Villa's efforts to collect $5,000,000 in loot gathered by Urbina while he was serving in the Villa army and which he refused to turn into the treasury when he decided to go into guerrilla warfare on his own hook.

LONDON.—Enforced military service in Great Britain was intimated in an address made to the house of lords by Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war. Conscription was also the subject of a heated debate in the house of commons. Josiah C. Wedgwood, Liberal, urged the government to appoint a strong war office committee to prepare a scheme of conscription.

LONDON.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's drive toward the Dvinsk-Vilna railway is not progressing as fast as his previous enterprises of a similar kind have done, and except at one or two points about midway between these points he is still being stubbornly opposed by the Russians, who are making vigorous counter attacks.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 16, 1901.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The funeral of William McKinley, the devoted husband, loyal friend, and type of all that is best in the simple American citizen, took place in the J. H. Milburn house, wherein he died, at 11 o'clock this morning. The funeral of William McKinley, President of the United States, began an hour later and will continue with all fitting solemnities until Sept. 22, when both President and simple citizen will be laid to rest forever in the family plat in the Canton cemetery. At the city hall, where the body lay in state during the afternoon and night, there was a remarkable demonstration. Arrangements had been made to allow the public to view the body from the time it arrived until 5 o'clock. But the people were wedged into the streets for blocks. Two lines were formed. They extended literally for miles. When 5 o'clock came 40,000 persons already had passed and the crowds waiting below in the streets seemed undiminished. The body will lie in the city hall until morning. It will be taken to the station by a military escort tomorrow morning, and at 8:30 o'clock the funeral train, consisting of seven cars, will start for Washington.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—President Roosevelt last night at the house of his friend, Mr. Wilcox, in Delaware avenue, had the first sleep he had been able to obtain in forty-eight hours. All day the telegrams came pouring into the Wilcox home, hundreds of them, and from every state in the Union, extending best wishes and prayers for the guidance of the new President. It is known that President Roosevelt was greatly pleased with the simplicity of the few formalities which were gone through with to constitute him President.

SEPTEMBER 16, 1881.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—President Garfield has passed a comfortable day. For many weeks the representatives stationed in Washington have insisted that the President was suffering from blood poisoning—whether the particular form of that poison is to be called septicaemia or pyaemia. It was not until this morning that the doctors decided the time had come for saying the President is suffering from blood poisoning.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Mrs. Susan May Bonaparte, widow of the late Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, who was a nephew of Napoleon III., died at the Bonaparte manor on Park avenue of paralysis. She leaves an estate valued at $1,500,000, her sole heirs being her sons, who not long since had $2,000,000 divided between them from the estate of their grandmother, Mme. Patterson Bonaparte.

A PLAN FOR THE MISSISSIPPI.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 9.—If the United States government wishes to do a real constructive work and at the same time relieve the unemployment situation it could improve the Mississippi river. This is the greatest river system in America, flowing through the most fertile valley and of importance to the greater number of people and is to the present civilization what the Nile was to the ancient Egyptians.

This river will average one-half mile in width; it carries a great volume of water; along its banks are many cities and villages which become inundated every springtime; millions of acres are under water and great loss and suffering are sustained. Almost every one is familiar with the Mississippi river floods.

The government of the United States has or had, many boats constructed to be used during the war; these boats are lying idle, have been almost given away or sunk—nevertheless, they were put to no use. Now these boats, hundreds of them, could be fitted out with sand sucking machinery and be placed in the Mississippi river at intervals of about 5 or 6 miles apart and about four abreast and suck this sand out of the bottom to a depth of only 5 feet, one-half being thrown to each side of the river—it being one-half mile wide would give one-quarter on each side. This sand would be piled up one-eighth mile wide and would make the shore sand ten feet high, thus giving ten feet on the bank, one-eighth mile, or 660 feet, wide, and five feet on the bottom, making the river channel increased by fifteen feet in depth. This would carry all the water away by increased depth and increased current. On top of these banks could be built a wide, heavy concrete boulevard from the gulf to the Illinois river, perfectly level and making a road unequaled.

This would make a great waterway to Chicago; commerce would soon pay for it. There is no reason why it should take more than four years to build. It is no bigger job than the Panama canal and is as important. This would put to use those boats that are rotting, give outlet to machinery, and give men work and save the valley from yearly destruction. This may sound like a dream, but there is no reason for its delay.

THE FORT DEARBORN MONUMENT.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—According to THE TRIBUNE, Theodore C. Condron has requested an expression of opinion from Chicagoans regarding a new location for the old monument which perpetuates the fake story of the heroism of Mrs. Helm and her romantic rescue during the Fort Dearborn massacre.

The only place for this old monument is the junk pile. Why should Mr. Condron or any other Chicagoan be so anxious to have this old absurd monument located on our lake front at some strategic spot where millions of visitors to the World's Fair in 1933 will get a good view of the old Mrs. Helm hoax? Does he want to make Chicago's distinguished historical luminaries the laughing stock of the World Fair visitors? ERNEST BRADSHAW.

CONTINUE THE WAR ON CRIME.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Your editorial, "Continue the War on Crime" and the picture on the back page showing Al Capone with his bodyguard fraternizing with a state representative and a Cub player seem somewhat inconsistent.

ELEANOR GRAY.

THE PRINCIPAL USES OF LUMBER.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 8.—Your editorial, "Steel Houses," in the issue of Sept. 3 has just come to our attention.

After quoting the protest of millwork and lumber dealers of the Chicago area, the editorial states:

"No doubt the gentlemen in the industry know their own business, but to an outsider it would seem that anything which would stimulate house construction would also stimulate the demand for wood and wood products, whether the exterior walls are of wood or not."

This, from an "outsider" point of view, does sound reasonable, and we do not blame the writer of the editorial for his belief, but the facts are that the exterior walls of houses provide the largest wood market in the United States and the lowly 2x4, the 2x6 and the 2x8—all used in the exterior walls or in the floors of houses—constitute, with boards used for sheathing on walls and siding or shingles, the major portion of the national lumber production. Take the exterior walls away from the lumber industry and Chicago retail lumber yards could reduce their lumber stocks by 70 per cent and half the lumber industry of the United States would close down.

TEACHING THE YOUNG TO TELEPHONE.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Just a plea from a weary telephone operator to all doting parents. Ever so often, and always when we are busiest, I pick up a call only to find that some child is being instructed in the ways of the telephone. Parents are being unconsciously inconsiderate when they put this unnecessary load on the poor shoulders of an already overburdened operator. We strive to please—and to give right numbers—so won't you please do right by us and give your own numbers—clearly and distinctly? AN OPERATOR.

TEMPERANCE.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 10.—I see by yesterday's paper that up in Minnesota they presented a loving cup to the champion corn eater, who ate 37 ears. Isn't prohibition making us a temperate nation? One glass of beer and you're supposed to be in jail. Thirty-seven ears of corn and you get a loving cup.

HOOSIER.

NO PARKING!

Chicago, Sept. 10.—At 1:30 p. m. today I counted twelve cars parked along the west curb of La Salle street directly opposite the city hall. Signs posted every few yards said, "No parking 7 a. m. to 6 p. m."

As a citizen and car owner I am anxious to know whether parking regulations are to be taken seriously. Shall I continue to park my car in a public garage when downtown to work or to shop, or may I park it on a public street? Surely, if others may ignore the rules, the police won't discriminate against me, for didn't the grand jury just recently report that we have an honest and efficient a police department as any city in the country? L. C.

WHAT, INDEED!

Chicago, Sept. 14.—What happened to the supposedly crazy man who, after dancing around and nearly off the Lake street "L" station, entered a Howard street express, routed several persons from their seats, began to sing, and finally went to sleep in the seat they had left? This happened at State and Lake streets at 5:30 p. m. on Friday, Sept. 11, 1931. A. V. J.

REALTY DEALERS HEAR ASSESSORS' PLEA FOR MONEY

Claim $35,000 Can Bring In $45,000,000 Tax.

One billion dollars can be added to the Cook county tax rolls—which in turn will yield $45,000,000 in additional taxes—if an extra appropriation of $35,000 is granted to complete the 1931 assessment, the Chicago Real Estate board was told yesterday.

Charles E. Fox, successor to Harry S. Cutmore as director of appraisals for the assessors, made this statement at a noon luncheon. It was his first public address since becoming head of the appraisal staff.

Appropriation Is Depleted.

The assessors have already spent their $60,000 appropriation for this year's assessment and need $35,000 more, said Fox. If that sum is provided it will be possible to reach a billion dollars in personal property, he said. This would raise the total personalty on the tax rolls to something like $2,700,000,000.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Fox made plain that the assessors were not making a plea to the real estate board for a loan of $35,000 with which to complete their assessment.

Urge Funding of 1930 Taxes.

Mark Levy, president of the board, announced, he and the other officers would appear at noon today before the governor's revenue commission in the Union League club to plead for relief for the real estate owners.

The plan is understood to be substantially the same as that presented to the Illinois legislature along toward the end of the spring session and proposes the funding of the 1930 tax levy for Cook county. A bond issue of $280,000,000 would be used in the funding operation.

ARRAIGN CYCLIST IN SHOOTING.

Edward Merkner, 25 years old, 6951 Muskegon avenue, six day bicycle racer, was arraigned on a charge of assault to kill yesterday before Judge Eberhardt in the South Chicago court. Merkner is accused of shooting Carl Smolinski, 20 years old, 8349 Buffalo avenue, during a quarrel at a party. The case was continued.

CONFESSES PLOT TO BLACKMAIL REALTY DEALER

John Mallat, 45 years old, 5249 West Lake street, a Rumanian who can neither read nor write English, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $25,000 on a charge of attempted extortion by Police Magistrate Paul R. Wick in Oak Park. His intended victim was Harry B. Lee, 735 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, a retired real estate broker.

Mallat appeared at the door of Lee's home last night and gave him a letter demanding $1,500 and threatening Lee and his family if the money was not paid. The messenger, one letter read, knew nothing of the contents. Lee excused himself and called the police.

At the police station Mallat confessed the plot. He revealed that he had persuaded Mary Caltoa, 17 years old, 1204 West 11th street, Gary, to write the extortion note. Lieut. Harry B. Miller of the Oak Park police questioned the girl. She admitted writing the letter. Police said they would not hold her because of her youth.

Hundreds of Anglers Open West Park Season

Greedy fish made sport for hundreds of anglers on the opening of the 30 day season in the west park lagoons yesterday. Among the earliest arrivals was William R. James, president of the west park board. The lagoons in Humboldt, Columbus, Garfield, and Douglas parks are open to the fishermen. The only requirement made by the parks is that the anglers fish from boats.

RITCHIE ASSAILS OWNERSHIP OF UTILITIES BY U. S.

Calls It Plan to Enslave People to Government.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 15.—[Special.] — Government ownership was assailed as a scheme to "make us political slaves of the federal government" by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland in an address before the public utility law section of the American Bar association here today.

GOV. A. C. RITCHIE [Harris & Ewing.]

The Maryland executive, often mentioned for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, conceded that "the capitalistic system has its defects," but reminded his auditors that "it has centuries of evolutionary growth back of it, and under it we have come to lead the nations of the world in every form of progress." He added: "I do not believe in crippling it."

Gov. Ritchie said he was for the "irreducible minimum of legislative interference in every field of human effort, including public utilities."

Build Political Machine.

Gov. Ritchie asserted that Sir Adam Beck, in the public development of electric power in Ontario had "built up a great political machine on an economically unsound basis."

However, he admitted that "there may be in this vast country power resources so special in their nature, governed by conditions so exceptional that the public welfare may require special and exceptional treatment. Muscle Shoals—a war product and a war liability—is one. Boulder Dam may have been another such instance. Cases like these, however, are rare. They cannot be permitted to determine the national policy on the subject.

Encourage Private Enterprise.

"The national policy, it seems to me, must not be government ownership.

"Our political ideal always has been to encourage private enterprise, to bestow upon it the earned rewards of brains and labor, and to keep open the door of opportunity. Here, I believe, is the key to our material success. Here is a political ideal worth guarding and worth fighting for."

Of utilities propaganda in schools and colleges he said:

"No one should question their right or even their duty to present their side in every proper forum and to make every legitimate appeal to the public for understanding and just treatment. But in this they went too far. What they did was not openly done, and it tended to sap the springs of free and untrammeled thought.

"I sometimes think that the crime which should rank next to treason in a democracy is that of adroitly and deliberately trying to fool the people. In this matter the power interests did a dumb and asinine thing. But that does not justify the country in rushing head-on into an unsound and un-American policy."

"Governmental interference in human affairs means an excess of power. It means bureaucratic centralization and sterilization and undue impairment of individual right and liberties."

JAIL PRINCE

Prince Ernst Rudiger Starhemberg.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 15.—Two hundred and forty-six Fascists, including Karl Vaugoin, nephew of Minister of War Vaugoin, were arrested today for participating in the brief revolt on Sunday. Vaugoin was later released. Count Berthold Stuergkh was also arrested and charged with helping Dr. Walter Pfriemer, self-styled dictator, to escape.

The Austrian cabinet met today, and Franz Winkler, minister of the interior, proposed an immediate dissolution of all political armed organizations, including the Fascist Heimwehr and the Socialist Schutzbund. Prince Starhemberg, jailed as the revolt leader, today appointed Count Karl Revertera as his successor in the ranks of Austrian Fascists.

TEXANS, ANGRY AT LONG, SPURN HIS COTTON PLAN

Resent Charge They Were Influenced by Cash.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The wrath of Texas legislators, aroused by accusations of Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana that they were influenced by money, appeared tonight to have destroyed any chances for adoption by Texas of the 1932 cotton prohibition plan championed by Long.

Sentiment in both houses appeared aligned in support of acreage curtailment, either to one-third or one-fourth of the land in cultivation. Members predicted this action would result in a 50 per cent reduction in the 1932 crop.

The house was swept into an uproar of indignation today and cheered Representative T. H. McGregor of Austin as he denounced Gov. Long in the bitterest language heard on the floor of the chamber in many years.

After he had spoken in the house eighteen of the thirty-one senators signed a resolution asking him to address the senate and members of the house trooped over in a body to hear the second attack.

Cheer Attack on Governor.

McGregor described Gov. Long as "arrogantly braying from Louisiana" and declared it was "the first time in history that ignorance, impudence, and insolence combined have crossed the state line and the people of Texas been insulted by political ambition and demagoguery."

He declared the Louisiana executive was "drunk with ignorance and power" when he charged the Texas legislature was being swayed by paid lobbyists and "blandished with wine, women, and money."

"Have we reached the point in Texas," he demanded, "when the governor of Louisiana can indict the Texas legislature as being subject to wine, women, and money and let the governor of Louisiana get away with it?"

The legislators responded with an uproar of "No's" and cheers.

He attacked Long's refusal to take his seat in the United States senate immediately after being elected to that post. He said Gov. Long created a vacancy in the senate and "another vacancy in the governor's chair by keeping it."

Long Repeats Accusation.

Gov. Long was quoted from New Orleans as replying: "It is an out and out sale. That is the only explanation we can give for the legislature hesitating to give the people of Texas and of the south something they want and need. Cash money—that is all there is to it. They are spending all kinds of money over there."

MAJOR VON STEUBEN TO VISIT YORKTOWN FOR THE CELEBRATION

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

GRIEFSWALD, Pomerania, Germany, Sept. 15.—Maj. Fritz von Steuben, great-great-grandnephew of Baron von Steuben of American revolutionary fame, will be the guest of the United States government in next month's anniversary celebration of the Cornwallis surrender at Yorktown, Va.

The major, who lives on his estate near here and is a typical representative of the Pomeranian landed gentry, is 50 years old and served in the army during the war. He is a godson of James G. Blaine, and his father visited the United States as a guest of the government in 1881.

Maj. von Steuben, accompanied by his wife, will sail for New York aboard the Bremen on Oct. 7.

HOME OWNERS REASSURED ON FORECLOSURES

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday reassured hundreds of home owners whose mortgaged property is in the delinquent list now being sold for 1929 taxes. The property owners, fearful of foreclosure proceedings which might be started because the taxes are not paid, appealed to the county treasurer to delay sales.

"Properties in the city will not be sold for another three months," Mr. McDonough said. "At the present time the sales are confined to the country towns where most of the delinquent list consists of subdivisions. The sale of this property, although proceeding rapidly, will consume much time."

In addition to this, he explained, because there is no market for real estate, even the most solid banks are willing to withhold foreclosure proceedings as long as the interest on their loans is paid. The county treasurer urged the property owners to find funds to pay their taxes, saying that he was helpless under the law to halt the sale.

HOLD ARKANSAS LEGISLATOR ON LOTTERY CHARGE

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Representative Curtis Cannon of the Arkansas legislature was arrested here today at the request of federal authorities at Santa Fé, N. M., on a charge of violating the federal lottery law.

Little Rock officers said they were advised the charge grew out of attempts to organize an international sweepstakes a few months ago which federal authorities frustrated.

Cannon posted bond of $1,000 and was released. He denied any part in the lottery.

"I'm over 45!" SAYS NANCE O'NEIL

Famous stage and screen star tells the secret of keeping Youthful Charm

"I'M over 45—you see I admit so much," says Nance O'Neil. "Perhaps I should admit more, but it is said that a woman is as old as she looks, and a man as old as he feels.

"For my part, I don't think anyone, especially women, should tag themselves with dates, and I believe the world in general would be happier and better if birthdays were never recorded, for as time goes on it cannot but bring with it a sense of limitation which I am sure we all want to be free from.

"Constructive thought and care of the skin are certainly two things that always help one to escape the marks of time.

"Any woman who knows how to keep her complexion youthful can be charming at any age!

"Stage and screen stars know that a skin softly smooth and aglow always has appeal. Several years ago, I discovered that regular care with Lux Toilet Soap would do wonders for my skin, and now I am among the scores of stage and screen stars who use it regularly."

FARMERS WANT LAW TO FIX WHAT DOLLAR CAN BUY

Demand a New Ratio of Goods and Money.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Organized agriculture has announced that it is taking immediate steps that will lead to consideration in congress this fall of "some means of stabilizing the unit of value of currency."

E. A. O'NEAL.

Heads of the large farm organizations are to meet with agricultural economists and financiers in Chicago tomorrow to formulate the program which E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, declares is imperative to not only agrarian but international economic betterment.

"Money According to Goods."

Officials of the farm organizations expect to consider the basis upon which "market prices are fixed." Some of them favor a release of gold or other medium such as silver in proportion to population. Others favor increasing the volume of currency in proportion to the "available volume of commodities in world trade." There are some who are expecting to take the view of western silver standard proponents, declaring that South American and Asiatic peoples have no gold and, therefore, cannot buy from the United States and some European countries.

"The importance of stabilizing our unit of value, as we have our measures of weight and dimension so that fluctuations creating in every instance hardship may be avoided, is considered paramount by organized agriculture," said O'Neal, in announcing the conference.

Short of Money, is Claim.

"We are short 25 per cent in the amount of circulating medium per capita on paper, and much more in actuality at this time," said Ralph Snyder, president of the Kansas farm bureau and chairman of the committee calling the meeting. "The thing that caused the relief from depression in the early nineties was the discovery of gold in Alaska, and until our international medium is increased, farm products and world depression cannot materially improve."

Charles E. Hearst, farm leader of Des Moines, Ia., said an increase in commodity price levels depends largely on the amount of money in circulation.

Dr. G. F. Warren, economist of Cornell university, Dr. John Commons, University of Wisconsin economist, Congressman C. W. Ramseyer of Iowa and several financial leaders will speak at the conference, to be held in the Garland building.

Close Coöp Conference.

The two day meeting of government farm extension leaders and farm organization leaders to consider means of combating forces opposed to cooperative marketing closed last night at the Hotel Sherman. Two resolutions adopted placed emphasis upon more complete organization of farmers as the means of bettering rural conditions, and urged the strengthening of "county unit farm education forces."

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde told the conference that cooperative marketing included an educational principle as well as the marketing of farm products.

"The average American citizen wants the farmer to make a profit on his production," said Secretary Hyde, "but the public should be assured that the farmers' attempts to organize will not raise food prices too high."

SOCIOLOGIST FINDS WHAT VOCATION 2 PRISONERS PREFER

Jerome Sampson, a sociologist attached to the state department of public welfare, called yesterday at the St. Charles school for boys in his official capacity. The official capacity of sociologists, it may be said, involves examination of persons locked up in penal institutions for faulty heredity, bad environment or other evil influences, followed by recommendations designed to remove such handicaps and guide the prisoners into righteous paths when they go back to the world.

Sampson gave the keys to his automobile to Henry Sussman and Christ Vlakes, each 17 years old, committed from Chicago, and asked them to get his baggage. They had been gone half an hour when he appealed to Otto Elliott, superintendent of the school.

"I can't understand what's become of those two boys," he said. "I was going to examine them and give directions for their vocational guidance."

"They don't need any vocational guidance," the superintendent told him. "They've picked out their own vocation—jail breaking and automobile stealing. They're half way to Chicago now, in your car."

GOVERNOR GIVES JOBS TO 3 MORE WARD CAPTAINS

Rothenberg, Garrison and Vignola Appointed.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In order that Gov. Emmerson might "take care of" three more Chicago ward committeemen, that many new jobs have been created in the west park system which he controls through appointment of the commissioners.

PAUL ROTHENBERG. (Tribune Photo.)

At the offices of the park board yesterday rumors were confirmed that Paul Rothenberg, 24th ward; William M. Garrison, 27th, and James Vignola, 31st, had been placed on the pay roll recently, although at first there seemed to be some doubt as to the nature of their positions. Further inquiry disclosed that the west parks have been cut up into three "divisions," and that each of the ward committeemen is now a "sort of division superintendent."

Move Raises Total to 13.

The appointment of this trio raised Gov. Emmerson's list of state job holders on the Cook county committee to thirteen. The other ten are Charles Krutckoff, 4th ward; C. L. Gerds, 7th; Andrew Metzger, 8th; Elmer A. Brown, 10th; Charles A. Nowak, 19th; Edward F. Moore, 20th; D. D. Coffey, 23d; Eden T. Brekkee, 37th; Frank M. Kalteux, 39th; and Louis Nettlehorst, 50th.

Two of the three new ones come directly from the old city hall camp which supposedly is about to be lined up behind Len Small next Saturday in a demonstration to start him for the fourth time toward the governorship. These two also supported Small against Emmerson in 1928. They are Garrison and Vignola. The third, Rothenberg, is a Barrett man.

Vignola was a member of the city board of local improvements until last April. For four years Garrison held the office of city purchasing agent and his appointment is considered by politicians the most interesting of the three.

Garrison a Galpin Lieutenant.

He is a trusted lieutenant of Homer K. Galpin, former chairman of the county Republican committee, and succeeded Galpin as committeeman of the West Madison street ward when Galpin found it desirable because of the special grand jury investigation into election frauds, to spend a couple of summers in Wisconsin and as many winter seasons in Florida. Now it is understood that Galpin will be back this winter to run the ward.

HEIRS OF BANK OFFICIAL HUNT FOR $1,250,000

Ask Executor's Removal in Court Appeal.

An appeal from probate filed yesterday in the Circuit court was viewed as a step by the heirs of the late Andrew Leonard Johnson, former trust officer in the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, to trace real estate and stocks value together at approximately $1,250,000. Johnson died in 1928.

The action was filed on behalf of Miss Helen Johnson, 5125 Kenwood avenue, a sister of Johnson, and his two brothers, Julius M. of the Wacker hotel, 109 West Huron street, and John V. of Minot, N. D. They ask that Joseph O. Grant, 6064 Harper avenue, former employé of the bank and a friend of their brother, be removed as executor of his estate.

Previous Petition Denied.

A similar petition was heard last June by Judge John Carpenter, a country judge who then was sitting in the Probate court. It was denied at that time. During that hearing records of the federal department of internal revenue were introduced to show that when he died Johnson held title to 10 pieces of valuable property in various parts of the country and was named the owner of stocks valued at $607,649.

None of this property was listed in the inventory of the estate filed by the bank and by Grant. Johnson's sister and brothers contended that Grant was lax in not investigating the statement of their brother's property which the bank gave him.

Three officials of the bank—Mark Lowell, second vice president; Leon L. Loehr, who is in charge of the trust department, and H. J. Fairweather, personal trust officer—testified before Judge Carpenter.

Testimony of Bank Officials.

They said that the unlisted real estate and securities did not belong to Johnson. He merely held them for the bank and for certain of the bank's customers, they testified. At his death, they declared, these properties were returned to their various owners and consequently were not listed in the inventory of Johnson's estate.

Attorney Robert H. Holmes, who represents Johnson's heirs, avers that his clients do not want property which does not belong to them, but contend that the court should pass upon the ownership of the property listed in their brother's name.

They charge in addition to this, according to the attorney, that a preliminary examination of the bank records fails to disclose any record of the disposition of the real estate and stocks.

Realty Sale Complicates Case.

The matter is further complicated, according to Attorney Holmes, by the claim of a Carl Carlson who purchased three of the parcels of real estate which were in Johnson's name, Carlson, according to the attorney, has demanded of the heirs title to the properties, alleging that he paid in full for them. None of the property actually is in their hands, however. Carlson has taken his claim to a County court where the hearing is pending.

Johnson's estate was unquestioned until almost a year after his death when a letter addressed to him was delivered to his sister. The letter was from the internal revenue department and demanded payment of income taxes on the real estate and the following stocks: 2,000 shares of Armour preferred; 1,775 shares of Union Carbide; 4,808 shares of Pure Oil; 400 shares of Southern Pacific, and 400 shares of Pacific Oil. The stocks alone were then valued at $607,649.

Takes Letter to Executor.

When the sister took her information to Grant, according to Attorney Holmes, he refused to question the bank officials, saying that he did not believe the bank would make a false statement.

When the first petition to remove Grant was heard the bank officials testified they had taken a number of documents from Johnson's desk but had made no inventory of the papers discovered there.

It was at this time that Loehr testified: "It was the practice to use Mr. Johnson to hold title for various pieces of property as a matter of convenience: real estate, because there was doubt in many cases of the corporation's ability to hold real estate or the title to real estate in outside states; and stocks for various reasons of convenience, as for instance customers residing out of the state of Illinois might want to avoid the operations of tax ferrets in their particular states, so that the ownership could not be specifically traced. It was customary to use him where some perfectly dependable person was necessary to carry the title of property. It is a custom which is used in practically all the large banks."

Engineer Claims Soviet Plan Is Disguise of Credit Scheme

The five year industrialization plan of soviet Russia is not succeeding, but what he considers the true objective of the plan is being attained, James H. Watt, an engineer, who recently returned from 15 months in Russia, said last night.

He addressed the closing session of a two day meeting of the central division of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the Stevens hotel.

"Industrializing Russia is merely a secondary objective," Watt said. "The main one is to establish enormous credits, actual loans and contracts for machinery and equipment in the leading countries of the world, to such an extent that aid could not be withdrawn nor war declared against soviet Russia and to undermine our financial institutions."

Pointed to As Revolt Leaders.

Mr. Watt and his wife arrived in Kharkov Jan. 28, 1930, he said. He went because he was well paid and because he wished to learn for himself conditions in Russia, he said. On arrival they were housed in a spacious room in a hotel, furnished with confiscated furniture inlaid with mother of pearl, the room inhabited by large rats. Later, he said, he and his wife were moved to a new apartment with an unconnected bathtub in the kitchen.

"For the first four months we were feted and dined," Mr. Watt said. "Then, as I began to understand a little Russian, I realized we were being introduced as the pick of American engineers, who had come to Russia to help with the plan of world revolution. Their plan of world revolution was to begin with China and end with the United States. I was amazed to find that they consider world revolution well under way."

Soviet Russia admits its plan to mechanize coal mines has failed, and its shortage of structural steel is obvious, yet it continues to export structural steel, Mr. Watt said.

Succeeding in Credit Plan.

"They are succeeding in their five year plan of credits, however, due to the greediness and selfishness of our industrialists," he said. "And of all of us perhaps, I went because I was well paid.

"Meanwhile many millions sent by the United States to Germany are being used to manufacture goods to export to Russia. England is giving Russia actual loans as well as equipment.

"A buyer for a large mail order and retail house here told me that they are selling tons of soviet candy made with Cuban sugar. They pay 6 cents a pound for it. Russia pays 4 cents a pound for the sugar—but on credit. It is sold for cash. Is it good? It's so good this buyer keeps it on his desk to eat.

Our Army Buys Their Matches.

"Our army and navy is using Russian matches because of a law which says supplies are to be bought from the lowest responsible bidder."

"I didn't see one tractor at work, although I went across Russia and into Siberia," he said. "I saw thousands of acres of idle fields. When the grain was being harvested, it was done with sickles, by sad looking men and women who had nothing to eat or to wear. Many tractors which are bought on credit in America are sold for cash to Turkey."

"The soviet union is in the hands of only 10 men now," he said. "It is the greatest exploitation and mechanization of the human race history has ever known. The Russian people are being exploited as never before. I love the Russian people—but they're too darned patient."

"Soviet Russia would collapse in six months if the United States, England, France, Italy, and Germany stopped trading with it and took the foreigners out of Russia. They are killing their engineers, lawyers, doctors, and all who were trained in old Russia. They could not go on without brains," he said.

LORETTA YOUNG DIVORCES HER ACTOR HUSBAND

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Loretta Young, film star, was granted a divorce here today from Grant Withers, motion picture actor.

"When we were first married he bought me a dress," the actress testified. "It cost about $100. He bought some lingerie later, but he charged it and in the end I paid for it."

"Did he supply you with food?" her attorney asked.

"Not after the first three months." Withers was "jable-bodied," but failed to support her, she said.

Miss Young and her actor husband eloped by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., and were married Jan. 26, 1930. Mrs. Gladys R. Belzer, her mother, threatened annulment action for a time, but it was never taken.

Lawrence Tibbett Divorced.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Grace Mackay Tibbett was divorced here today from Lawrence Tibbett, opera and talking picture star. The case was heard behind closed doors by Judge Benjamin F. Curler. Details of Mrs. Tibbett's testimony and a property agreement approved by the court were not discussed.

SET PRE-NUPTIAL PACT HEARING FOR NEXT MONTH

A hearing is to be held early in October on a bill presented in the Circuit court at Waukegan by Mrs. Mary Hannon Swift to set aside a pre-nuptial contract under which she agreed to accept $25,000 and forego any other rights to the estate of her husband, former State Senator Rodney B. Swift, who died last March.

The estate is valued at $450,000, and there was no will. Mrs. Swift asks that the contract be voided in order that she may better safeguard the welfare of her three children. She said yesterday that she was a medical student in Chicago at the time of her marriage and that the object of the contract was to leave her in control of an income that she had at that time.

Mr. Swift, she added, had suggested to her on several occasions that the agreement be torn up, but that she "unfortunately had not done this." The court action, she said, was necessary to allow an equitable administration of the former state senator's wealth. Mrs. Swift and her children live at 661 Crofton avenue, Highland Park.

Fat America

THE great American danger that everybody will get fat, if not fat-headed, is pointed out by Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor of the Food Research Institute of Stanford University, California, in The Scientific Monthly (New York).. Says Dr. E. E. Free's Week's Science (New York), in a notice of the article:

"Virtually every family in the United States can afford to buy all the food, if not every kind of food, that its members desire. There is a natural human tendency under these circumstances, Dr. Taylor explains, to eat too much and to get too fat; a tendency already clear in the increasing average weight of American men over forty.

"Health experts agree, Dr. Taylor argues, that overweight after forty is hard on the circulation, and shortens life. The prevailing tendency to fatness is probably one cause of the fact that the span of life is decreasing instead of increasing in America in spite of the successes of sanitary science with children and young people.

"The chief hope of reform, however, Dr. Taylor suspects, is style. "If thinness becomes as fashionable for men as it has for women, the country may be saved."

Chicago Plays Heroine Role for This Book

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Lake Front," by Ruth Russell. [Bobbs-Merrill.] Published today.

CHICAGO is the heroine of "Lake Front." It is the record of her life to date, not told as it has been told in the narration of events which made her what she is today, but set down in flicker shots of pictures in her life and history. It begins with the death of Marquette on the shores of the river which should have borne his name, where no one could have known that a great city might some day arise. It ends with the death of a boy who, fired from his job, in desperation, as well as by a sort of sinister chance, turns hijacker. To the heroine of the book both of those deaths are casual happenings, the first in no sense marking her birth nor the second her death.

ROTH RUSSELL.

The author says in a sentence at the beginning of the book, "Since this is the story of a city, truth to the lives of individuals has been subordinated to truth to the life of the city." She means, perhaps, that the characters are not to be found either in ancient or modern city directories. Or does she mean that the characters are not chosen for their manifestations of human, individualistic qualities so much as for puppets back of which the living background can be pointed in swift, glowing flashes? Whether she means that by her exposition or not, that is what she has done, created a background that is so much more impressive than any of the figures that move in the foreground that the reader has little interest or concern with anything but that swiftly moving picture of a swiftly, almost miraculously developing city, and its psychological and physical aspects.

The protagonists of the book are members of a pioneer family by the name of O'Mara. They appear in 1835, a mother bound to have her silk dresses though her children have neither education nor food, her sister and brother [who quickly fade from the picture], three children. The mother soon finds a wealthy husband. One daughter runs away from riches to marry the blacksmith's helper. The other marries a sailor and before her child is born knows that he will never rise from the bottom of the lake where a storm hurled him. The son is educated by his older sister and becomes a brilliant figure in the young city of the '60s. He marries just as he is going to war. His son is born after his father's death and grows into a great magnate who, as his wife dies giving birth to his son, drives his own locomotive through a mass of strikers, killing one of them. There is little concentrated happiness for the O'Maras in the passage of the years, but for the reader there is little more sympathy for their troubles [or their successes], because it isn't the fate of the O'Maras that he cares about but the amazing, zestful place where the O'Maras lived and bred and died.

Chicago of the thirties, smothered in mud, so cold in the winter that windows froze in the pitchers inside the cabins, "Don't open your mouth as you get near the lake or the damp will go down your throat and make you sick" was a familiar injunction. Chicago in 1840 when mobs ravaged the unpaved streets shouting "Vanderance and Tyler, too." The Douglas meeting at the Tremont House in 1844 when a merchant in Randolph street came out on the wooden platform in front of his store to throw garbage into the road. "Two black grunters found it, rooting for edibles. Against the law for almost ten years now, letting hogs run in the public streets, but with nothing added in, it was hard enough to keep animals at home. 'The whole place is like a common,' said the people from New England. What of it? A common was better than a walled estate, wasn't it?"

Here are other scenes:

1857, when a covered wagon bore the legend "Pike's Peak or Bust," and below, "Busted, by Gosh."

1860, the vote being taken in the Wigwam . . . "Silence, till you could hear the click of the telegraph inside the hall . . . Then the thunder of a voice, followed by shrieks of 'Lincoln! Lincoln! Lincoln!'"

Miss Russell is a native Chicagoan, daughter of the late Martin J. Russell; for years he was an editor connected with the Chicago Times, the Chicago Herald, the Chicago Chronicle.

LEAVES $25,000 FOR ITALIAN HOTEL, WITH WINE FOR YANKEES

Agostino Boggiano, who died on June 25, was known for two affections, his sons said yesterday. One was a love of his adopted land, to which he fled in 1861, a penniless boy of 17, to escape army conscription. The other was a love of good food and of the good wines pressed in the foothills of the Apennines, where he was born, fifty miles from Genoa.

His will, filed for probate yesterday before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, left an estate of $250,000 to his widow, Mary, and his four sons and three daughters. Mr. Boggiano was 87 years old. The Boggiano home is at 849 West 59th street.

The will directed that his family take $25,000 and with it establish an hotel for American tourists in the village of Piano Campel, where members of the Boggiano family have been freeholders for 200 years. It was their father's desire, his sons Charles and Louis said, to establish such a hotel in order that Americans might know the delights of good cooking and good wines, untrammeled by prohibition.

Young Boggiano landed on the New York waterfront in 1861 with two cents in his pocket, and no knowledge of the language of his new home. He got a job first in a waterside restaurant, later in an Italian café. He came to Chicago in 1865, the year in which he reached his majority and became an American citizen.

In 1875 he had progressed so far in the arts of the kitchen that the elder Potter Palmer hired him as chef at the old Palmer House. He was chef there and at the Tremont House until 1886, when he went into business for himself.

He was at various periods an importer of wines, a manufacturer of macaroni and spaghetti and an importer of Italian statuary. He retired from active business in 1900.

Doctors Discuss New Ailments Partly Due to New Air Transit

French Lick, Ind., Sept. 15.—New diseases and new conditions caused by rapid advancement of aviation were the topic here today of more than 700 eye, ear nose and throat specialists attending the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the American Academy of Opthalmology.

The government aspect of aviation was discussed by Dr. Louis H. Bauer, for many years in charge of the commercial aviation medical service for the United States government, who is a special guest of the academy. Dr. Bauer gave first hand information on cause and effects of diseases incident to high altitudes and high speeds.

David S. Ingalls assistant secretary of the navy also spoke. The technical session today was opened by Dr. Edward Jackson, Denver, who discussed crystalline lens in ocular refraction. A study of astigmatism, its accurate determination and correction, was given by Dr. C. S. O'Brien, Iowa City.

Northwestern Sets New Record for Student Applications

More applications for admission to Northwestern university have been received this year than in any previous year in the institution's history, it was announced yesterday by President Walter Dill Scott. Because of restrictions placed upon entrance, only a part of those applying will be admitted.

Only one-third of those who are seeking entrance in the college of liberal arts will be enrolled. Out of more than 2,000 applicants to the medical school, only 120 new students will be admitted.

Approximately 800 new students, 450 men and 350 women, will be allowed to enter the college of liberal arts, while total enrollment in this school is limited to 2,500. In the medical and graduate schools the total enrollment is limited to 500, 400 in the law school, the school of commerce, and the dental school, and 300 in each of the other schools of the university.

W. Perkins Bull's Garden Party Marks Toronto Return

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 15.—After a long absence occasioned by his sojourn in Chicago, his subsequent mysterious automobile dash for the Canadian border, and automobile smash, which sent him to a hospital for several months, W. Perkins Bull, K. C., of Toronto, Chicago, and London, England, crashed back into society here today with a pretentious garden party in honor of his son, Michael Bull. Paper stickers of gold bulls decorated the sandwiches, the cake, and, indeed, all the edibles which were served on the Perkins Bull lawn.

G. A. R. Refights Civil War for Young America

Iowa Children Listen to Old Soldiers.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Today was one of memories for 1,300 veterans at the Grand Army of the Republic encampment.

Shrill notes of the fife during the reunion served to stir up anecdotes. The aging soldiers lived once more their march with Sherman to the sea or their travail at Vicksburg and in other battles.

More than a thousand veterans visited Des Moines schools today and in return for youth's tribute told of their experiences.

Among them was David Reed, 84 years old, of Whittier, Cal., who was "right there" with the 136th Ohio volunteers. He is one of the few survivors of Bull Run, but he admits that "if I hadn't run I'd be there yet." He also recounts 17 battles and Lee's surrender.

On benches lining the streets boys gathered about the veterans.

George E. Bailey of Rock Island, Ill., told how Lee surrendered to Grant on April 9, 1865, and how, because of inadequate communication facilities, considerable military forces on both sides failed to hear of the surrender.

"The last real engagement of the war," said the 91 year old veteran, "took place at Fort Blakely in Alabama four days after Lee surrendered; more than 350 were killed then."

William Henry Harrison Pierce of the 13th Massachusetts infantry told how at 19 he was one of two Union soldiers captured in the second battle of Bull Run. He was released, however, and promptly rejoined. He is now quartermaster of the Thomas post of the G. A. R. in Chicago.

Two names were prominent in discussions of candidates for commander in chief, Samuel Town of Philadelphia and H. I. Merrill of Wichita, Kas. The bid of Springfield, Ill., for the 1932 encampment seemed to be gaining strength in first caucus reports. Supporters of that meeting place base their invitation on the points that the G. A. R. was organized there and that Abraham Lincoln is buried there.

National Chaplain Anna McGrath of Rochester, N. Y., conducted the Ladies of the G. A. R. memorial service, which included a special tribute to Past President Genevieve Hager Lane, who died in Chicago last October. Margaret Grandle of Pittsburgh, Kas., delivered the president's annual address at the 45th annual convention of the organization.

More than 100 national aides escorted President Kate G. Raynor and other national officers of the National Women's Relief corps at the 49th convention of that group. James E. Jewel, commander in chief of the G. A. R., in a speech said: "As time nears for us to pass on we leave all in the hands of the Women's Relief corps for time immemorial."

Annie Pool Atwood of Wollaston, Mass., was unanimously elected national president of the national woman's relief corps. Last year she was patriotic instructor of the corps.

Good fellowship was the keynote of the joint convention of the Sons of Union Veterans and its auxiliary. G. A. R. members and auxiliaries bring to about 10,000 the total number of Des Moines convention visitors.

In the afternoon there was a social gathering in the auditorium. Registration will continue through Thursday. Friday will be a holiday for freshmen, while the sophomores, juniors, and seniors register.

The college curriculum includes courses leading to degrees in the arts and sciences, with special work in commerce and finance, home economics, journalism, literary science, music, physical education, speech, and preprofessional work in law and medicine.

Opera Chorus Begins Rehearsals for the Coming Chicago Season

A chorus of eighty voices sang out lustily a half dozen foreign languages yesterday and the 1930-'31 opera chorus got down to business in its first rehearsal of the season. Their names will not appear on the programs, they will not command the center of attention; but just imagine an opera without the chorus.

And being in the chorus, it was pointed out by several oldtimers, isn't merely singing at the proper moments in support of some prima donna. It means studying French, Italian, German, and Spanish, practicing three to four hours a day, and knowing at least the choruses of twenty-five operas.

Down for the first practice was Miss Grace Cunningham, who began with the opera in 1910. She declared that she would rather sing in the chorus than take a minor opera part. When she joined the chorus at the age of 15 she had mastered four languages and twenty-five operas.

Maestro Attico Bernabini is chorus master. Ballet practice will probably start within another two weeks.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The Yom Kippur services of the Emanuel congregation will be held Sept. 20 at 8 p. m. in the Uptown temple, 941 Lawrence avenue, and on Sept. 21 at the same place at 10 a. m. Memorial services will be that afternoon at 4 o'clock. Dr. Felix Levy calls attention to the fact that his congregation does not meet in the Uptown theater.

THE STAGE

MRS. FISKE has begun rehearsals of "Against the Wind," the comedy by Carlos Drake, which will have a première at the Blackstone theater Oct. 26. The distinguished veteran will be supported by Charles Dalton, Alice John, Robert Henderson, Virginia Venable, Hugh Rennie, Terry Carroll, George A. Lessey, Elsie Keene, Olive Reeves Smith, Edgar Barrier, and Carl Reed.

"Against the Wind" will begin its tryout period in Springfield, Mass., Oct. 12, and will visit Rochester and Cleveland before coming to Chicago. The engagement at the Blackstone is limited to four weeks. Mrs. Fiske will take the play to New York after the Christmas holidays.

The excessive heat of the past week has caused several of the new plays on Broadway to wither away. George M. Cohan's "Friendship" will end its New York run [three weeks] next Saturday night. "Just to Remind You" will also drop out of competition, with only two weeks to its credit.

Norman Bel Geddes' staging of "Hamlet" will have its New York première Nov. 2 at the Broadhurst theater. Raymond Massey is coming from London to play the title rôle. He will be supported by Celia Johnson, as Ophelia; Colin Keith-Johnston, as Laertes; Leon Quartermaine, as Horatio; John Daly Murphy, as Polonius; David Horne, as the King, and George Carr, as the First Grave Digger.

"Hamlet" will be the first production of a new theatrical firm of which Mr. Geddes and Courtney Burr are the leaders. "Mardi Gras," by Maurine Watkins, and new plays by Preston Sturges and Laurence Stallings will follow.

Neville Westman, and not Mary Howard, is the leading woman of "Unexpected Husband," which will begin the season at the Adelphi theater next Monday night. Miss Westman is a sister of Nydia Westman, comedienne of "Pigs," "Lysistrata," etc.

Swedish Lutherans Form Foundation to Help Their Church

Organization of the Augustana Lutheran Foundation to accept conditional gifts to the Swedish Lutheran church was completed yesterday. Representatives of the nine states of the Augustana synod met at the Morrison hotel. Former Judge Eskil C. Carlson of Des Moines was elected president of the board of trustees.

The articles of incorporation provide that the foundation shall have the power to accept gifts to the church, pay an annuity to the donor while he lives, or fulfill any condition attached, and reinvest the money for the benefit of the church. It is based on similar foundations in other churches, recommended by the Federal Council of Churches.

According to a report presented at the meeting the amount given in these kinds of gifts has been growing, amounting to $43,000,000 in the last six years for 36 organizations using them.

Pupils Treading New Trails in Public Schools

Three R's Seen Through Maze of Novelties.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Curriculum making for the public schools is an adventure in the making of a new humanity. How far this is to be modeled upon the old and to what extent it is to be set free with its new integrations and behavior patterns to remake this world into a fairer place, is the subject of controversy in educational circles as wide as the division over prohibition in the public mind.

In the Chicago system the original simple three R's formula has long been lost in a welter of new enterprises, in a huge and costly effort to fit immature minds to the bewildering American industrial scene. What the result will be, and how to control the ever increasing demands, no one knows. E. V. Tubbs, director of the bureau of curriculum, assures the public that under the Chicago methods the future of the republic is safe, but no such experiment in education has ever been attempted before.

A glimpse of what is going on here, of how new demands arise, is found in the year book of the Chicago Principals' club, in which Grace E. Munson of the bureau of child study writes:

"Chicago furnishes special schools, special classes and specially trained teachers for the crippled, blind, nearblind, deaf, semi-deaf, subnormal, overage backward, truant and incorrigible, epileptic, tubercular, pre-tubercular, undernourished and anemic children, as well as for children with defective speech.

"Such children receive individual psychological study to determine capacity, aptitudes, personality characteristics, and achievements; they are given medical treatment for the removal or alleviation of the physical handicaps; the social background is studied; educational procedure is adapted to their individual needs; tehnical training is furnished in the fields where they can take it; and vocational guidance and supervision help to make them self-supporting and self-respecting in maturity.

"As a consequence, in many cases, the efficiency of the handicapped child as determined by the ratio between his capacity and his achievement now exceeds that of the normal or superior child. It is fitting and in keeping with humane thinking that the handicapped children should have as much advantage as possible, and there is much work yet to be done in their behalf, but it is undemocratic, wasteful, and dangerous not to give the same careful study and guidance to the children of the regular grades."

That suggestion leads to psychological counselors and specialists in social service for all the half million in the public schools.

The free evening schools, in addition to the elementary and academic subjects, have classes for foreign language speaking people, and offer courses in advertising, filing, and salesmanship.

The cooking and catering classes study the planning of menus, table service, preparation of salads, and catering service. The dressmaking classes go into cutting, finishing and fitting, the making of afternoon and evening dresses, the elements of good taste in dress. The millinery department not only makes hats but has instruction in lamp shade making.

Aviation courses are now offered, as well as baking, blue print reading, special courses in applied chemistry, cobbling, sheet metal work, six courses in electricity, forging and toolmaking, oxyacetylene welding, patternmaking, printing, tailoring and wood working.

The senior high schools offer courses in journalism, where the student may receive credit in English while pursuing this special interest. This is an effort not only to cover the technique of news writing but to give a better evaluation of newspapers as a whole and to "develop an interest in matters relating to the welfare of the individual and the community." The objective is apparently to produce newspaper critics as well as workers.

The study of salesmanship is another course offered in the Chicago high schools. This is explained as laboratory work done in a group of cooperating stores, where the pupil's actual work is surveyed. It is presented as "an actual life situation, where pupil reaction and adjustment take place." The objectives are to give the young salesman "information that will aid in meeting the requirements of a steadily rising business standard, to acquire the right attitude toward business in general and the idea of service in particular, to understand the sale as a mental process, based on psychological laws, which, when understood can be applied under varying conditions."

A four year vocational music course is offered at Lane and Hilden High schools. Instrumental music is substituted for all shop work. Musical theory, harmony, composition, orchestration, and the history of music are substituted for mechanical and free hand drawing. European history is substituted for chemistry.

(This is the third of a series of articles on public school education.)

Milan Lusk, Violinist, to Get Foreign Medal

The revolutionary medal of the government of Czecho-Slovakia will be conferred upon Milan Lusk, concert violinist, this morning. The award will be made by J. F. Smetanka, consul general, in his office at 300 West Adams street. Mr. Smetanka said yesterday that the violinist was chosen for the honor because of his service to the government in giving concerts among the Czecho-Slovakian legions who went to the aid of the allies during the world war. Mr. Lusk had made his debut as soloist with the Tonekuenstler orchestra in Vienna. He was knighted by King Ferdinand of Rumania in 1927 with the Order of Chevalier of the Crown. Mr. Lusk lives in Wilmette.

CLUB BOARD BALKS AT PAMPHLET LINKING WASHINGTON, HOOVER

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A pamphlet depicting President Hoover as a "Twentieth Century George Washington," published by the General Federation of Women's Club as a program for the Washington bicentennial celebration next year, was repudiated today by the executive board of the Maryland federation.

By a vote of 30 to 4, with four not voting, the board decided that the pamphlet should be eliminated from the state program for the observance of the bicentennial.

Lithographs of the first president and of President Hoover appear side by side on the pamphlet's cover.

"As George Washington, farmer, soldier, business man, and engineer, labored wisely and incessantly to build a nation, so Herbert Hoover, the only other engineer president, has gone forward likewise building a nation and helping build a world," says the text.

"As Washington was able to meet the problems of his country, so, too, Herbert Hoover has met and is meeting and overcoming obstacles that arise in the national and international life of America."

Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore, president of the general federation, defended the pamphlet from attacks when it was issued last month. She said it had no political significance, and pointed out she was a Democrat.

"By accepting the pamphlet we would be introducing another personality into the bicentennial celebration which would take from George Washington some of the glory which should be his," said Mrs. Paul Troy, state child welfare chairman.

Peaches Arrive by Truck for Jobless of City

Eleven tons of fresh peaches hauled into Chicago on trucks yesterday were the newest contribution to the deserving poor of the city by Dr. Johnston Myers of the Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan boulevard, in his effort to gather and distribute surplus fruits and vegetables among the unemployed.

Other truckloads of fruit is due today from the same region near Coloma, Mich., which is a few miles northeast of Benton Harbor. Four truckloads last week-end also were sent by Dr. Myers to various churches, missions, and social centers. No denominational or racial line is being drawn, the pastor said yesterday, leaving the distribution to the directors of the various religious and educational centers.

The peaches, which have been obtained at little cost from the Michigan growers, have been solicited largely through the efforts of Fred Messal, the Coloma farmer who came into Chicago several weeks ago with a truckload of apples carrying a sign "For the Poor of Chicago."

Students of Hillsdale college at Hillsdale, Mich., recently wrote to Dr. Myers offering to help in the project. He accepted their coöperation and announced yesterday that the students had promised to gather two truckloads of the produce, which is expected within a few days.

In another two weeks Dr. Myers expects to have his unemployed helpers, operating trucks lent by generous owners, out into truck farming areas where second and third grade potatoes can be obtained at little cost.

Applying Lip Rouge Should Be More than Casual Performance

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What a woman does with her own face is her own business, as Mrs. J. responded when her best friend and, in this instance, kindliest critic, told her a bit of makeup would make a lot of difference in her looks.

The friend was trying to persuade Mrs. J. to use a lipstick. [O, yes, there are thousands and thousands of women who will not concede lipstick advantages.] Some of these may be right, too. But there's a lip coloring that is seen often on women of a certain age that has a bluish cast and which creates a decided liability in a facial way.

Just a light touch of the right shade of lipstick would make a tremendous improvement in the person. That bluish lip hue is unkind to the coloring of the teeth. It's too pale a blue to offer the teeth whitening effect of a real dark skinned person.

It doesn't have to be the blue of a sickly person. Mrs. J. is not one. She has color in her cheeks. And it is because of the cheek color that she believes her lips are better au naturel. She argues that she would rather be without it than not be adept at applying it. Which is just no argument, although you do see a gross carelessness of application of lip coloring on the older mouth. Perhaps because it is more noticeable than when not well applied on young lips. But tinting the lips doesn't call for professional skill—only practice and being sure it looks well before leaving the house.

Many older women look better without rouge, especially if they are not clever at applying it. Round, bright red patches on a lined cheek make the lines more noticeable. Here's where I'd recommend no rouge at all, over inexpertly applied rouge.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Loss of Sleep in Children Is Often Due to Tiredness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It is not always possible to know why children go through periods of having trouble getting to sleep. Some children at various ages will go to bed, and then toss and turn for a long time—an hour or more—and often fret, unable to drop off.

Sometimes in my own experience I have been able to discover the cause and correct it. At other times, I frankly confess, I have not; but then, apparently, without perceptible reason, the spell will be over and the child will for months go to bed, cuddle down, and drop sweetly asleep.

One thing we have to realize in this connection is that individual children vary just as we do. And there may be subtle nerve or emotional disturbances that we can't always fathom which destroy their equilibrium and so their relaxation, somewhat as it does with us.

However, there are causes we have been able to put our finger on.

Again and again I have seen overtiredness hold off sleep. Children, like grown people, can be just too tired to go to sleep. Such overfatigue may be due to overexertion and late hours, or it may be due to the need of a nap or rest period. The child who has given up naps needs, nevertheless, a rest in a quiet, darkened room, undressed or partly undressed. The older boy or girl who is growing too fast needs a daytime rest, too.

Hunger is another factor in sleeplessness. A too early and too light supper may cause restlessness or loss of sleep. Children of five or six are often kept on these sketchy sereal suppers when they need a hearty but not heavy evening meal.

Sometimes inability to go to sleep, or restlessness, or early waking may be traced to some physical ordeal a child has gone or is going through—pain, a prolonged, rigorous diet, etc.

Being too warm or too cold may interfere with going to sleep and cause restlessness. The ventilation of the room and the amount of covering both figure in the right degree of comfort. Avoid having heavy covering around the neck and shoulders.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Ruthie, 5 years old, asked her mother what she could do when she grew up.

"What would you like to do?" the mother asked.

Ruthie replied, "I want to be in the movies."

Mother, much amused, said, "What would you like to do in the movies?"

Ruthie seriously answered, "Why, mother, I'd move." E. F.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Joe Reynolds is the owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined. She leases fallow ranches and moves her starving herd there. She is barely settled when a revolutionist, Megares, bogey man of the border, is the leader. Ranse Brennan, a henchman of Lee's, is his right hand man. Brennan was discharged by Lee and Megares took a new hand, who is recognized by Dune Darrell, an old ranch hand. Hadley, a millionaire oil man of California, whose father owned a mine Lee's father owned and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley is searching for the murderer of his father. Hadley and Lee call on Megares, who is, apparently, friendly to them. Megares is at the ranch at the ranch and is infatuated with Lee's guest, Mrs. Doris Silver. He holds them as at the rancho, to protect them, he says, though they are really his prisoners. Lee escapes by airplane by her husband. Lee refuses to leave her ranchers—and Megares, whom she loves. Harold Silver promises to return with an armed plane for Lee and Jack are sentenced by a drum court martial to be shot at sunset.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

BRENNAN INTERRUPTS.

Crossing the floor, Megares walked in and bowed to his prisoner.

"Still she will save his life," she cried.

He moved forward, smiling at her. "Whose life, dear lady? Let us not talk of it. Let us have this one hour for our own."

"You don't mean to kill Jack Hadley. You are trying to frighten me. You have been. I am frightened. Now you will save him, will you not?"

The soft eyes beneath the long silken lashes pleaded with him to be kind.

"But I cannot save him. He was convicted by court martial. It is out of my hands. I must not interfere. All my concern is with you, niña. I am sorry that pain must so soon pass out of the sunshine."

"Let me be with you tonight—with him—if he must die. I beg that of you with all my heart."

He was taken aback. He had come prepared to bargain with her for her body to get it at a price. And she preferred to die with her lover. This was amazing, since what he had to offer was something she did not value.

"You do not want to live?" he said.

"I am not afraid for myself. You do not mean to kill me. Before those men would find me guilty you had to promise to pardon me. Any one of them. But if you must have a life, take mine and spare Jack Hadley."

"You are quite sure I mean to pardon you. Don't be so certain. I am sure you are reasonable. You shall bargain for your life, my dear."

"For his," she substituted.

"For your own. Look at the picture. On one side swift death—oblivion; on the other love and sunshine, pleasant days and ecstatic nights, all the good things of life. What will you pay to make the latter come true?"

"I would come true only if Jack was alive. I'll give you everything I have in the world to let him go. My ranch—all my cattle—what money I have—"

"I am wanted in your United States just as I am here. Your country would not persist me to enjoy these good things. Have you nothing else to offer—for your own life, not for his?"

She flashed from him. "Wake up, you fool. I give the word and you are put out to death. Think. Worms will eat your body. I can save you."

"You can save me for long years of sorrow and grief. That is all."

He put an arm around her and dragged her slender body close to his. His black eyes blazed into her amber ones and lit no answering fire there. She made no resistance. She was inert and lifeless, unmoved by his anger and his passion.

"You Puritan Yankees!" he cried. "None of you know what love is. It is not here in the blood. It is desire storming through the veins. It is passion crying for its own. But I will teach you. I, Manuel Megares, will change that ice in your arteries to red and rushing fire. From me you will learn how to feel. I will teach only how to hate you as a cruel savage animal."

"We shall see. But whether you love or hate, you shall be mine. You and that wandering fool Hadley came between me and the woman I had chosen. I swore then you should take her place. If I have to hide in the hills you shall go with me. From one gorge to another I will drag you as we are being hunted."

"You are a trifle abrupt my friend."

Into his mind a dark thought came. He had spoken of a bargain. Since she was lost anyhow why not get something out of the wreck? She offered a compromise, hating herself and him.

"I will go with you. I will pay the debt I owe. But you will give me something in exchange? You will spare my friend and let him go? If I am . . . to be yours . . . you must be generous. You must give me one thing I ask."

All the young life had been stricken out of her. The big eyes had lost their lustre. The cheeks were pale and cold. The body in his arms was dead. She looked a bride fit for death. But he knew that youth is resilient. In hour would come, he told himself.

His wily brain busied itself planning deception. He could pretend to give her, could promise her Hadley's life, and even let her see the man starting for the line. Then he could have him seized and secretly killed. Why not? He could not learn for weeks how he had fooled her. By that time it would be nothing.

He laughed. "You are persistent, my dear. Very well. You win. The Indian shall live, and you shall go with me—willingly—and he shall be nothing to you and I shall be everything."

"Yes," she answered, in a small dead voice.

He closed her eyelids and her lips, ravenously, and she stood there in his arms a lifeless thing, and wondered how life could go on in the days to come when she would be paying forfeit.

The door opened abruptly and Brennan stood at the entrance to the room covering it them.

The arms of the Mexican fell away from the girl. His lids narrowed, but his words were ironically suave.

"You are a trifle abrupt, my friend, in interrupting our lovemaking. You will wish, perhaps, to apologize and retire."

The eyes of each man were fastened on those of the other. Not once did either relent for an instant the rigor of his steady regard. For both knew, by that sixth sense which warns men who have faced danger often, that the moment between them was about to come to tragic issue. The harsh imperiousness of the big man had crashed the barriers of caution at last. He had made one stipulation with his recklessness and only one. Just outside the patio a fast horse stood saddled, tied to a post by a slip knot. That much concession he had given himself.

"Yes, I know you, fellow. You've always been a double-crossing wolf. What story have you been stringing her with now?"

"He's going to save Jack." Lee cried. "We've made a bargain. He's going to free him and let him go home."

"That's a lie. He's not going to do anything of the sort."

"Watch care," Megares warned.

The Mexican was watching him intently, every nerve wary, every muscle set. It would be soon now, he was thinking.

"You watched your smoke, you crook. If you're pretending to let Hadley go you're aiming to have him bushwhacked. Haven't I known you twenty years? The girl's to pay the price while you fool her. That's to be the way of it, eh? Well, you don't get away with it."

"You threaten me?"

"I'm telling you. She's to give you her good clean body in exchange for your damned liar? No, I'll send you to hell first."

The brown fingers of the Mexican swept up to the revolver butt above the holster. Even then, in that fraction of a second before the guns blazed, Brennan knew he had let his anger trick him. Lee was standing back of Megares and now in the line of fire. The knowledge of this disturbed the aim of the man.

While the revolvers roared Lee crowded close to the wall. She saw stabbing spurts of flame, two distorted faces wreathed in smoke, bodies tensed and crouched like those of wild beasts about to spring. She heard an oath, a gun, the crash of a table as it went over from the impact of a staggering body.

Brennan was on the floor, trying desperately to raise his weapon, and Megares was flinging bullets into the prone figure.

Lee screamed out a protest and ran forward. She threw herself beside the body of her former employé. He was dead before she could even lift the head. She looked up into the twisted face looking down with such fiendish hate. At sight of it she shuddered.

Bloody men were pouring into the room.

"He threatened me and attacked me," Megares explained. "I call this man to witness. Look at his gun. It has been fired two or three times. He was a traitor. He deserved death."

"Are you wounded?" a soldier asked.

"No. I was too quick for him." The killer was recovering his surface calm. "The assassin drew and fired before I got my revolver out. Take the traitor's body and bury it," Megares ordered.

Lee sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands.

The bandit chief looked down at her for a moment, smiled cruelly, then turned and walked from the room. He was going to be busy for a short time explaining what had occurred to his subordinate officers. It was just as well the official report of Brennan's death should bear the color he wished.

Blind Woman's Request.

I have a communication from a blind woman which states that her husband is old and cannot earn anything, and she herself has been totally blind for the last two years. She asks your readers for cloth, yarn, discarded embroidery, and any other such things from which she might make articles to sell.

MRS. A. M."

Your old scrap bag will doubtless give up a number of pieces this blind woman would find useful. Any of the above mentioned articles you may have in your possession and which you no longer want could be put to good use.

Half-Orphan Home Board Meets Oct. 27

BY THALIA.

An important date to mark down is Oct. 27. The board of directors of the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum, of which Mrs. Carroll Sudler has been president for a number of years, has taken over the Blackstone theater that evening for the second night performance of Carlos Drake's play, in which Mrs. Fiske is to star. The drama hasn't been definitely named yet. Its tentative title is "Against the Wind," but that may be changed before the play goes into production.

The beneficiary organization is an old one, although its supporters have carried on their work quietly. The home is one with beautiful grounds out on the northwest side. It is run so well that one of the young matrons on the board who does volunteer work there was heard to say recently that she'd almost like to send her own children out there to be brought up.

Other officers and members of the board include Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson, vice president; Mrs. Thomas Dennehy, second vice president; Mrs. Roy Sturtevant, third vice president; Mrs. Herbert F. Perkins, treasurer; Mrs. Siason Thompson, secretary; Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. Knowlton L. Ames Jr., Mrs. Arthur Dixon, Mrs. Edward Berningham, Mrs. C. C. Haffner, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr., Miss Maroussa Russell, Mrs. James Offield, Mrs. Paul Moyer, Mrs. Lawrence Scudder, and Mrs. Archibald Marshall.

Mrs. Dennehy and Mrs. Sturtevant are to serve as chairmen for the benefit, and the board members are to meet for luncheon at Mrs. Sturtevant's in Lake Forest on Friday to discuss plans for the evening.

Gertrude Aspell Engaged to Benjamin Du Bois Frost.

The engagement to Miss Gertrude Aspell to Benjamin Du Bois Frost, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Brant Frost of Lake Geneva, was announced in the east a few days ago by Miss Aspell's brother, Mr. James Aspell of New York City. Miss Aspell, who is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. John Aspell of New York, attended the Shipley school at Bryn Mawr. Mr. Frost is a graduate of the University of Chicago, class of '27. He returned recently from a lengthy European trip, and is now in New York City.

Chicago friends of Redmond Stephens Wright are to be given an opportunity to see the results of his several years of work and study in Paris before he, his wife, the former Glee Louise Viles, and the Wright infant go back to France in a few weeks. Mrs. Wright's father has sent out cards of invitations for an exhibition of the drawings and etchings of his artist son-in-law, the showing to take place at Mr. Viles' residence at 1530 State parkway on Friday afternoon, from 4 to 7 o'clock.

The Winnetka Garden club is anticipating a special meeting, to be held next Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. Gordon Pirie in Hubbard Woods. Miss Eleanor Sinclair Rohde of London, England, universally known among garden lovers, and the author of a number of garden books, "The Scented Garden," "A Garden of Herbs," "Garden Craft in the Bible" among them, is to be the speaker. Her subject will be "The Story of the Garden," and the lecture is to be illustrated. Mrs. Robert Gardner is the ticket chairman, and Garden club members are urged to bring guests.

Mrs. Honore Palmer Shops for Horses at Deauville.

Mrs. Honoré Palmer went shopping for some horses at the sales and races at Deauville several weeks ago. She purchased 3 yearlings, and then returned to Paris and went to Cannes with Mrs. Maxwell Case of Baltimore.

"When I Was at Farmington," a 200 page book compiled and edited by Mrs. Abby Farwell Ferry, is to come off the press shortly. Mrs. Ferry, who published "Reminiscences of John V. Farwell and His Elder Daughter" several years ago, has been collecting letters from Farmington albums and working on the book for about 2 years. It will contain reminiscences of graduates of the school at various periods of its history, and also letters about the school's principal personality, Miss Porter.

Yellow Jacket Tops White Sports Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—After being the big success of the season in Paris, the bright jacket and white dress ensemble has gone to the country. Wherever fashionable ladies adorn the rural landscape in France, there will be seen the vivid jacket and white dress.

These bicolored outfits are worn for tennis, golf, tramping, and other sports. They follow an easy formula—a simple cotton, linen, or raw silk frock in one or two pieces, and a short jacket of wool or silk or cotton atop.

The Jane Regny ensemble, sketched today, is a typical bright and white rig that gives chic to the country. The jacket of this ensemble, like most bright jackets created by Paris dressmakers, has two things that make it ultrasmart—an abbreviation and an exaggeration. This yellow ribbed jersey wrap has sleeves abbreviated to mere caps, and its stitched revers are exaggeratedly large. That's what gives it quality.

Instead of the usual tailored collar that accompanies such revers, this jacket scores a point in originality by having a crossed scarf. The silhouette, when closed, is fitted in at the waistline, for above the band that buttons around the hips, the jacket is tucked.

The dress, which is a two piece frock of white linen, has it's blouse fitted in at the waistline by tucks and a wide band with a point up to the buttoned closing in front. Over this wide band, that reaches to the hip bone, is a narrow tied on belt of linen to hold it tighter. The skirt has an asymmetrical hip yoke, and is cut circular with a seam down the front and back.

Doris Advises Girl to Curb Desire for Bossing Her Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Which is the more important date for him—to see his cousin's wedding, or the date with me, his girl?—NELLY."

A wedding is a pretty important date in a family—though only a cousin's. I wouldn't think anything superseded it in importance, unless it were another wedding — yours maybe, Nelly.

But why make an issue of a thing like that? If the boy thinks the wedding is important enough to ask release from his date, why not extend him the courtesy of a release for that afternoon or evening?

Sometimes I get a bit terrified [as do the men, I'm sure] at the tyrannical change that comes over a girl once she gets to thinking of a certain him as her beau. His life is to do with as she wills, his off hours as she dictates, his friends of her making, and so on. Bearing all the ear marks of a future holy terror to live with.

It's a bad impression to lend. And a bad habit to acquire, for while the young man may, in the blindness of his love, efface his own personality and interests entirely, still there comes a time when the old spark in him revives and he wants to assert himself.

It's a peculiar American girl custom, picking a man out, ordering him about like a slavey—and then wondering after he is completely subdued what you ever saw in the poor meek thing, anyway.

I witnessed, recently, a 21 year old handling a great big football bruiser. Her idea must have been to make him look like a puppet player. Anyway, she pulled the string and he jumped this way. She pulled it again and he jumped the other, while all the time she was stinging him with viperish little stabs which she thought were funny. Some day the Big Boy may just go haywire and bounce the lady off the roof. Anyway, that's the atmosphere such scenes create. And it doesn't do credit to either man or girl. So, Nelly, I would curb that instinct early to show my authority, if I were you.

How to keep children free of DANDRUFF

Youngsters usually get loose dandruff at school; promiscuous use of combs, towels, etc., brings it on. At the first sign of it, go after it with Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

To combat loose dandruff you simply douse it on full strength and massage the scalp vigorously. Keep the treatment up systematically. Unless the case is a very serious one, requiring the attention of a physician, you will note improvement within ten days.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out.

Food Talk.

Keep on writing, readers! Only by your letters can I tell what you are most interested in and answer you accordingly. "It wishes were fishes" our column would be yards long so that all our correspondence might be aired in this fashion.

This morning's mail brings an inquiry for a cake which many of our mothers used to make years ago. Miss E. C. S. writes:

"I would like to know if you have a recipe for an apple sauce cake. I do not mean the kind which has raisins and spices in it. I am referring to an apple sauce cake where the sauce is used in the batter to make it moist. If you have a recipe for this cake without the spices and raisins, I would like to have it."

The recipe suggested below provides for the inclusion of the raisins and spices, but they may be omitted by the cook without affecting the cake itself, though how one can enjoy apple sauce cake without the complementary flavoring of cinnamon and cloves—not to mention the raisins and nuts—well, you just lose the best taste in the cake!

APPLE SAUCE CAKE.

1 cup of sugar.
½ cup of butter.
1½ cups of apple sauce.
1 tablespoon of hot water.
2 teaspoons of soda.
¼ teaspoon of cloves.
1 teaspoon of cinnamon.
2 cups of flour.

Cream the butter; add the sugar and cream together. Add the apple sauce [which has been strained and sweetened as necessary for table use] and the hot water in which the soda has been dissolved. Sift the flour once; measure; add the spices to it and sift again. Add the dry ingredients to the sugar mixture. Add the floured raisins and nut meats. Bake in a loaf in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit].

MOCHA TORTE.

½ cup of strong hot coffee.
1½ cups of pastry flour.
1 teaspoon of baking powder.
5 eggs.

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks until they are very light; add the sugar; beat again; add the coffee. Sift the flour; measure; and sift the baking powder with the flour. Add the flour to the egg mixture. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff and fold into the batter. Mix thoroughly without beating.

Spread on three greased layer cake pans and bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a slow oven [300 degrees Fahrenheit]. Increase the heat during the last half of the baking to a moderate oven [375 degrees Fahrenheit]. Spread a butter frosting between the layers; or whip half a pint of cream [sweetened with ½ cup of powdered sugar and flavored with mocha essence] and spread between the layers and on the top of the cake.

BUTTER FROSTING FOR MOCHA TORTE.

1 cup of powdered sugar.
1 tablespoon cold strong coffee.
½ teaspoon of vanilla.

Cream the butter; add the sugar, and cream together. Add the coffee and vanilla, and beat well. Spread between the layers and on the top of the torte.

"Nothing Like It" Say Lovely Women

New face powder stays on longer—prevents large pores

In Mello-Glo, French scientists have developed a new wonderful face powder which reproduces a youthful bloom. Its one tone blends with every complexion, lending freshness and animation. Never gives a pasty or flaky look, nor leaves the skin dry and drawn.

This delicately fragrant powder stays on longer, spreads smoothly and evenly, hides tiny lines and wrinkles, and overcomes all unsightly "shine". It actually prevents large pores because it will not "clog" them.

No purer, gentler powder could be made. There is not a trace of lead or any other impurity to irritate the most sensitive skin. Never irritates or smarts. The purest powder known.

Beautiful women everywhere use it. Ask for Mello-glo Face Powder by name. One Dollar at all stores.

GEN. PARKER SAYS U. S. NEEDS PLAN OF WAR SUPPLIES

Factories Not Prepared to Make Munitions.

If America were facing war we would be totally unprepared in the matter of munitions, although we could mobilize sufficient manpower, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area, told members of the Military Intelligence association at a luncheon yesterday in the Hotel La Salle.

"So far as our ability to produce munitions today is concerned," Gen. Parker said, "we are just about where we were in the spring of 1917. Experts tell us that it would take from 18 months to two years to furnish the munitions needed under the present situation."

Makes Plea for Preparedness.

Gen. Parker pointed out that manpower preparedness without industrial preparedness is almost useless. He appealed to the patriotism of manufacturers and to congress to pass a bill which would enable factories to manufacture munitions at a colossal rate immediately in the event of an emergency.

"It is considered a patriotic duty," he said, "for our young men to prepare themselves in time of peace to defend their country in time of war. It is equally a patriotic duty and moral obligation that our private manufacturers do their share in time of peace by preparing their factories to furnish in the shortest time possible after war is declared the munitions needed by the young men in defense of their country."

Gen. Parker pointed out that during war, the government arsenals would be able to provide only 5 per cent of the munitions needed. Gen. Parker said the government should meet the expense of preparing the factories to make munitions. The cost, he estimated, would be between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually.

Points to Small Reserve.

Our reserve of munitions would last only a few months, he said. Proper and balanced military preparedness "requires not only that sufficient men can be mobilized but the assurance that the men will be properly equipped, and munitions is the most vital of all," he continued.

The national defense act precludes a sufficiency of manpower, he said. The act also recommends the preparation for manufacture of ordnance supplies but as yet congress has made no provision for that preparedness.

HOLDS FATHERS OF CONSTITUTION ARE EXAMPLE FOR PRESENT

Back in 1787, when the constitution was adopted, many problems faced the fathers of the nation, Edwin J. Raber, Chicago attorney, yesterday reminded members of the Central Lions club at the weekly luncheon in the Hotel La Salle. Today just as many and just as serious matters confront the leaders of the country, he declared.

The club program was held in observance of Constitution day, which falls on Thursday and will be commemorated in 15 states. Gov. Emmerson has issued a proclamation calling attention to the 144th birthday of the charter. Local exercises are being promoted especially by the Constitutional Educational association, with headquarters at 28 East Jackson boulevard.

"Conditions existing during 1787," Mr. Raber said, "would never have righted themselves. They were righted by the men of the day. The conditions of today will not right themselves. They must be righted by the men of today. A study of those times reveals the fact that we had real statesmen then who made sacrifices and it should be an inspiration to those intrusted with the problems of the nation today, and fire them with determination."

Chicago-Dallas Flying Time Cut to 6½ Hours

Braniff Airways today will place in operation a new schedule of six and a half hours between Chicago and Dallas with a new series of Lockheed Orion planes, which cruise at 185 miles an hour and have a top speed of 220 miles an hour. When air mail service was inaugurated on the line in 1926, the flying time was 12 hours between Chicago and Dallas.

NAVY OFFICERS SHIFT COMMANDS WITH CEREMONY

Schofield and Leigh Assume New Duties.

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Two veteran naval officials who more than forty years ago were classmates at Annapolis stood on the decks of the battleship Texas today and saw each other assume high naval commands.

ADMIRAL SCHOFIELD.

The shift in America's battle fleet brought Admiral Frank H. Schofield into the position of commander in chief and raised Vice Admiral Richard H. Leigh to the rank of admiral in command of the battle force, the position relinquished by Schofield, his classmate.

Another Annapolis graduate who preceded Schofield and Leigh by a year in leaving the naval academy relinquished the command of the nation's floating forces to Schofield. He is Admiral Jehu V. Chase, whose duty at Washington as a member of the navy general board accompanies a reversion of title to rear admiral.

True to naval tradition, the shift in commands was made in a colorful ceremony, swords rattled, cannon bombed and the blare of martial music echoed along battleship row as officers and men alike, attired in full parade dress, carried out the formation as usual at such events.

The navy acquired not only a new commander, but a new flagship as well. The Texas will be superseded by the modernized dreadnaught Pennsylvania.

Capt. McDowell Named to Attend World Police Meet

Capt. Ira McDowell, of the Irving Park station, former deputy commissioner of police, was chosen by Mayor Cermak yesterday to represent Chicago at the convention of police chiefs of the world to be held in Paris Oct. 1. Capt. McDowell will leave Friday for New York. Acting Commissioner Alcock could not attend because of the press of police business, Mayor Cermak said.

FRANCE TO HONOR MACARTHUR WITH HIGHEST AWARD

RHEIMS, France, Sept. 15.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the United States army, tomorrow will receive the grand cross of the Legion of Honor, France's highest decoration.

The cross will be pinned on his tunic by André Maginot, minister for war, in the course of a review of 50,000 troops who have been participating in war maneuvers. The ceremony will take place on the edge of the world war battlefield, northwest of Rheims.

Gen. MacArthur spent another busy day dashing back and forth along the battle line. He has been covering the French maneuvers with thoroughness. The general has been scouring the country day after day in a fast motor car witnessing practically every phase of action and inspecting all new arms.

STAGG DRILLS 47 MAROONS; 53 REPORT AT N. U.

BIG SQUAD OUT FOR 'OLD MAN'S' FORTIETH YEAR

Chicago Captain 14 Pounds Heavier.

Pictures and reports of opening football practice at Notre Dame and Big Ten schools will be found on page 23.

Coach A. A. Stagg began work with his fortieth Maroon squad yesterday morning. He made no reference to the anniversary, but immediately split his squad of 47 into teams and started them working on plays developed in spring practice.

The squad was slightly larger than expected, but the surplus provided no phenomenal prospects. It is apparent that only a limited number of first rate players are available, but there is material for a good eleven.

The team composed of leading candidates had five letter men and four sophomores in the lineup. Keith Parsons, the only sophomore to win a letter last year, was at center; Capt. Ash Horwitz and Stanley Hamberg were at guards; Bert Cassels and John Spearing played the tackles, and practically all candidates were tried at end, including the veteran Bernard Wien, Pompeo Teigo, Warren Bellstrom and William Berg.

Paul Stagg Calls Signals.

Paul Stagg called the signals and three sophomores were his back field mates: Vinson Sahlin, Peter Zimmer, and H. O. Page Jr.

There is nothing definite about the first team lineup as yet, but with the double header against Cornell and Illinois a week from Saturday, Stagg must soon get a combination working together.

Stagg was well satisfied with the condition of his squad, practically all of whom reported ready for hard work. Capt. Sam Horwitz furnished a surprise, for he weighed in at 184 pounds as compared to last year's 170. Horwitz spent the summer as a counselor at a camp in Wisconsin, and does not expect to lose much of his weight.

Manelkis Has Arm Set.

Walter Manelkis, the tackle candidate who broke his arm and didn't know the fact because he never reported back to ascertain the results of an X-ray examination, was sent to the hospital on Monday night to have the arm set. The break is not a bad one, and it is hoped that Manelkis will be ready for light work in a few weeks. Ken Mackenzie, a back field C man who is a strong defensive player, is to be examined to determine the seriousness of an injury he received this summer.

The linemen are in for some strenuous individual drilling under the direction of Assistant Coach H. O. Page, for reserves are badly needed.

BATTALINO BEATS SHEA IN 10 ROUND NON-TITLE BOUT

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Bat Battalino, world's featherweight champion, decisively defeated Eddie Shea of Chicago in a ten round bout tonight. The title was not at stake.

It was the second time they have met, Shea winning a decision in ten rounds at Chicago Jan. 23. The Chicagoan weighed 127 pounds; Battalino, 126.

Neither fighter was knocked down, but Shea was cut on the nose in an early round and his left eye was damaged late in the fight. The champion came through unscathed.

Referee Billy Conway's score card gave Battalino every round but the first and the third. He gave the first to an even round and the third to Shea.

Gabby Street Drops In and Stays to Win a Few Pennants

[This is the first of a series of articles about the St. Louis Cardinals.]

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15.—When Gabby Street joined up with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929 there were those who thought he had been sent for to mow the Sportsman's park grass, if any.

For sixteen years he had managed one minor league club after another, moving so rapidly that the postoffice gave up the idea of supplying him with forwarding cards. Of course, no one called Gabby a busher, as they once did Joe McCarthy. Gabby had played in the big show for five years, beginning in 1908.

The members of the Cardinal nine had heard—and who hadn't?—that Mr. Street was the fellow "who used to catch Walter Johnson." But this was too much like the gag about shaking the hand that shook the hand of John L. Sullivan.

His Catching Feats Fail to Impress Cardinals.

When the "Walter Johnson catcher" bally-hoo failed, it was related that Gabby once caught a ball thrown from the top of the Washington monument. Or almost the top. This was heralded at the time as quite a feat and very hard on the gloved hand.

The 1929 crop of Cardinals further refused to be impressed. All Street had done was catch the ball with a large glove.

So here was a middle aged man hired out as a coach. He wasn't hired to mow grass and the gang wasn't awed about him catching Walter Johnson and a ball off the Washington monument. He had to make good with the assets he had at hand.

Gabby had one big advantage. He was born in Alabama and any one who can speak Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, or Texas has a big edge. You'd be surprised how a fellow can get around a major league ball park if he has mastered one or more of these tongues.

Well, Sam Breadon, main man of the Cardinals, soon noticed that though he was born in Alabama, Gabby had been away long enough to be very aggressive. But there still was enough of Alabama about him to make him calm at all times.

Breadon Hires Him to Save Railroad Fare.

The first year Gabby was with the Cardinals, Bill McKechnie and Billy Southworth were playing button, button, who's got the button with the manager's job. McKechnie would run up and handle the Rochester club a while and then some Monday morning he'd find Southworth had come up from St. Louis and had taken his Rochester uniform. The idea also worked vice versa.

So Mr. Breadon says to himself, "Here I am spending a lot of money on carfare for these two fellows to commute between St. Louis and Rochester when I have got a man right on the ground.

"Any man who catches baseballs off the Washington monument must know how to keep his head up. I just believe I'll hire Charles E. Street to manage this here ball team in 1930 and save all that overhead of McKechnie and Southworth running back and forth between St. Louis and Rochester."

It no sooner was said than done but there was lots of wise cracking going around about the fact that the way to lose your job was to win a pennant as manager of the Cardinals.

Gabby Gets Mad and Wins Pennant in First Year.

This made Gabby Street's southern blood boil and just to defy the columnists he steps right out and wins a pennant the first year.

In this, Street's second successful year, there has been little or no talk about Street not being in full charge of the team while it is on the field. Even now, with a Breadon contract for 1932 in his safety box, you never hear Street referred to as a miracle man or any of those titles they usually hang on successful managers. And much of Street's fine work is discounted because of the startling efficiency of the Cardinals' chain store system of developing ball players.

Those on the inside know, however, that Street is entitled to a lot of credit. It is nice to have the players sent up from the farms, and many a manager is envious of the system. But the manager of a good ball club must keep the athletes from getting stuck on themselves and mad at each other.

Street is described as a genius at keeping the team spirit on edge. He doesn't "manage" except when there is managing to be done. The pomp of managership means nothing to Street, even if he was a sergeant in the world war.

WHITE SOX HEAR A'S CLINCH FLAG, SO QUIT DRIVE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 15.—There seems to have been some mistake about the recent pennant dash of the White Sox, for it was reported during their crucial contest with the Red Sox today that the Athletics had won the American league pennant to a mathematical certainty. This caused great consternation among the boys, but they are very resourceful and they immediately decided that if they couldn't fight for first place then they would battle to a finish for eighth.

So the young athletes quickly went into reverse and began their campaign for eighth place with a triumphant defeat which brought them within half a game of the Red Sox, who are defending the goal. The score was 3 to 2 and there was great tension in Boston as the two teams awaited the morrow when the White Sox hope to stretch their losing streak to two straight and win the coveted depths.

Bitter Losers' Fight.

Ordinarily, a losing streak of two straight would be no feat at all for the White Sox, but in the present case they are pitted against a lot of boys who have put together some remarkable losing streaks themselves, and tomorrow's game will be a bitter fight between two great free style losers for the lowest honor in the national game.

With this incentive to spur them backward, the White Sox left the park bubbling over with pessimism, and they were only the more determined when they heard that the governor of Massachusetts had issued a proclamation intended to inspire the Red Sox with that sort of misgiving which will not acknowledge victory.

"Men," the proclamation read, "the interest of our citizens in your stirring contest is at zero heat and every heart thrills with apathy for your splendid defense of eighth place. We are counting on you to lose tomorrow and we know you will exert your worst efforts to this end, but lose or win we shall know that you have fought the bad fight. It is no disgrace to win and it takes genuine manhood to accept victory without bitterness or excuses. If it should be your lot to win tomorrow your followers will understand and forgive, but I feel confident that you will lose decisively. Let today's victory be forgotten. We can't all lose all the time. Be of good gloom, then, and may the morrow bring defeat."

Red Sox Get Breaks.

The White Sox were plainly astonished to learn that the Athletics had won the pennant, and this confusion was not untinged with bitterness, as it was felt that some one, possibly

Bishop Valuable Cog, Though Mechanical, Colorless Player

[This is the third of a series of sketches on the Philadelphia Athletics.]

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 15.—It seems too bad that Max Bishop ever learned to play ball, because he would have made an ideal bridge tender somewhere in the upper reaches of Gooseberry creek, whereas in baseball he is merely a name in a lineup, a workman on a job. Bland, blond, phlegmatic, and no more responsive to the glamour of his game than a dead man to an indictment, this mechanical athlete keeps his hours at the ball yard, does what the game demands of him, collects his pay, and exists.

It is quite obvious from the remarks of Connie Mack that Bishop isn't his favorite ball player.

"He plays for pay day," the Old Man says, "not because he enjoys the game, and I never can understand how fellows can come along every now and again who can play a game so well with so little liking for it. I don't think he ever enjoyed playing a game of ball, so how do you suppose he ever became a ball player in the first place and then a champion on a major league club? He has been a fine routine player for years, too. He and Joe Boley made our infield when I got them from Baltimore."

His Story Is Merely a Few Statistics.

A whole team of Max Bishops might win pennants, but the club would go broke because the customers, for excitement, would turn from the ball yard to watch a man dig a hole.

His story is merely a few statistics, six years with Baltimore, eight with the A's, a mediocre hitter, a good fielder but no star, and a player who gives an impression of being always cautious lest he do too much or seem to delight in his work.

Possibly Max is working out a policy. He had a squabble about a matter of wages in the spring of 1929, the year the Athletics won the first pennant, and lost the decision. Since then it has seemed that he is careful to give the management a dollar's worth of work for every dollar of pay, but not a cent's worth more.

Bishop is ailing more often than most players, and if he were more enthusiastic in action his absences from the lineup might be more generously excused. But things being as they are, when Max lays off, it isn't said that Bishop is sick or Bishop is hurt, but that Bishop says he is sick or hurt.

Two Sides to His Argument.

He says he has a sore muscle with an inflection suggesting that another player might go ahead and play and even run a little risk of his future under the same circumstances.

Still, on the union side of the argument, it can be set forth that a ball player's muscles are the tools of his trade and that if he wears them out by reckless usage no magnate is likely to carry him on out of loving friendship. Possibly if he had won the decision in that wage dispute he would have been a little more lively, but he never was a Ty Cobb for enthusiasm, and a salary of $100,000 a year might only have made him more cautious to preserve his muscles so as to go on collecting at the same rate.

HURRICANES RIDE TO VICTORY OVER HURLINGHAM, 18-5

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Stephen [Laddie] Sanford's Hurricanes gave the Hurlingham team one of the worst defeats in international polo on International field this afternoon. The Argentines were swamped. The combination of Guest to Roark to Sanford deserves a place with that of Tinker to Evers to Chance, famous in baseball history.

The field was slow from the heavy rain of yesterday, and after the first few chukkers presented the appearance of a pockmarked battleground. Laddie Sanford finished the day with eleven tallies, a new mark for high goal tournament play. Capt. Pat Roark, the ten goaler from England, had five and Winston Guest was credited with two.

Lacey Leads Hurlingham.

Lewis Lacey, a ten goal man in his adopted South American country and one of polo's greatest figures, was the star for Hurlingham. He accounted for two of the Argentine scores and might have made more if he had not been compelled to desert his number three position and go to his old place at back to defend his goal.

Santa Paula, the other South American four of which so much has been expected and which so far has produced in every game, will play the Greentree team, of which Thomas Hitchcock Jr., greatest of the American stars, is a member, tomorrow afternoon. The winner of that match will play the Hurricanes on Saturday for the open title.

A threat of rain cut the attendance to less than 10,000 this afternoon and the game was so one-sided that it was listless at times.

The horses from the Hurlingham string were not so fast nor so quick as those ridden by the Hurricanes. Young Terrence Preece, slim Hurricane back, outrode every member of the Argentine four on Daphne in the first and fourth periods. Roark was invincible on Bridget. She followed the ball with more than human precision and time after time brought the Britisher in position to smash the ball.

Benitz Scores from Difficult Angle.

The most sensational goals of the afternoon were made by Winston Guest and John Benitz. Guest hit a backhand drive over the heads of six players that sped 35 yards past the posts. Benitz made his counter from the far west side at the south goal. It looked like an impossible angle, but the ball went through.

HANLEY STARTS WORK FOR BIG 10 TITLE DEFENSE

Marvil Leads Purple in 2 Sessions.

Pop Warner Ill

PALO ALTO, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Glenn [Pop] Warner, veteran football coach of Stanford university, was taken ill today and ordered to bed shortly before his team turned out for the first practice of the season.

Dr. Granville Wood said Warner was suffering from an intestinal disorder and was running a temperature of 102. While not unduly alarmed over the condition of his patient, Dr. Wood said the case could not be considered lightly. Coach Warner is 60 years old.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Fifty-three football players reported to Coach Dick Hanley yesterday morning at Dyche stadium for the opening of Northwestern's campaign to defend the 1930 championship of the Western conference now held in common with Michigan.

At the same time the other Big Ten rivals began preparation for intersectional and conference combat, while Notre Dame, under the leadership of Hunk Anderson, set about the business of extending a two year series of 19 triumphs.

Teams Tentatively Formed.

It is an anachronism to say that football practice started yesterday at Northwestern or at any of the conference camps. Practice merely has become intensive with the approach of competition. Drills last spring already have determined with a degree of certainty the inaugural lineups. Some of the selections may be tentative, but it is certain each coach has a definite combination of players in mind.

Most of the players reporting at the camps yesterday have been in training for several weeks. Many have only two weeks or less before first games.

Northwestern got away to squad practice yesterday without waste of time. And the defending champions carried on with a vigor and spirit presaging success for the Purple.

"The boys sure are on fire," Jack Riley, veteran tackle and one of the five mainstays of the team Hanley must build, remarked as he took time out to rest from heavy duty.

Players in High Spirits.

Hanley can bank on that spirit. He knows it is an essential Northwestern must have if it whips Nebraska Oct. 3 and moves on to the all important Notre Dame game Oct. 10 at Soldiers' field before tackling a five game conference schedule.

Hanley's task is not an easy one. Five regulars from last year are the balance wheel for a team which must depend on reserve lettermen and sophomores in the other positions.

Hanley is not pessimistic. Rather he is thankful for material at hand. Capt. Dal Marvil and Jack Riley, experienced tackles starting their third year together, are a pair to delight any coach. Each is over six feet tall, weighs more than 215 pounds, is agile and intelligent.

It is an axiom of football that no team can win a championship without outstanding tackles. Defensively they are imperative to halt opponents' ball carriers and offensively, particularly under the Warner system in which the men are used side by side in an unbalanced line, their power is essential.

Engebretsen Stays at Tackle.

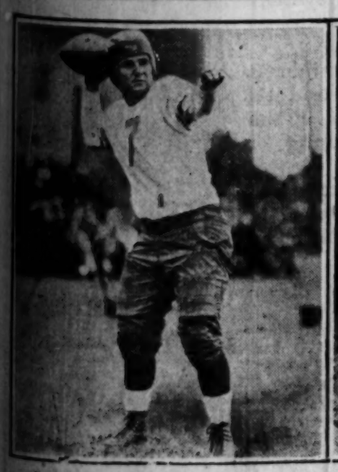
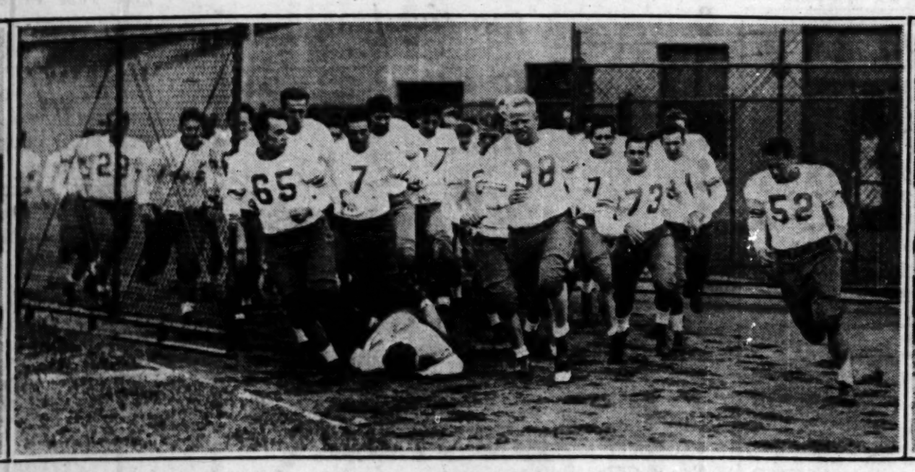
FOOTBALL STEPS INTO SPOTLIGHT AT NORTHWESTERN AND CHICAGO

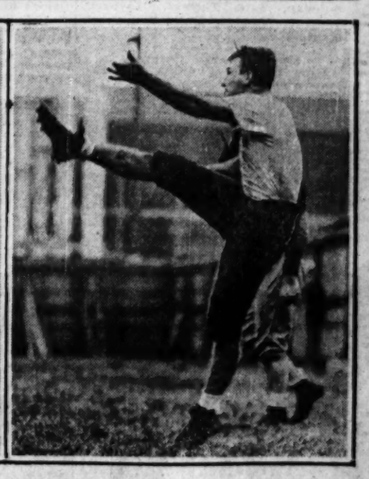


Ready to carry on. Reb Russell, one of the greatest full backs in the country last year, as he appeared yesterday in Northwestern's first practice.



Look out for those Wildcats! Here they come, fifty-three of them, charging onto the football field at Dyche stadium yesterday as the western conference football season got under way with the first practice of the fall. The Northwestern squad showed the same vigor and spirit that carried it to the top of the Big Ten and a tie with Michigan for the championship last year. [Acme Photo.]

The path of glory isn't embellished with primroses, Harlan O. Page Jr., a backfield candidate at the University of Chicago, will tell you. Even though he is the son of Pat Page, Coach Stagg's assistant, he finds football hard work on a day as hot as yesterday. [Acme Photo.]



Getting away a long one. Joe Temple, on whom Coach Stagg is depending for a lot of the punting this season, unlimbers his kicking leg at Stagg field.

FAVORITES TAKE JOLT OR TWO AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Don Leon Beats My Dandy in Thomas Hotel.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Favorite players, who have been celebrating from one day to the next since the Lincoln Fields season opened, encountered some very rough going as yesterday's program was run off.

And their most severe jolt came in the Thomas Hotel handicap, when My Dandy, the old idol of Chicago crowds, and the odds on favorite, failed them. The unexpected winner was Don Leon, a Kentucky 3 year old which has been trying to associate with the top notchers all season, but with but very little success.

Dismal weather prevailed, a drizzle of rain falling all afternoon. But as the water soaked into the track it didn't change running conditions to any great extent, for Don Leon ran his seven furlongs in 1:25, which wasn't so far off the track record.

It was Don Leon's race from start to finish, although at the end Satin Spar was coming with a drive that carried him to within a head of victory and he might have won in just one more jump. But that last jump never came.

Dodgson Saves Form Players.

So many favorites were beaten during the early part of the afternoon it looked for a time as if the folks who back the choices were going to run out of money. But old Dodgson saved them when he won the sixth race.

The upheaval started when the program opened with the running of a six furlong dash for two year olds. Mueller was the heavily backed favorite. But a field horse called Red Shadow showed him his heels all the way and won handily, with Dawn Mist third but well back of the two leaders.

A fair sized shower was coming down when Outer Harbor romped home in the six furlong second race. He won easily by three lengths from The Okah with Town Limit third. Nifty, the favorite, didn't even get any part of the purse.

Sharp Thoughts Wins Calumet.

The Calumet purse at seven furlongs found the favorite, Cathop, outrun by Sharp Thoughts and beaten by two lengths. He paid $10.96 and was going so well near the finish he was pulling away from those behind him. Sunlday was a surprise third.

The Kankakee purse, another dash at seven furlongs, found Sister Mary as the offending favorite. Weideleen, a mud running daughter of Paul Weidel, jumped out with the leaders at the start, raced Patricia Ann and Sister Mary into submission going down the back stretch and held them safe in the drive for home.

City Series to Start Sept. 30 at Cubs' Park

The Cubs and White Sox will start battling Wednesday, Sept. 30, for the city championship and whatever might be picked up in the shape of gate receipts. The dates and other details were settled yesterday at a meeting in the office of Commissioner Landis. Those in attendance were William Harridge, president of the American league; William Veeck, president of the Cubs, and Harry Grabiner, secretary of the Sox.

In accordance with world series regulations which govern the local event, the first two games will be played at Wrigley field, home of the Cubs, who have won the last two fall meetings with the south siders. Then three games will be staged at Comiskey park on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Games Nos. 6 and 7, if played, will take place at Cubs' park. The players will share in the receipts of the first four games.

Reserved seats will be placed on sale a week from today at both parks, The Hub, and A. G. Spalding's. Tickets will be sold for single games and the regular season's prices will prevail. General admission will be sold on the day of the game.

Jurges, the Cub infielder who returned to the club Sunday, will not be eligible for the event because of having been sent to Louisville shortly before the Sept. 1 deadline. The list of eligibles follows:

Macks Clinch Pennant with 14-3 Victory

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia Athletics clinched their third consecutive American league championship today by defeating the Cleveland Indians, 14 to 3, while Washington was losing to St. Louis.

The Macks could lose their 12 remaining games and still be sure of the title, even if the Senators win all of the 13 left to play. Earl Averill of the Indians hit his 30th homer of the year.

115 REPORT FOR FIRST GRID DRILL AT NOTRE DAME

Squad Shows Rockne Spirit for Anderson.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 15.—Notre Dame held its first official football practice of the 1931 season today without the familiar figure of Knute Rockne on the field, but if spirit and enthusiasm count for anything, you would have thought that Rock was all here, prepared to weld the 115 aspirants for the team into another national championship eleven.

Here was a regiment of energetic young men facing one of the most difficult schedules ever confronting a football team. Other Notre Dame teams have come out autumn after autumn with hard games before them, but always there was a chunky, bald headed man they call "Rock" to guide them.

Only Five Regulars Report.

This year they haven't Rock. They're up against a typical Notre Dame schedule, and only five first string men from last year's team were at the field today. The present situation at Notre Dame is equivalent to a racing handicapper assigning 140 pounds to Sun Beau for a stake race. None of these obstacles appears to have affected the team, however, judging from the manner in which they went through their practice sessions this morning and afternoon. One reason for this can be found in the presence of Heartly [Hunk] Anderson, Rockne's chief lieutenant for years and now senior coach. Another is Jesse C. Harper, who coached Rockne when the latter first came to Notre Dame, and who has since returned as athletic director.

Hunk didn't issue an order today that wasn't carried out to the letter with genuine willingness.

Easy for the Photographers.

The practice today was more or less a holiday for a band of photographers and motion picture cameramen, who made shots of Anderson, Harper, Capt. Tommy Yarr and others on the squad from a dozen different angles. The workout was confined to a series of calisthenics, and a session of signal calling, with Emmett Murphy, a likely looking quarter back from East Chicago, doing the chanting.

It was during this period, that the team's enthusiasm appeared to reach its height. It was only the first day of practice, but the boys deported themselves as if they were playing the Army tomorrow, with the Four Horsemen in the lineup. When Mike Koken, the Youngstown, O., half back, smashed through an imaginary tackle, Anderson shouted at him: "At's the old ball carrying in there, Mike, old boy, old boy," and the eleven working out at the time went through the next few plays with an extra show of speed and energy. It appears that this year's team is going to work for Anderson as its predecessors worked for Rockne.

The Holdover Roster.

The five first string men from the 1930 team are Capt. Yarr, center; Marchmont Schwartz, half back; Edwin Kosky, end; Al Culver, tackle, and Joe Kurth, tackle. The letter men from last year's squad are Paul Host, end; James Harriss, Norman Greeney, Phil Pierce, and Nord G. Hoffman, guards; Dick Mahoney, end; John Rogers, center; Charles Jackwich, quarter back; Mike Koken, half back; Carl Cronin, half, and Nick Lukats, full back. Among the talented members of the 1930 team who will not return are Larry Mullins; Frank Butler, center, and Bob Terlack, guard, both letter winners last year; and Fritz Staab, full back.

And What a Schedule!

Anderson lined up a tentative first team today which included Kosky and Mahoney, ends; Culver and Kurth, tackles; Harriss and Hoffman, guards; Yarr, center; Murphy, quarter back; Koken and Sheeketski, half backs, and Lukats, full back. Koken was taking the place of Marchy Schwartz, who will report for duty tomorrow.

This, then, is the material with which the first Rockneless Notre Dame team faces a schedule including Indiana, Northwestern, Drake, Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania, Navy, Southern California and Army.

Somewhere in the scores of sophomores who were out for today's practice on Cartier field, there may be a Gipp or a Carideo. But Anderson, Harper, and the team don't seem worried about it.

FORTY-NINE OUT AT IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Forty-nine University of Iowa football candidates turned out in a drizzling rain for instructions under Coach Burt Ingwersen here today. All the Hawkeyes' twelve major and eight minor letter winners reported for the first practice, but three promising sophomore linemen were absent.

Thomas Millisack, whom Coach Ingwersen had planned to try at a varsity end position, failed to show up, as did Jerry Foster, star sophomore tackle, and Glenn Baker, tackle prospect. All except Millisack are expected to report later this week.

GOPHERS HAVE 75

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Fritz Crisler, beginning his second year as University of Minnesota football coach, had 75 candidates with which to work when the Gophers went through a double practice today.

The squad included 17 letter men, but lacked one of the most promising freshmen of last year—Frank Larson. Larson was to play full back understudy for Jack Manders or a regular end position, but he informed friends that he intends to stay out of school for at least a year. Another missing athlete was 215 pound Jim Nichols, substitute tackle last year.

Crisler picked a tentative first squad for a signal drill. Robinson and Anderson were at ends, Boland and Wells at tackles, Munn and Rethsen at guards and Stern at center, all veterans. In the back field, My Ubl, a newcomer, was the team at quarter, with Burdick and Walt Haas at the halves and Jack Manders at full.

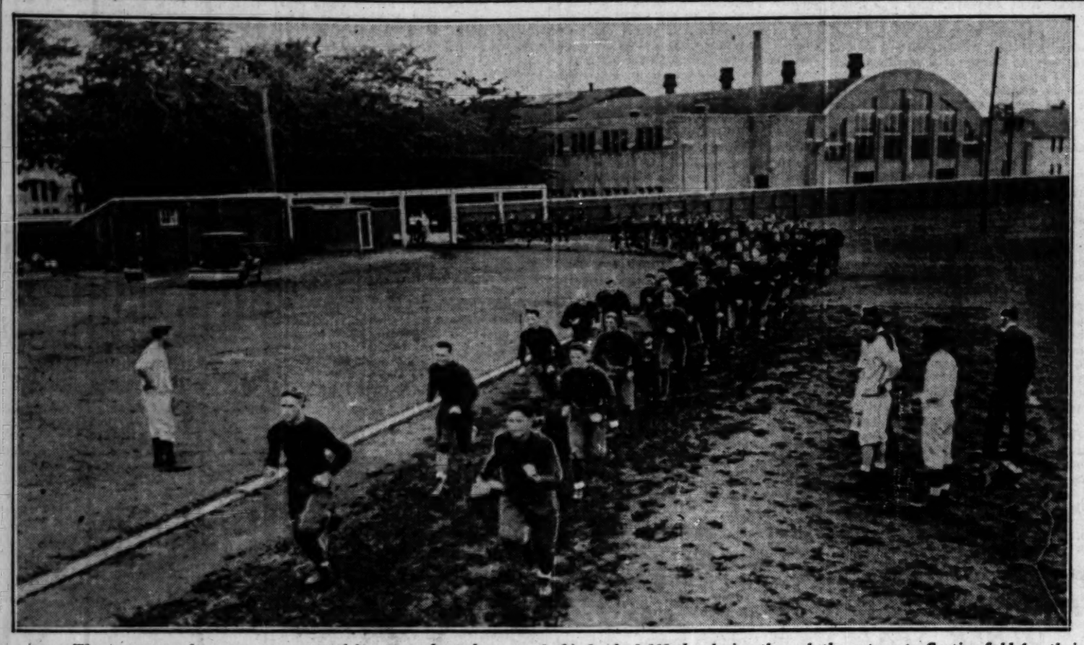
AS THE ROCKNE SPIRIT CARRIES ON AT NOTRE DAME



There may not be another quartet of horsemen here, but out of this herd of 115 thundering through the gate onto Cartier field for their first practice Notre Dame expects to build another great eleven to carry on in memory of the late Knute Rockne. There were only five regulars from last year in this group. [Acme Photo.]

Zuppke Picks Sophomore Eleven First

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—"You are green, but you are rugged and you have the spirit," Bob Zuppke told the University of Illinois football squad today. Approximately 70 candidates appeared for forenoon and afternoon practice.

These 12 letter men reported: Berry and Evans, half backs; Schultz, full back; Root and Munch, quarter backs; Jensen, Nusspickel, and Bodman, guards; Swanson, Wilson, Bennett, Owen, and Steinman, ends.

Organizes Sophomore Squad.

The first eleven organized by Zuppke was the all sophomore squad he used in spring practice: Schustek and Frink, ends; Hyink and Glick, tackles; Piatt and Gorenstein, guards; Straw, center; Horsley, quarter back, and Carson, Cook and Snavely, backs.

These youngsters, all rated contenders for varsity positions, demonstrated formations and plays and then Zuppke organized four other elevens on which the most promising players were distributed.

Gil Berry, leading back from last year's varsity, appeared in a back field combination which included Charles, quarter back; Walser and Al Hall.

Charles Out with Injuries.

Injuries have kept Charles, freshman captain two years ago, out so far.

Most of the candidates expected to report were on hand and there were few losses that were not expected. John Snook of Aurora, sub full back last year, was operated on for appendicitis this morning, and Lind Murray of Cairo, a candidate for tackle, sent word he would be unable to return to the university.

PURDUE HAS DOUBLE DRILL

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 15.—[Special.] Purdue held double football drill for the first time in years today as the Boilermaker squad reported to Coach Noble Kizer.

Classes at Purdue do not start until Thursday, giving Kizer two days in which the squad can devote all of its time to conditioning. Kizer took full advantage of today's double drill, with two hour sessions in both the morning and afternoon.

Twenty-one major letter men and nine minor letter men were among those who reported.

MISS MAC MORRAN LEADS NEW YORK WOMEN'S GOLF

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Miss Helen MacMorran of Indian Hill, Chicago, led the second lap of the women's western New York 72 hole Derby at Wanakah Country club course today.

Her total of 175 was one better than those of Mrs. Marian Turpie Lake, Flushing, Long Island, and Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, who are tied for second place. Jane Weiller, Chicago district champion, dropped to fourth place. Mrs. H. D. Raymond of Evanston is leading the first flight with 187.

valuable substitute. Hanley has decided to keep Engebretsen at tackle and not move him to center.

Jim Evans, another third year man, who captained a Carl Schurz city high school league championship eleven, is the other line veteran.

In the back field are Reb Russell, full back, and Pug Rentner, right half back. Those who saw Russell rip through the center of Notre Dame's line last fall appreciate his value while the accurate forward passing of Rentner (he did not play against Notre Dame because of injuries) made the path to a Big Ten title a one-sided parade.

Problems for Hanley.

These are Northwestern's aces. With the 1930 substitutes and sophomores Hanley must solve these problems:

1. Find a left end to catch forward passes like Baker did last year. At the same time discover at least two ends whose defensive ability can match Big Ten competition and whose blocking can check opposing tackles on the offense.

2. Develop an accurate passer at center in whom the backs will have confidence. This center also must fit into a pass defense as did Clark in 1930.

3. Discover a kicker who can earn a regular position. Oliver Olson, a sophomore from Wheaton, is a superior kicker. Inexperience is his handicap, and he must develop as a blocker and tackler.

4. Drill a field general who can direct the team's attack.

Solution to Problem.

Hanley yesterday indicated that he expected to solve these problems in this manner:

1. Ralph Eylar is the leading candidate for left end. Dick Fencl probably will play right end. Four sophomores, Ed Manske, Howard Kostbade, Louis Streubing, and Art Jens, are possibilities. Jens, a lanky lad with basketball experience at Wheaton, Ill., may get that left end assignment.

2. Paul McDonald, who rated second to Clark last year, has unexpectedly returned to the university. Mil Froberg, a sophomore, and Harold Weldin, a junior, are possibilities.

3. Olson will punt when he plays. Now he is rated third string full back, with Russell and Ken Meenan, sophomore all-state full back from Oak Park, ahead of him. Meenan has been practicing kicking. In fact, the whole team is after the job. Engebretsen will kick off.

4. Will Lewis, a senior, is number one choice for quarter back. Al Moore, the present choice for left half back, is more experienced, since he worked at the job at some games in 1930. Pug Rentner also can call 'em.

Dilley Slated for Guard.

In addition to these men the guard position left vacant by Red Woodworth is scheduled for George Dilley, a junior.

Among the sophomores George Potter of Omaha, Neb., and John Sullivan of Chicago will be heard from. Bill Riley, a husky brother of Jack, is after a part time job at guard.

59 Candidates at Wisconsin Drill in All Day Rain

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—An all day rain failed to deter 59 candidates who reported today for the first 1931 practice of the University of Wisconsin football team. Head Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite starts his fifth season here with four returning regulars and 12 substitutes from last year's team.

The regulars are: Krueger, center; Kabat, guard; Capt. Smith, tackle, and Schneller, full back. Of the subs, four still must pass examinations for the removal of conditions. Thistlethwaite's big tasks seem to be the development of capable ends, a field general, and some reserve linemen, especially tackles. The end material is not impressive.

Wisconsin has a new line coach this year in Fred Swan, a graduate of Stanford, for the last two seasons at Colgate; a new end coach in Elmer Lampe of Chicago, who has been coaching at Evanston Township High school, and a new back field coach in Guy Sundt, former Badger freshman coach.

57 Wolverines Turn Out for First Practice

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A squad of 57 went through two light workouts on South Ferry field today to start football practice at Michigan. Coach Harry Kipke and his staff ordered a minimum of drill, due to the slippery turf.

Harry Eastman, first substitute for Capt. Ducky Simrall a year ago, and George Bremen and Bill Jordan, junior varsity regulars of 1930, were missing today. It was said that Eastman might not be back in school, while Bremen is suffering from a boil over his eye.

Men who turned out without invitations were Hazen and Kirby, tackles; Shick, a center, and Hayes, a half back. All have been on the freshman squad. Another who was unexpected was Duval Goldsmith, erstwhile full back, now being groomed for tackle. Goldsmith's eligibility is uncertain.

INDIANA'S BIGGEST SQUAD

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—More than 85 men, the largest football squad ever to report at Indiana university, were on hand today when the new Hoosier coaching staff took charge for the season. E. C. Hayes, who has succeeded Pat Page as coach, and his assistants are confronted with the job of getting a team ready to meet Ohio university here one week from Saturday in the opening game. The Ohioans, with a record of having won nineteen straight against strong opponents, are highly respected by the coaches.

78 OHIOANS REPORT

Columbus, O., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A squad of 78 men, representing the best opening day turnout since Sam Willaman became head football coach, reported for football at Ohio State today. There were only a few important absentees. Joe Hoffer, Youngstown half back, will report Thursday, while John Mazaika and Billy McKinney, sophomore linemen, will be in by the end of the week.

Coach Willaman announced that on Thursday an organization of the squad would be effected and that on Friday the first scrimmage would take place.

Retzlaff Knocks Out Stanton in 4th Round

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Charley Retzlaff, young Duluth heavyweight who suffered his first eastern setback in his last fight here, came back tonight to knock out Gene Stanton of Cleveland in the fourth round of their ten round bout at the Queensboro stadium tonight. The knockout came after a minute and 17 seconds of fighting in the fourth. Retzlaff weighed 195¼, Stanton 197½.

Quincy Wins Three Eye Title from Springfield, 3-1

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Quincy, winner of the second half of the split season, defeated Springfield tonight, 3 to 1, to win the 1931 Three Eye league championship. The victory was Quincy's fourth in the six games of the split season playoff, Springfield winning the first two.

Valley Groups Move to Rush Work on Fox

BY BOB BECKER.

While engineers are checking former surveys of the Fox river in order to bring them up to date, the Fox Valley federation, an organization of cities, towns and civic groups concerned with the improvement of the river and its environs, has appointed a reclamation committee to push a comprehensive plan for the rehabilitation of the Fox, Lester Norris of St. Charles, Ill., president of the federation, announced yesterday.

With the river choked by dams and unfit for the recreational uses of thousands of valley residents and many more thousands in Chicagoland, the committee is assembling data on costs of dredging the channel and the building of marine railways over dams, so that the river will be open to small craft. It is also studying the possibility of maintaining a steady flow of water so that in times of drought the river will not be dried up in places, a menace to health and a scenic eyesore as it has been this summer.

Two Surveys Made.

The personnel of this reclamation committee is as follows: Rodney Brandon, director of public welfare, Batavia, Ill.; State Auditor Oscar Nelson, Geneva; A. M. Wolf, engineer, St. Charles; E. N. Herbster, Elgin; B. P. Alschuler, Aurora, and Lester J. Norris and E. A. Keplar, president and secretary of the federation.

Two surveys are available as a basis for determining the costs of improving the Fox river. One was made by the state in the fall of 1915 when G. E. McCurdy and J. N. Shere navigated the 115 miles from the Fox lake region to Ottawa and submitted estimates on dredging a three foot channel and constructing marine railways to put small boats over the dams. The other, a federal survey, was made last year with the engineers interested primarily in flood control problems and the feasibility of improving the Fox waterway to handle freight.

Surveys Confirm Tribune Report.

As the federation points out, the U. S. survey of the Fox still classifies this river as a navigable stream, although it has 14 dams making it unnavigable from the Fox lake country to Ottawa. Moreover, the government engineers comment on the fact that the river is "noted for its beauty and is a favorite summer resort of thousands of Chicagoans." They point out that the total population of the valley is 300,000, and confirm the situation reported by THE TRIBUNE Fox river canoe cruise this summer that there is no uniformity in depth throughout the stream due to the dams and scores of shoals.

The most important feature about the state survey is its estimate of approximately $200,000 for the dredging of the river and the construction of lifts for boats at the dams between Algonquin and Yorkville.

"We are checking these figures and bringing them up to date," said Norris in outlining the program which the federation has under way to secure aid for the Fox river. "Judging from the preliminary studies which our reclamation committee is making the cost of improving the Fox river from Fox lake to Ottawa will not be large."

'Mr. Schaaf Will Never Stop ME,' Asserts Griffith

Ernie Schaaf, who meets Tuffy Griffith next Wednesday night at the Stadium, has knocked out his last seven opponents. Since last May he has stopped Jim Maloney, round 1; Jack Gagnon, round 1; Leo Williams, round 2; Jim Maloney, round 3; Angus Snyder, round 5; Vittorio Campolo, round 7, and Roberto Roberti, round 3.

This is where Griffith comes in. Perhaps it is where Griffith goes out, if Tuffy's ill-wishers are believed. But is it? Not according to Gerald Ambrose Griffith.

"All these victories were scored against slow men," he said yesterday. "Schaaf had no trouble finding his target. Maybe I won't win, but I know now that I won't be hit as easily as these boxers who have fallen like so many ten pins."

Another reason indirectly arrived at for thinking that Jack O'Keefe knew his business when he signed Tuffy with Schaaf is this: Tuffy ordinarily goes against the boys he figures to beat. Obviously he thinks he'll beat Schaaf. And when he has taken on a ranking contender such as Young Stribling, Tuffy has shown he knows his way around the ring.

Baxter Calmes and Mickey McFarland finish practicing today for their session Friday night at the Denemark stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. Calmes, who performed in a businesslike fashion against Nick Taft recently at White City, forcing the Chicago heavyweight to resign in the second round, is a serious threat to McFarland if he continues to fight as mentioned.

Sammy Levine, west side featherweight, and Charley Cerminaro are matched in the six round semi-windup. The show will be Promoter Billy Cepak's last out door attraction.

FOUR FAVORITES ELIMINATED IN PRO GOLF MEET

Providence, R. I., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Four of the outstanding members of the Professional Golfers association, including Walter Hagen, lost in the opening 36-hole matches of championship play here today on the Wannamoisett course.

Hagen, whose summer campaign includes only one important victory, the Canadian open, was not in form to combat the accurate putting of old Pete O'Hara of Verona, Pa., who many years ago won the Irish championship. O'Hara's opening round was a neat 75 that gave him a three-up lead. Hagen only succeeded in dubbing his drives as O'Hara one-putted him to death. With Hagen no better in the afternoon, O'Hara played safe to sail home with a 4 and 3 victory.

Leo Diegel of Detroit, P. G. A. champion in 1928 and 1929, lost to Wild Bill Mehlhorn of New York, 3 and 2.

Jim Foulis Beats Farrell.

Another star fell when Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., lost on the 36th green to Jim Foulis of Chicago, 2 down.

Another titleholder was eliminated when Cyril Walker of Ridgewood, N. J., beat Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., 5 and 4.

Tommy Armour, the defending champion, after being held even by Joe Kirkwood of Chicago for 18 holes, cut loose in the afternoon with some par golf to win, 2 and 1.

Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., open champion, was not pushed by Dave Hackney of Lowell, Mass., and won, 5 and 3. Gene Sarazen played the same kind of golf against Al Espinosa, Chicago, that he did yesterday when he won the medal with a 36 hole total of 145 and won, 9 and 8.

Macfarlane Downs Cuici.

Willie Macfarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., who defeated Bobby Jones in the playoff for the 1925 open title, blasted out a 3 and 2 victory over Henry Cuici, Stratford, Conn. Horton Smith, Detroit, continued in the running by lacing Walter Bemish, Geneseo, N. Y., 7 and 6. Two other matches went the full distance, Bob Crowley, Haverhill, Mass., defeating Pat Circelli, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Denny Shute, Hudson, O., nosing out Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Tex., both by one up margins.

In the second rounders tomorrow Sarazen will oppose Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Macfarlane will engage Smith, Walker will play Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., and O'Hara will meet Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y. Play in the lower half of the draw will pit Crowley against Burke, Abe Espinosa against Mehlhorn, Shute against Foulis, and Armour against Walter Murray, former public links player from Valparaiso, Ind.

Today Runyan defeated Arthur Gusa, Narragansett, R. I., 3 and 2; Creavy defeated Jack Collins, Dayton, O., 5 and 4; Golden defeated Alfred Sargent, Toledo, O., 3 and 2, and Abe Espinosa, Chicago, defeated Vincent Eldred, Bellevue, Pa., 4 and 3. Murray won from Eddie Schultz, 6 and 5.

150 HURRICANE VICTIMS FOUND IN CHURCH RUINS

Guards Fire on Looters; U. S. Consul Dead.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The death toll from last week's hurricane in Belize was raised today when relief workers found 150 additional bodies under the wreckage of the Catholic church.

Authorities estimated the number of bodies recovered to date at 850. They added that the total probably would be increased when ruins of outlying sections are searched. Officials in charge of the rescue work repeated that the number of dead never will be known. The prison crews, generally natives, ceased to count the bodies as they burned them.

"The dead may reach 1,500 or 2,000 altogether," Commander Morrow of the U. S. S. Sacramento said, "but the total never will be definitely established."

Bodies Are Cremated.

Immediately after searchers digging in the ruins of the Catholic church found the bodies the wreckage was burned. The bodies were taken to the huge funeral pyres in the center of the city and cremated. None of the bodies was identified and no ceremonies attended the cremation.

Looting was reported last night, and native guards shot several times at persons who failed to answer challenges.

The safe of Pan-American Airways was broken and robbed of $700 during the night, Didier Masson, local manager, said.

Many householders worked their way through wreckage into their damaged homes to find that clothing, tables, silverware, and other equipment had been taken.

American Consul Dies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—The state department was notified late today of the death of Giles R. Taggart, American consul at Belize, British Honduras. Mr. Taggart, according to the department, died at Tela, Honduras, of pneumonia caused by exposure during the recent hurricane which devastated Belize.

Mr. Taggart had been a member of the American consular service since 1912, serving at various posts in Canada prior to being assigned to Belize in 1927. He was a graduate of Princeton, University of Pennsylvania and George Washington university. Before entering the consular service he made his home in Washington, serving as a special attorney in the department of commerce. He was a native of New Jersey. He was married and the father of two children.

Mexican Victims Face Hunger.

MEXICO CITY Sept. 15.—(AP)—The situation at Santa Rosalia, Lower California, which was hit by a hurricane Saturday and Sunday, was said today to be growing serious because of food shortage, in meager reports received here.

At La Paz, which was also struck by the storm, a less serious condition was said to prevail, although the storm wrought considerable destruction.

Dispatches from Mazatlan said several small boats foundered in the Gulf of California and that several others, including the steamer Navojoa, with twenty persons aboard, were still unheard from.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Unconscious Confession

MRS. TABOR, 93, OF "TRUNK MURDER" FAME, IS DEAD

Tried at 80 on Charge of Killing Daughter.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A 93 year old woman who lost wealth, social position, and health in one of the most sensational murder mysteries Michigan has ever known, died at the home of her son near here today.

The woman, Mrs. Sarah I. Tabor, formerly a wealthy and socially prominent resident of Van Buren county, was the central figure in the Maude Tabor Virgo "trunk murder" mystery of 15 years ago. Her death added another chapter of sorrow to the history of the family which already had known the suicide of Mrs. Florence Tabor Critchlow, sister of Maude Tabor Virgo.

Body Found in Trunk.

Maude Tabor Virgo, an attractive school teacher, disappeared in 1916. Three years later her body was found in an old trunk beneath a pile of shingles in Mrs. Tabor's home. The mother, then 80 years old, was charged with slaying her daughter.

Mrs. Tabor told several stories during and after the trial which ended in a disagreement of the jury. She first said that Maude had died in her arms before the fireplace of their home May 1, 1916, and that she, herself, had placed the body in the trunk which had been her daughter's hope chest.

Experts testified that Maude Tabor Virgo died following an illegal operation. The mother denied this and testified that her daughter died of an overdose of chloroform and accused the husband, Joseph Virgo. Mrs. Tabor never stood trial a second time, the charges being dismissed for lack of evidence.

Goes to Poor House.

In 1921 Mrs. Tabor, believing she was on her death bed, told a new story. She said her daughter had committed suicide; that she had witnessed the act and that at her daughter's request she had kept the body in the house.

Mrs. Tabor's fortune was expended in fighting the charges against her. In 1922 she became an inmate of the Van Buren county poor house. The same institution she often had visited when her husband, Lester A. Tabor, was a prominent and wealthy lawyer in the county. Later Mrs. Tabor was taken from the poor house by her son Walter, at whose home she died today.

TWO CHICAGOANS DROWN IN LAKE AT LONG BEACH

Two Chicagoans were drowned yesterday at Long beach, near Michigan City, Ind., when a strong undertow swept them away from a group of companions with whom they had been bathing.

The victims were D. S. Boivin, 44 years old, 1539 North Waller avenue, and Nelson Harvey, 27 years old, 625 Sibley street.

Boivin and Harvey had gone to Michigan City to visit with a group of students of the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament, who have their house in Chicago at 1335 West Harrison street, adjoining the Church of Notre Dame de Chicago.

Several of the students were near when the two were swept out into the lake by the undertow, but were unable to go to their rescue. Life guards recovered the bodies within a short time, but resuscitation efforts failed.

JUDGE WILL RULE TOMORROW ON DOG TRACK WRIT

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday announced that he would give a decision tomorrow on the petition of the Thornton Coursing club for an injunction restraining police and the state's attorney from raiding the dog track.

A temporary injunction was granted several weeks ago by Judge William V. Bathers, sitting as an emergency chancellor. The case was then continued until it could be heard by Judge Feinberg, to whom it originally had been assigned.

Judge Feinberg criticized this postponement.

"The judges sitting in my absence had the power to rule in the matter but they relegated it until my return," he said. "I will not allow further recourse to court writs to enable the club to achieve the purpose of continuing the matter until the racing season is over."

JOHN S. HOLMES FUNERAL TODAY; REALTY DEALER

Mr. Holmes died on Monday in the Presbyterian hospital following an operation. He was 62 years old. Born on Prince Edward island, Canada, Mr. Holmes came to Chicago forty years ago. He acquired extensive interests in real estate and buildings on the north side. He is survived by his widow, Maude.

$125,000 Hangar Contract Let at Chicago Airport

A contract for the construction of a new hangar at a cost of $125,000 at Chicago airport was let to the Austin company yesterday by American Airways, Inc. The new structure will replace the hangar destroyed by fire in June, 1930, when buildings and equipment valued at $250,000 were lost. Brick, steel, and stone will be the materials used in the new building, which will be 200 by 167 feet and will be on the site of the former hangar, on the Sixty-third street side of the airport.

AIR CRASH QUIZ DISCLOSES HIGH SPEED IN STORM

Albert Malvick, pilot for the Chicago-Detroit Airways, who was killed Monday evening when his passenger plane crashed at 110th street near Lake Calumet, struck the ground while flying blindly at a speed of nearly 200 miles in a heavy storm, according to evidence at the inquest held in the South Chicago hospital yesterday.

Witnesses told the jury that the plane, a Lockheed Vega powered by a Wasp B motor, cut a 600 foot swath through the high marsh weeds.

The inquest was conducted by Deputy Coroner Lafeton Whitney, formerly an instructor in the army air corps and now a major in the reserve, who has been appointed to succeed Maj. Reed Landis as aviation expert on the staff of Coroner Bundesen.

A verdict that Malvick was killed accidentally while attempting to negotiate a forced landing was returned by the jury, which also recommended that all transport planes install radio equipment in order to receive during flight the reports of the weather bureau broadcast by department of commerce stations.

Malvick had received a report of the storm condition before taking off at Detroit, but received no supplemental reports on its increasing severity in the vicinity of Chicago.

Malvick's widow, Mrs. Pearl Malvick, 1328 West 77th street, attended the inquest. John A. Casey, manager of the Chicago airport, was foreman of the jury.

PLANS REGISTRY FOR AUTOS FROM OTHER STATES

Declaring that the city must regulate out of town automobilists to prevent Chicago residents from using license plates of other states to avoid paying the Illinois license and Chicago vehicle tax fees, Mayor Cermak yesterday was considering a plan under which all out of town motorists would register at police stations.

Stickers would be issued to the motorists designating the month or months that the out of town car would be in Chicago. Before issuing the stickers, however, the motorist would be asked to furnish proof that his automobile and license plates were obtained legitimately, and that he is actually a resident of some other state.

A recent survey, the mayor said, has shown that between 400 and 500 cars with license plates of other states are in the city every day. In some cases it has developed that the license plates had been reported lost in the state of their issuance.

AUTOS KILL 3 MORE; COUNTY TOLL AT 856

Three automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday brought the death toll since Jan. 1 to 856. The victims:

Herman Greese, 28 years old, 1800 South Lawndale avenue. Killed when his automobile turned over in a collision with another car at Roosevelt road and California avenue. Kenneth Hutchinson, 31 years old, 2443 North Lawndale, driver of the second automobile, was held.

Joseph Ciangi, 10 years old, 1011 Cypress street. Killed when he jumped from a milk wagon on which he had been stealing a ride and was struck by a sedan at Taylor and Cypress streets. The driver was Policeman Daniel O'Rourke of the detective bureau.

Michael Clear, 69 years old, 5633 West Roosevelt road, Cicero. Died in the Francis Willard hospital from injuries suffered on Sept. 12 when struck by a taxicab in front of his restaurant at the same address.

Mrs. J. C. Frerksen, 76 years old, 569 Spruce avenue, Lake Forest, was killed yesterday in an automobile collision fifteen miles west of Cedar Rapids, Ia. With her were her husband, who is 79 years old, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Griswold, all of whom were injured. Frerksen is a retired cabinetmaker.

SAFETY CONGRESS WILL MEET HERE ON OCT. 12 TO 16

Confronted with an estimate that the motor vehicle death toll will reach 35,000 in the United States this year, the highest total in history, members of the twentieth annual safety congress and exposition to be held at the Stevens hotel from Oct. 12 to 16 will turn their attention to "accident repeaters," it was announced yesterday. More than 7,000 delegates are expected to attend the congress. There will be 359 speakers.

Surveys of commercial truck fleet operators tend to prove, safety officials believe, that one-third of the drivers are responsible for most of the accidents. In a study of 1,200 operators, "accident repeaters" had from three to ten accidents each, another one-third had no accidents, and the rest averaged two accidents each.

An outdoor traffic demonstration will be held for delegates to the safety conference in Grant park. Methods of diagnosing and treating highway accident repeaters will be shown.

Funeral services for Deputy Sheriff Merrell Bettenhausen, attached to the Homewood county highway police, who died on Saturday, will be held at 2 p. m. today from the home of his brother, Irving, 6458 175th street, Tinley Park, and at the First Methodist church of Tinley Park.

AUTOISTS IGNORE 10,000 TICKETS; WARNING ISSUED

A warning to motorists that it may become necessary to arrest them and make them furnish bonds when they violate traffic laws, unless they cooperate in the present ticket system, was issued yesterday by Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court.

"In the Traffic court there are the names of over ten thousand people who have failed to recognize the traffic tickets by coming into that department to pay for traffic violations or to ask for a court trial," said Judge Sonsteby.

"Beginning Sept. 25, warrants or capiases will be issued and served on all these delinquents. The serving of a warrant or capias adds $8.50 as costs so that a man who might be assessed only $1 may have to pay $9.50.

"Unless the public cooperates by making payments or by asking for a court trial it might be necessary for the court to arrest in the first instance all violators of traffic laws and require them to give bond at the police stations."

START USING 6 MAN JURIES IN CITY COURTS

Six man instead of 12 man juries have been accepted by Chicago attorneys, and the Municipal court now is operating under the new system, Chief Justice Sonsteby announced yesterday. Judges John F. O'Connell, Jay A. Schiller, and Edward S. Sheffler tried cases in their courts with the new juries during the day.

Use of the six man jury, Chief Justice Sonsteby said, would bring about a saving of $500 a day to the city. A total saving of $50,000 is expected during the year, the chief justice said.

When the jury cases are called, he explained, the attorneys for both the complainant and defendant sign stipulations in which they agree that the use of the new jury is satisfactory. So far no attorney has refused. If such a contingency arises the case will be postponed for three weeks and the necessary jurors called, the chief justice said.

Listlessness • Warns of Poisons • Try Yeast!

ANOTHER listless, headachy afternoon! Work drags. Pep's gone.

OFTEN the trouble is Intestinal Fatigue. Correct it . . .

BY EATING yeast, in water or just plain—3 times a day.

© 1931, Standard Brands Incorporated

Feel DROWSY after lunch?

That's another sign of INTESTINAL FATIGUE
. . . a trouble you can easily correct

WOULDN'T you like to know how to make morning energy last all day? It's very simple. Get rid of Intestinal Fatigue!

For it's usually poisons resulting from this condition that make you unnaturally sleepy and tired . . . that lead to frequent headaches and colds . . . that steal away appetite and pep.

Now for over 75 years physicians have recognized the value of fresh yeast in cases such as yours.

Eaten as a regular part of your diet, yeast supplies certain elements needed to stimulate normal elimination. At the same time it softens accumulated body wastes, so that poison-breeding matter is swept away naturally.

Fresh yeast also stimulates secretion of digestive juices and so helps you digest your meals more easily. Energy picks up . . . After-eating drowsiness and lassitude disappear.

So start eating Fleischmann's Yeast today and notice how much more alert you feel in only a few weeks. You will benefit, too, from the health-giving vitamins (B, G and D) which every cake contains.

You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at all grocers', and at restaurants and soda fountains. Just eat three cakes daily, following the directions plainly printed on the label.

Eat FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST for Health—3 Cakes a Day

Always ask for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) . . . the only yeast "irradiated" to give it the Sunshine Vitamin D! Rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

CAR LOADINGS SHOW CAUTION NOW PREVALENT

Reversal of Recent Gains Reported.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The ultra-caution displayed by makers and distributors of all kinds of merchandise and commodities is illustrated in the railroad freight movement. For example, last month saw three successive weeks of expanding car loadings, and this raised hopes that at least a mild seasonal upturn in business had started.

But the first week in September brought a reversal, and it is a foregone conclusion that the second week of this month, which contained Labor day, will show a further decline. It is likely that the holiday was anticipated a week or more ahead by city merchants, who have about reached the ultimate in hand-to-mouth buying.

Down 4,218 During Week.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Sept. 6 totaled 759,546 cars, a decline of 4,218 from the preceding week and also a decrease of 71,181 from the corresponding week in 1930.

Miscellaneous freight totaled 279,301 cars, a decrease of 60,077 below the same week of 1930; merchandise, 218,981, increase 6,942; coal, 132,955, decrease 3,183; forest products, 27,975, decrease 9,134; grain and grain products, 38,234, decrease 11,832; live stock, 12,151, decrease 2,160.

The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States for the week ended Sept. 12 was 1,919,000 barrels, as compared with 1,746,300 barrels for the preceding week, a gain of 172,700 barrels, according to the American Petroleum institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,408,700 barrels, as against 1,242,100 barrels, an increase of 166,600 barrels. The reopening of the east Texas area accounted almost entirely for the gain in production during the last week.

There is some chance, however, of a diminishing spread between the freight movement during the remainder of this year and the latter months of 1930. The advisory board representing shippers in the southeastern territory have reported to the railroads that basic industries in that section expect the fourth quarter of this year will produce a volume of business about the same as a year ago. Pulp manufacturers forecast an increase of 10 per cent.

Makes Survey of Conditions.

A survey of favorable and unfavorable factors in the business situation leads the Brookmire Economic Service to conclude that, although definite signs of general improvement are lacking, there is ground for belief that the major portion of depression, both in the extent of the decline and in amount of time covered, is behind us. While the unfavorable factors are more impressive than the favorable factors, it is suggested that unfavorable factors are more easily seen at the present time, just as favorable factors obscured the bad at the top of the business boom two years ago.

Germany's Trade Balance Is Favorable in August

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Germany's August trade balance continued active, returns published today showed. Imports were $113,575,000 and exports $194,125,000, leaving a favorable balance of $80,550,000. Adding reparations delivered in kind of $6,525,000, the balance would be $87,075,000. Imports were $27,050,000 lower than in July and exports were lower by $3,975,000, not counting reparations. The export surplus for the first seven months is around $364,000,000.

Board of Trade Security Mart Ends Second Year

The stock exchange of the Chicago Board of Trade completed the second year of its operation at the close of the market yesterday. It was announced that the volume of transactions for the first eight months of 1931 had been increased by more than 20 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. Robert P. Boylan, chairman of the committee on stock list, said other major exchanges showed 25 to 80 per cent decrease for the same period.

Lake Shore Trust Pays Regular 1½% Dividend

Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent a share. Directors of Central Manufacturing District bank voted the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent a share.

Western Electric Company Omits Quarterly Dividend

The Western Electric company yesterday omitted the quarterly dividend due at this time. Three months ago 75c was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $4 annual basis. The company stated that "owing to decreased volume of sales the directors took no action on the dividend." Practically all of the 6,000,000 no par shares outstanding are owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Of the outstanding Western Electric issue 5,900,493 shares are owned by American Telephone and Telegraph company. On the previous $4 basis Telephone's income from Western Electric was $23,601,972 a year, or $1.31 a share on the 17,956,512 shares of Telephone common outstanding at the end of 1930. By today's action this income for Telephone has been cut off, although Western Electric has paid a total of $1.75 in 1931.

Initial Payment 50c.

The dividend record on the present Western Electric shares began with declaration of an initial 50c a share in June, 1927, which was followed in September by a like amount. In December of that year the company paid the regular 50c and a special dividend of $13 a share; 1928 disbursements were $2.75 regular and 25c special; 1929, $4 regular and $1 extra, and 1930, $4.

Following the announcement of the omission there was heavy selling of Telephone stock on the stock exchange which carried it down to a new low of 152¼, after which there was some recovery. This price was the low since 1927, when the stock touched 149¾.

Officials stated that Telephone earnings for 1931 are expected to cover the dividend requirement of $9 despite the omission of the Western Electric dividend.

The Weston Electrical Instrument company has omitted its quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock due at this time. The 50 cent quarterly dividend on class A stock was declared, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 19.

Directors of Willys-Overland company yesterday omitted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 due on the preferred.

Lowers Annual Rate.

Harbauer company of Cleveland reduced its annual dividend rate on the common from $1.80 to $1 by declaration of 25c quarterly. Associated Breweries [Canada] declared a quarterly dividend of 15c a share. Previous payments were at the rate of 25c quarterly.

Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper company declared an extra dividend of $1 a share. Last December the company declared an extra of $1.50.

Hydro Electric Securities corporation of Canada declared a dividend of 30c on its common stock. In the two previous quarters 35c was paid, prior to which 50c a share was distributed quarterly. New Orleans Cold Storage and Warehouse declared a quarterly dividend of $2 a share, compared with a previous quarterly rate of $2.50.

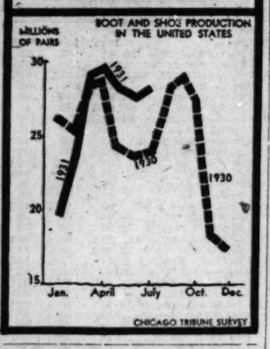
The Maryland Casualty company declared a quarterly dividend of 15c, placing the stock on a 60c annual basis, against $1.20 previously.

Get Dividend Checks.

Stockholders of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. received checks for a total of $11,065,762, being the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the outstanding $20 par value common stock.

On Saturday the company received $7,485,915 on its investment in General Motors common stock. The General Motors payment was from the regular quarterly dividend.

SHOE PRODUCTION CONTINUES WELL ABOVE LAST YEAR'S RATE



FINDS CHICAGO LEADS MIDWEST CITIES IN SEPT. RETAIL TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—A comparatively favorable report on business conditions in Chicago as contrasted with several other midwestern cities was made public today by the President's organization on unemployment relief.

"'Chicago retail business has been brisk so far in September,' according to the Chicago Association of Commerce report. 'Activity in the wholesale field has been less pronounced, although orders from both the city and country were in good volume and approximately equal to the corresponding period of last year. Settlement of the labor wage scale dispute concerning state highway projects tended to increase the number of inquiries in the cement, gravel, and allied material field.'"

Statistics available to the department, it was said, indicated that construction contracts awarded in the Chicago region were nearly $36,000,000 higher during the first half of August than in the corresponding period a year ago.

Reports from Indianapolis, indicated a steady decline in employment in that city during August, the department said. Pig iron production in the Calumet district was 65.5 per cent below normal, while building stone production dropped to a point 49.5 per cent below normal.

Interviews with executives of thirty leading plants in the Detroit area revealed that August was the worst month of the depression in that locality, according to the department's report.

Offering will be made today of $40,000,000 state of New York 3 and 4 per cent bonds by a banking syndicate headed by Bancamerica-Blair corporation. The bonds will be offered at prices to yield from 1% to 3.30 per cent according to maturity. The syndicate's bid for the bonds represented a net interest cost to the state of New York of 3.2289 per cent, the lowest rate in the state history. The group paid $100.111 for each $100 bond.

An issue of $2,500,000 Indiana Electric corporation 4½ per cent notes, due Sept. 1, 1932, is offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co. at 99¼ and interest yielding over 5 per cent.

Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. and a group of New York banks will purchase $20,000,000 of 6 per cent notes of the Argentine government, maturing in six and nine months, it was announced, as part of the plan for the redemption of $50,000,000 of one year 5 per cent notes due Oct. 1.

Center Chicago Selling Attack on Insull Shares

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Utility stocks on the Chicago exchange went down under another flood of selling yesterday in the most active trading session in many weeks. The Insull shares were the focal point of activity, and nearly all the issues in the group broke to record low prices as market sponsors of the stocks were unable to stem the tide of liquidation. So furious was the trading at one time during the day that it was necessary to halt dealing in the shares of the Middle West Utilities company for several minutes while the specialist in the stock straightened out his books.

Traders clamored to sell the stock, and in the absence of sufficient nearby supporting bids the price broke badly. From 13 the issue slumped to 9¾ before supporting orders were able to break the fall.

Turnover Is Heavy.

On the New York curb the stock touched 8 at the height of the selling. Approximately 138,000 shares of the stock were involved in the day's transaction. The turnover on the Chicago exchange amounted to about 118,000 shares, while slightly more than 20,000 shares changed hands on the New York market.

About 57,000 shares of Insull Utility common were traded in as the issue slumped to a record low price of 14⅝. Before the day ended the stock rallied to 15⅝, which represented a net decline of 4¼ for the day. The junior preferred stock tumbled 6 to 52 and the company's bonds sold off 3 to 66. North American Light and Power shares, in which the Insull interests have large holdings, went down 3 points to 40.

The higher price Insull stocks held up fairly well. Commonwealth Edison dipped to 170, but recovered to finish 1¾ under its previous price, and Public Service no par closed at 181, down 3 points.

Probe Source of Liquidation.

The source of the liquidation in the Insull securities was not definitely known. Report had it that much of the selling came from foreign holders and part of it was attributed to brokers who are carrying impaired margin accounts. Professional traders took advantage of the situation, and heavy short selling contributed substantially to the decline in the stocks.

The heaviest volume of selling came into the market shortly before noon when the news of the omission of the Western Electric dividend was announced. The news was the signal for general liquidation in all classes of securities, but the utility stocks were the hardest hit. The market opened generally lower, but showed comparative firmness in the first two hours of trading.

The motor accessory shares escaped severe liquidation and closed only slightly under previous quotations. Investment issues, however, were offered freely and broke sharply in many instances. Continental Chicago was off to an all time low price of 2¾ and Corporation Securities, an Insull issue, broke to 8¼.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 15.—Any doubt that the stock market had smashed through the bear movement lows it established on June 2 last was decisively removed today when a fresh run of liquidation drove the list from 2 to 5 points below yesterday's figures.

The fresh losses left virtually all the leading railroad and industrial favorites selling at the lowest levels in recent years. Trading was broad and heavy, many issues which had been inactive, some of them for months, being brought out at losses ranging from 5 to as much as 25 points. The turnovers approximated 2,300,000 shares. Much of the day's selling was reported to have originated overseas.

Comes as Surprise.

Once more the market had a string of such untoward incidents as the omission of dividends by important companies and heavy sales of issues to which it customarily looks for leadership to discourage any initiative effort that might have developed on the upside of operations. The action of the Western Electric directors in passing the dividend due at this time was a particularly severe shock, the action being much more drastic than the street had anticipated at this time, and

Short-term issues for

Unemployed Money

• MONEY that is idle temporarily, because of slackened business. • MONEY that awaits decision for permanent investment. • MONEY that is held for definite needs within the next few years. Such money turns naturally to short-term investments—they give income, liquidity and reasonable price stability if well chosen. The substantial demand for many of such issues, as compared with the supply, has tended to reduce yields. There remain, however, a number of well-secured short-term issues providing satisfactory income, which deserve a place among the holdings of investors whose needs require this type of security.

MARTIN INSULL ANSWERS POWER COMPANY CRITICS

Use of Electricity Is Seen Growing.

"The power companies are not the real issue in the attacks being made on them. Instead, the real issue is an attack by socialistically inclined individuals and organizations on private initiative, private ownership, and private operation which have made the United States the greatest nation in the world."

In these words Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities company, summed up his answer to recent criticism of the utilities companies as a "power octopus strangling the country" in a talk before the Rotary club at the Sherman hotel yesterday.

Mr. Insull saw in the use of electricity in 90 per cent of the homes of the country—exclusive of the farms—a popular expression of approval of the utility companies.

Use More Electricity.

"The nation's households are using electric power in constantly increasing amounts at constantly reducing rates," he said. "It is one of the anomalies of the recent depression that homemakers using electricity increased in numbers and continue to buy more domestic electric appliances for use in their homes, with a consequent increase in the quantity of electric energy they use."

The use of electricity was 7.2 per cent greater in the first six months of this year than for the same period last year, he said.

"This increased and more diversified use has been followed by further reductions in the rates per kilowatt hour, which in its turn leads to great and greater use of service," Mr. Insull continued. "Thus we have a beneficial circle to the homemakers and to the power industry, around which they have been continuously moving one after another for the last twenty years.

Pay $650,000,000 Annually.

"Since 1913 the average rate to the householder has decreased 30 per cent and the use of electricity has doubled. American households pay $650,000,000 annually for power.

"If, as Senator Norris alleges, they are being overcharged $750,000,000, the power industry should be paying domestic customers for the privilege of serving them. If, as Gov. Pinchot alleges, they are being overcharged $500,000,000, then the domestic consumer instead of paying an average of a dime a day for his electric service should be paying only a little more than two cents a day. If you take the middle course between the two figures the domestic consumer should be served free. That, of course, is an absurdity.

"If the dime a day average bill for electricity in the American home can be called by Senator Norris an 'expensive burden ruthlessly crowded upon the people,' what of the average tax bill of $1.30 a day, or thirteen times the electric bill. A cut of 7 per cent in the average tax bill would pay the entire electric bill of American homes and their average taxes would still be over $1.20 a day, or twelve times their present electric light bill."

I would like some information on General Outdoor Advertising company. What have recent earnings been? What do you think of the common stock?—A. J. M.

General Outdoor Advertising company is the largest outdoor advertising organization in the United States.

Net income for 1930 was $345,240, which was equal to $1.40 per class A share and left nothing applicable to the common. This was a sharp decline from net of $1,843,400 for 1929, which was equal to $13.39 per class A share and $1.83 per common share.

Deficit, after dividends, for 1930, before other surplus adjustments, was $646,226, against $111,620 for 1929.

For the first half of 1931 total income failed to cover interest and amortization charges. Net loss after all charges was $887,811, against a profit of $2,684 in the first half of 1930.

On December 31, 1930, current assets, including $1,601,511 cash, totaled $5,919,041, and current liabilities were $1,983,098. Working capital was $3,935,943. There were outstanding 28,378 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred [par $100], 125,000 shares of no par $4 cumulative, and participating class A shares and 642,385 shares of no par common.

No dividends have been paid on the class A stock since May 15, 1931.

The preferred is speculative and the common is more so.

Central Power.

I have a few 5 per cent bonds of Central Power company, incorporated in Delaware. I will be greatly obliged if you will give me some information on them so I can decide whether I should retain or sell them.—O. R. W.

Central Power company is controlled by Middle West Utilities company. It serves directly 49 communities in Nebraska and supplies electricity to 27 additional communities served by other companies.

Gross revenues have increased steadily each year for the last six years. Fixed charges were earned 2.34 times in 1930, 2.27 times in 1929, 2.39 times in 1928 and 1.81 times in 1927. For the five year period ended December 31, 1930, bond interest alone was covered on the average of 1.6 times.

For the twelve months to June 30, 1931, gross was about $1,484,000, against $1,443,000 for the preceding twelve months.

Net income, before depreciation, was $351,283, against $234,569 for the twelve months to June 30, 1930.

Funded debt consists solely of $5,724,500 first 5s, series D, due July 1, 1957. They are secured by a first mortgage on all property of the company. They are a business man's risk.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 10,000; hogs, 14,000; sheep, 20,000.

The momentum of tobogganing cattle and hog prices was increased yesterday, but receipts showed sign of abatement which is regarded by the trade as an effort on the part of producers to halt the drastic cut in quotations.

Salesmen are advising a temporary letup in supplies until the accumulation can be disposed of on the wholesale trade. Thousands of head were carried over from Monday's session on extremely low bids placed by packers who are determined not to crowd the market with beef and pork at prevailing quotations. The number of live cattle and hogs remaining in the pens after yesterday's market closed ran into many thousands. Unsold hogs in the holdover numbered 8,000, equaling the largest carry-over since Aug. 20.

Cuts Down Eastern Demand.

Hogs at Chicago were, relatively, the highest in the country yesterday. This fact naturally cut down eastern demand here and swung most of the big Tuesday shipping orders into low western markets where extreme tops were down to $5.50@5.65. Some eastern points had to sell top hogs at $6.05@6.35 and the top in Buffalo at $6.50 was only 25c above the Chicago peak. The usual spread between Chicago and far eastern points amounts to 50c and sometimes more.

A general readjustment of prices in the middle west is expected today, which will bring Chicago more in line with other points. Losses of 10@25c were recorded here yesterday, the extreme top showing 15c loss at $6.25, while the general average came down only 10c at $5.35, due to the larger share of lightweights included in receipts that are selling at $5.75 and above. The average, however, is a new low since 1908. Early that year the top went down to $4.50 and the average was $4.25 at the low time.

Hog Futures Dull.

The break in the cash trade yesterday damped activity in the hog futures market and few bids were made. Tendency ruled lower, although there were few sellers willing to sell December contracts for less than $5.50. One offer went down to $5.25 for December heavy grades, but failed to attract a bid. September light were offered at $6.50 and heavy grades for the present month carried bids of $5.50.

Cattle sales were few and scattered during the first half of the year. Buyers were slow in getting on the market and carried limited orders, both for numbers and prices. The extreme top for light yearlings tumbled to $8.75 and a much smaller share of yesterday's offerings was eligible to $9.00 and above.

Prime 1,402 lb averages, however, were sold at $9.35. The heaviest cattle in the yards averaged 1,596 lbs, and sold at $8.50. Cows and heifers shared in the weakness, with baby beef yearling heifers at $9.10. Calves slumped 50c. Stockers and feeders were weaker.

Sheep Receipts Break Records.

Sheep receipts are breaking records for this time of the year. The demoralizing cut in quotations caused some panic among sheep men who have more lambs than ever before to sell this fall and early winter. Movement of supplies increased again yesterday and liberal supplies are in sight for today. Five western markets expect 66,000 head today, against 51,000 last Wednesday.

Packers, however, supported the trade yesterday in hopes of bolstering up producers enough to avert a general panic in which wholesale markets would be glutted with lamb that packers would be forced to freeze, or sacrifice at low prices, probably at a loss to themselves as well as to producers. Top lambs reached $7.25 yesterday, while bulk of top kinds sold at $6.50@7.00. Prices are lowest since October, 1918.

GRAIN PRICES PART COMPANY WITH STOCKS

Advance in Face of Share Market Weakness.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The grain and stock markets parted company yesterday when the former engaged higher in the face of the weakness in securities. September wheat sold up to 49¾c, the highest figure since Aug. 17, since which time there has been a decline of 20½ points in the average price of industrial stocks as shown by Dow Jones compilation.

While there was some selling of wheat after an advance of 1@1¼c by timid longs who were induced to take profits by the break in stocks in New York, the undertone was distinctly firm with final sales ¼c higher to ¼c lower, September closing at 49¾@49c; December, 49½@50⅝c, and May, 54⅝@55c. Selling against daily and weekly offers was the main factor in checking the upturn in wheat.

World's Situation Changing.

A decided change in the general character of the news has occurred in most of late and, whereas two weeks ago estimates on the European crop showed a total of 1,408,000,000 bu, downward revisions in the last 10 days have lowered the aggregate to 1,370,000,000 bu, or only 2,000,000 bu less than that of last year, in addition to which the carryover is much smaller, being estimated at only 10,000,000 bu in France, the lowest known.

A reduction of 134,000,000 bu in the European rye crop in 12 European countries is also indicated and, with the poor potato crop, the trade now sees visions of a material expansion in the foreign buying of North American wheat, practically all of the high quality grain in the world being held in the United States and Canada.

France has harvested 245,000,000 bu of wheat this season, according to an official estimate, and while 14,000,000 bu in excess of last year's harvest, the figures were 12,000,000 bu below recent trade advices, and around 18,000,000 bu are regarded as unfit for human consumption. Import requirements are variously placed at 31,000,000 to 60,000,000 bu, or well above what was anticipated earlier in the season, and suggesting a material revision in French government selling regulations.

Mills Active Buyers.

Buying of wheat futures yesterday was of an excellent class, with mills and commission houses active at times, and there were also a number of small orders to buy received from abroad. Strength at Minneapolis had some influence on the local market, especially in the former, advancing to a new high on the present movement, touching 70c, only to react and finish at 68¾c, a net gain of 1c. Winnipeg was ⅝@⅞c lower, hedging pressure being a factor. October there closed at 52c, or 16¼c under Minneapolis September. Liverpool reported Argentine grain was not making contract grade, and futures there advanced ⅝@1⅛d for the day, with the October finishing at 55½c. Export sales in all positions were estimated at 800,000 bu, mainly low grade Manitobas and durums.

Commission house buying was in evidence in September corn yesterday and with light offering prices advanced 2½c over Monday's close to a high of 44⅝c, and carried the new crop months up ⅝@1¼c in sympathy. Profit taking, selling against offers, and local pressure caused a reaction from the best figures, but the September gained 1¼c for the day, closing at 43⅝@43⅝c, while the distant futures were ⅛@⅝c higher, December being 38½@38⅝c and May, 42⅝@42¾c.

Shipping Demand Fair.

Buying of December and selling of May corn caused a fractional narrowing of the difference, which was 3⅞c at the last. Shipping demand was only fair with sales of 55,000 bu and purchases of 44,000 bu made to arrive.

The oats market is coming in for more attention, with the September advancing ⅝c to 22½c early, the highest since Aug. 14, and the finish was at net gains of ⅝@⅞c, the nearby future being 22¼c at the last, while December closed at 24c and May, 26⅝c. Owing to the demand from the dry sections in the northwest, it is claimed that there have been practically no receipts here from Iowa in the last six weeks, while an industry has been buying cash oats here and downstate for shipment to the Canadian plants.

The rye crop of the 15 countries which have reported so far this year is estimated at 738,000,000 bu, a decrease of 150,000,000 bu as compared with 1930, the Polish estimate given in the trade yesterday showing a total of 261,000,000 bu, against 270,000,000 bu last season. Futures were influenced to a large extent by the action of wheat and closed ⅝c higher to ¼c lower, with September 39¾c; December, 39¼c, and May, 42c.

A Chicago Board of Trade membership sold yesterday at $7,075 net to the buyer.

LARD STOCKS DECREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago decreased 10,563,000 lbs the last two weeks and are 36,000,000 lbs, compared with 47,346,975 lbs on Sept. 30, 1931, and 35,969,000 lbs last year. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies decreased nearly but are more than double last year, being 19,603,000 lbs, against 8,615,000 lbs last year.

A moderate trade was on in the cash lard yesterday, as well as futures, with a narrow range. The close on lard was unchanged to 2½c lower, the bulk of the trading being in December. Liverpool lard was 6d to 6d higher. Export clearances of lard were 1,190,695 lbs, and of bacon 240,000 lbs. Exporters reported a light business in foreign account and domestic packers and distributors said trade was fair. Positions were weaker with demand slow. Hogs were off sharply, although receipts were less than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

STOCKHOLDERS ACCEPT SOUTHERN PAC. PLAN TO BUY 'COTTON BELT'

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Acquisition of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway company, popularly known as the Cotton Belt line, by the Southern Pacific company was furthered by the announcement today that 103,000 shares have been deposited in assent to the Southern Pacific's offer to acquire the railroad through an exchange of stock. Eighty-five per cent of 101,298 shares were necessary to comply with the Southern Pacific's offer, which expired today.

The Southern Pacific has offered three shares for each five Cotton Belt preferred shares, and one share for each three shares of Cotton Belt common. The completion of the acquisition is subject to approval by the interstate commerce commission. An examiner for the commission has recommended rejection of the proposal.

The Southern Pacific stated in its application in July, 1930, for permission to acquire control of the Cotton Belt that it owned 87,200 shares of preferred and 42,600 shares of common, giving it about 35 per cent voting power. Acquisition of stock on which it obtained an option would give it a voting power of approximately 57 per cent, as preferred and common stocks possess equal voting power.

The St. Louis Southwestern is an 1,800 mile system extending southerly from St. Louis to Fort Worth, Dallas, and other Texas points. Its capital stock outstanding consists of $19,893,600 per value of preferred, 5 per cent noncumulative and par value of $17,610,000 common. Its funded debt amounts to $60,500,000.

COTTON CLOSE HIGHER; SHORTS GOOD BUYERS

Shorts in the cotton market had difficulty in covering yesterday, despite the weakness in securities, as hedging pressure was light. The best prices were made on a rumor of a proposed five year moratorium on international debts. This stimulated buying. Strength in Liverpool, with a close 9@10 points higher on sales of 5,000 bales, including 3,000 bales American, also was a strengthening factor. At the close futures in Chicago were 5@11 points net higher, with other markets up 10@14 points. Spots in New York advanced 10 points to 6.70c, New Orleans was up 5 points to 6.40c, Galveston was 6.55c, and Houston 6.50c. Prices follow:
